SENATORS ASSAIL HIS VIEWS

JONES RETURNS TO STAND

Both Admirals Sharply Criticize 6-Inch Gun Cruisers as "A Type We Do Not Want."

JAPAN TERMED STRONGER

General Board Endorsed Light Armament Last Fall "Very Reluctantly," Says Jones.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Emphatic objections to the London naval treaty were voiced before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today by Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, chairman of the Navy General Board, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, a member of the American delegation.

Again today, as yesterday, the discussion focused on the relative merits of 8-inch guns and 6-inch guns on cruisers, and quickly developed into a spirited debate between the two Admirals and Senators Reed and Robinson of Arkansas, who were delegates to the conference.

Admiral Bristol was searchingly cross-examined after he had read a prepared statement of the General Board's objections to the treaty, and Admiral Jones was recalled after he had started testifying before the Naval Affairs Committee.

Admiral Bristol revealed the General Board as strongly supporting the position taken before the committee yesterday by Admiral Jones and not in accord in many important respects with the attitude of Admiral W. V. Pratt, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet. Both Admiral Bristol and Admiral Jones demanded the construction of only 8-inch gun cruisers of 10,000 tons displacement, and insisted upon the need of twenty-one of this type, with no additional 6-inch gun cruisers.

Both Insist on 8-Inch Guns.

Both reiterated the stand taken by Admiral Jones yesterday, that the 8-inch-gun unit was better adapted to our needs in protecting commerce over a wide area.

Admiral Bristol, envisaging a war in the Pacific, asserted that, lacking naval bases, we would need ships of greater cruising and firing range.

Asked by Senator Johnson whether the treaty would give the United States parity with Great Britain, Admiral Bristol replied in an emphatic negative.

When Senator Johnson inquired whether the treaty maintained the 5-3 ratio with Japan, he replied:

"It does not."

He maintained that the 5-3 ratio was necessary, and also that it was essential that the United States maintain a naval base in the Philippines, even should freedom be given those islands.

The extent to which the General Board disagrees with the provisions of the London treaty was quickly demonstrated in the testimony of Admiral Bristol. He maintained that the pact contained "bad precedents" in connection with American claims that should be presented at future limitation conferences, and that through it the United States was giving up limitation policies it had maintained for the past eight years.

His position, he asserted, was given to the committee in the light of exhaustive studies by the General Board, whose "recommendations represent the best thought in the navy," which he claimed had been brushed aside at London.

Reed Denies Disadvantage.

A different view toward these questions was given to the committee by Senators Reed and Robinson in their cross-examination.

Senator Reed argued that the only difference contained in the London treaty with former views of the General Board as to cruisers was one of three 8-inch 10,000-ton ships, that the treaty provided a larger cruiser tonnage than the General Board had contended for, and that the situation came down to one in which the board wanted three ships with 8-inch guns, while Admiral Pratt was glad to have them armed with 6-inch guns.

As for the Japanese ratio, Senator Reed asserted, Japan did not get better than its proportion of three, except in 6-inch gun cruisers, destroyers and submarines, categories

House Passes Navy Supply Bill With Increases Hoover Asked

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Navy Department supply bill, providing $382,081,636 for the fiscal year 1931, was passed by the House today.

The bill as originally introduced called for more than $377,000,000, but a last-minute amendment, requested by President Hoover, made $3,194,000 more available for a $10,000,000 program of public works which had been started.

The only other amendment of importance was also requested by the President, an increase of $332,000 in the recreation and amusement fund for enlisted men to provide sound motion picture equipment on warships.

PRESIDENT EXPECTS VISIT FROM DAWES

Washington Wonders What the Return of Ambassador at This Time May Signify.

STIMSON HAS HAD NO WORD

Secretary Adds to Confusion by Stating That Envoy Cannot Come Without Permission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A report that Ambassador Dawes would return from London, supposedly for the purpose of discussing the naval treaty with President Hoover, led to a confusion of statements in administration circles this afternoon, but finally was apparently settled by the statement that General Dawes had not yet sought permission to leave his post at London.

When the report first reached Washington one of the President's aides said that, while no definite time had been set for the Ambassador's arrival, he would be here to confer with the President on the naval treaty. A short time later the President said that he understood that General Dawes was coming to the United States in connection with plans for the Chicago World's Fair, but that his journey had nothing whatever to do with the treaty.

Stimson Makes Statement.

Only a few minutes after the President's statement Secretary Stimson called a special press conference and stated that, although there was a story going the rounds to the effect that General Dawes would come here to appear before one of the Senate committees, it was baseless.

Secretary Stimson was emphatic in saying that he had not sent for General Dawes, and added that the Ambassador could not leave his post without State Department permission.

The Secretary said he had an indistinct recollection that General Dawes had mentioned to him, some time last Summer, that he would have to come home in connection with the plans for the Chicago Fair, but Mr. Stimson again explained that the Ambassador had not asked formal permission to return, and that he could not leave his post without it.

It was further pointed out that if General Dawes intended to sail May 22, as reported here, he would not arrive until about May 29, and that the Senate hearings might have ended by that date.

Would Welcome the Visitor.

On the other hand, in his few words concerning the matter President Hoover said he would be glad to see General Dawes. Mr. Hoover and the General were associated in the Coolidge Administration, and they

AMERICAN GOLFERS BEAT BRITISH, 10-2, TO KEEP WALKER CUP

MISS COLLETT IS DEFEATED

Loses, 4 and 3, to 19-Year-Old Miss Fishwick in Women's Title Play at Formby.

By W. F. LEYSMITH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SANDWICH, England, May 16.—America has kept the Walker Cup. As a result of a smashing victory, 7 points to 1, in the singles matches over the St. George's course today, Bobby Jones and his men will bring the trophy, which Great Britain has never won, back to America for another two years. Having won, 3 matches to 1, in the foursomes yesterday, the total tally of the contests is 10 matches to 2 in America's favor.

Somewhat offsetting the blow to Britain's golf hopes, however, was the news from Formby, where a 19-year-old girl, Miss Diana Fishwick, defeated Miss Glenna Collett, the American champion, in the final of the women's British championship, 4 up and 3 to play.

The result was a startling upset. Miss Collett, striving for a title which no American has ever captured, had been considered almost a certain winner because of her convincing triumphs in earlier rounds. But that tournament is a story in itself.

The Walker Cup victory, sterling as it is, fades somewhat in comparison with the individual performance of Donald K. Moe, 20-year-old amateur from Oregon, who, pitted against J. A. Stout, one of England's finest match players, in fifteen holes turned a deficit of 7 holes down to a victory by 1 up on the last green. And if he had been asked to sink an easy, straight line putt of under five feet he probably would have lowered the record of this 6,551-yard championship course, which has stood for nineteen years, with a score of 67.

Moe Tells His Own Story.

Here is Moe's own story, told as the smiling young giant forced his way from the last green through a wildly cheering crowd of close to 6,000:

"I lost the first three holes of the afternoon round to Stout, which brought him 7 up. Then I seemed to get going with a long putt on the fourth green which dropped nicely—a birdie 3.

"We halved the fifth in par 4s. I then won the sixth in par 3, the seventh with a birdie 4, the eighth with a par 3 and the ninth with a birdie 3. I was then out in 33 and 2 down on the match.

"My sixth consecutive win came to me at the tenth in par 4 and we halved the eleventh also in par 4. I won the twelfth with a birdie 3 to bring the match all square.

"A par 4 at the thirteenth put me 1 up, but I didn't get out of a bunker at the fifteenth too well and was 5 to Stout's par 4. Then, all square, we halved the sixteenth and seventeenth in par 3s and par 4s and I was lying pretty good for a birdie 3 at the last hole when Stout, who had chipped short and then played two more shots, gave me the match. When Stout walked across to me on the eighteenth green it was the most thrilling moment of my life."

Great Iron Shot Decides.

Moe won his match with a great iron shot played from in close and on a sloping lie on the eighteenth fairway. His heroic comeback would have gone for naught if that shot had followed a brisk crosswind.

He played it like a master. The ball flew like a bullet dead on the

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—One hundred and forty of the 260 Conservative Members of the House of Commons have signed a paper signifying their determination to support a motion to condemn the naval treaty.

This move, however, is regarded as a protest against former Premier Stanley Baldwin as much as it is against the treaty. The rebels resent his refusal, as their party leader, to move a vote of censure against the Labor Government on account of the treaty and his refusal in yesterday's naval debate in the House of Commons to assume party responsibility for Winston Churchill's condemnation of the results of the naval conference.

In other words, there now exists within the Parliamentary group of Conservatives as sharp a factional division over navy matters as there is in the party generally throughout the country over the Beaverbrook plan for tariff barriers against the world and taxes on imported foods.

The situation, however, need cause no anxiety among the friends of the treaty in England and the United States for it is sure of approval by a combined majority of Liberal and Labor Members of the House of Commons, with considerable additional support from the Tories who repudiate Mr. Churchill's attitude.

Chicago Gangster and Aviator Bootlegger Revealed as Ex-Head of Montreal Distillery

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—The Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde existence of Chicago's wealthy aviator and bootlegger came to an end today when officials of the Canadian Government ascertained that the Frank J. Parker who formerly headed the largest distillery in Montreal was the same Frank J. Parker who lately was a convict in Joliet prison.

In Chicago Parker rose from a petty gangster to a "bootleg king" who supplied a wealthy clientele with Canadian liquors brought in with five airplanes. The Chicago police say he is worth $5,000,000.

In Montreal he was known as a leading citizen who desired to have his name changed by Parliament because of the adverse publicity given his Chicago "namesake." Parker was held without bail when arraigned in Montreal today on two charges of perjury growing out of an investigation into the Dominion Distilleries, Ltd., of which he was president, before it went into bankruptcy.

In Chicago today P. A. Martineau, a Canadian customs officer, was comparing photographs and fingerprints of the supposed different Parkers. He found that they tallied and so wired Montreal officials.

Parker was charged in Canada with secretly withdrawing whisky to escape the payment of taxes, and two excise officers testified today that he attempted to bribe them.

Before becoming the so-called aviator bootlegger about five years ago, Parker was known to Chicago police as the leader of a nation-wide automobile theft ring, and he was named by the State's Attorney in 1926 as the chief figure in the Illinois parole mill.

He was indicted by the United States Government in 1926 as owner of the Archer Products Brewery, but was not apprehended and the conspiracy charge was dismissed. In 1926 he was named as owner of a 3,000-gallon alcohol manufacturing plant raided in Chicago. The police declared he owned dozens of west side breweries.

Parker's record in the Bureau of Identification here shows that in October, 1914, he was sentenced to five to twenty-five years at Joliet for burglary and was discharged from parole in September, 1920.

HORACE MANN PUPIL WINS ORATORY PRIZE

ALSO GETS TRIP ABROAD

'Like Man, Like State' His Subject—Passaic Girl Is Second and Bronx Boy Third.

Seymour M. Peyser of Horace Mann High School for Boys, Manhattan, won the championship in the New York regional finals in the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution conducted by THE NEW YORK TIMES at Town Hall, 123 West Forty-third Street, last night. The subject of his prepared oration was "Like Man, Like State." Extemporaneously he was required to "discuss concretely some of the benefits enjoyed by Americans of 1787 and Americans of 1930 under the same Constitution." He was fourth speaker.

The regional champion will take part in the National Oratorical Contest to be held in Washington, D. C., on May 24. In addition to that honor he won a cash prize of $1,000, equivalent to four years' college tuition, a Summer trip to Europe with all expenses paid and a gold medal.

Girl Wins Second Honors.

Miss Martha Odell, Passaic (N. J.) High School, won second prize, $500 and a gold medal. She spoke seventh, and her subject was "Freedom of Speech and of the Press, Its Scope and Limitations." Speaking extemporaneously, she was asked to discuss "What specific conditions in 1791 made freedom of speech and press seem necessary—and what today?"

Robert C. Van Tuyl of Evander Childs High School, the Bronx, won third prize, $250 and a gold medal. He spoke fifth, and his subject was "The Constitution Supreme." Extemporaneously he discussed "any basic principles of the Constitution which have commended themselves to adaptation by the governments you mention."

Young Peyser received the acclaim of the audience with modest reserve, and smilingly accepted the congratulations of friends who rushed to greet him after the presentation.

"Of course, I am more than glad to be chosen the winner," he said. "I might say that I am quite surprised to have gotten this far in the contest, and am now looking forward to the meeting in Washington next Saturday night. I expect to use the money which I have received as winner to go to college next Fall. My hope and intention is to enter Harvard."

Peyser, who is 15 years old, is business manager of the Horace Mann Record, and has won his school key in dramatics. He has achieved high scholarship in mathematics, Latin and Greek. A native of the Bronx, he attended Public School 33 and Evander Childs High School before entering Horace Mann.

The other contestants, and their subjects, were heard in the following order:

1—Marie Joly, Washington Irving High School, "The Navy Under the Constitution." Extemporaneous—"From 1790 through the Monroe Doctrine period, how did Congress carry out the constitutional mandate to 'provide and maintain a navy'?"

2. Max Rapaport, Erasmus Hall Evening High School—"John Marshall and Federal Supremacy." Extemporaneous—"Explain modern consequences of John Marshall's attitude toward nullification."

3. Frederick Eugene Lombard, Freehold High School.—"John Marshall and Federal Supremacy." Extemporaneous—"Show how the Supreme Court functions in translating the spirit of the Constitution into the letter of the law."

FORT TO RUN AS DRY AGAINST MORROW

AMBASSADOR WINS PRAISE

Drys Hail His Frankness While Wets View His Stand as Opening of Victorious Drive.

Representative Franklin W. Fort of East Orange, former secretary of the Republican National Committee, announced yesterday that he would oppose Dwight W. Morrow and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey on the prohibition issue.

Coming on the heels of the demand by Mr. Morrow for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and return of control of the liquor traffic to the States, Mr. Fort declared that he was entering the race as a dry candidate so that the issue should not go by default in the primary election on June 17.

Mr. Fort spoke of his friendship and admiration for both the other candidates, and then went on to assail Mr. Morrow's prohibition stand as one which would tend to bring back the saloon and other evils antedating Federal prohibition and to condemn Mr. Frelinghuysen's position as nebulous.

Opposes Any Recession.

"The true motive for my candidacy is obvious," he went on. "I am opposed to any return of the sale of intoxicating liquor under any known or suggested form of law or regulation. I believe in the Eighteenth Amendment and I am unwilling that my native State should, directly or indirectly, go on record for its repeal. The issue is prohibition, not friendship. The liquor traffic is outlaw and must so remain."

Political observers see Mr. Fort's close association with the Hoover Administration as likely to make him the decisive factor in the three-cornered Republican Senatorial race.

His injection of a straight-out wet and dry fight in the contest was seen as the start of a bitter battle in which Mr. Fort might swing a winning vote from either of the other candidates, although the majority of persons were inclined to believe that Mr. Fort's participation would benefit Mr. Frelinghuysen.

The announcement of Mr. Fort was hailed by the Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, who promised the Representative the support of all the drys in the State. Mr. Shields predicted that great strength would be shown for Mr. Fort at the polls on primary day.

Hoover Stand Involved.

Mr. Fort, in joining the race, introduced another factor into the already tangled contest in New Jersey—one involving the attitude of President Hoover and the administration leaders.

Mr. Fort has long been looked upon as the Hoover spokesman in the lower house in Washington and in the Kansas City convention, which nominated Mr. Hoover, the Representative was his floor leader. As secretary of the national committee, Mr. Fort was also considered one of the inner administration conferees, and he is known in addition as a personal friend of the President.

On the other hand, the assertion has been made by supporters of Mr. Morrow that the administration is friendly to the Ambassador's candidacy. Although the White House issued a statement denying any participation in the New Jersey campaign, up to the time Mr. Fort's candidacy was certain, this was generally interpreted as correct.

With Mr. Fort formally in the contest, however, New Jersey politicians frankly expressed themselves as puzzled, and one of them, Jesse Sal-

PAN-EUROPE SCHEME GIVEN TO 26 NATIONS; CALLED GREAT VISION

EXPECTATIONS SURPASSED

ASKS REPLIES BY JULY 15

Invitation Expresses Hope That Progress Can Be Reported to League in September.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's memorandum "on the organization of a system of federal union in Europe," was being given today to twenty-six European States that were invited last September to consider the formation of this federal union and will be released tomorrow evening for publication throughout the world Sunday morning. The proposals which the French Foreign Minister makes in this document are, it is said here, of tremendous import, and the issuance of the document is considered the most important diplomatic event of the world since President Wilson launched the charter of the League of Nations.

M. Briand, it appears, has gone further in his proposal than was anticipated. He has not been content with just putting forth his idea for consideration. He is laying before Europe a definitely constructed plan with concrete proposals.

The veteran statesman, with the usual French daring of thought, came apparently to the conclusion that it would be insufficient just to launch an idea which would dissolve in talk and an exchange of notes. It was necessary to go at his task courageously and give the peoples of the Continent something positive, even if risks were entailed.

His idea is not new. The great French statesman Sully dreamed of it in the seventeenth century, and the German philosopher Kant planned it in the eighteenth century. This time there is a great difference. The proposal now comes from a Foreign Minister of a country which financially and militarily is the strongest on the Continent.

M. Briand chose for issuance of his proposal the day on which the Reparations Commission will cease to exist and the final settlement of the financial problems left by the World War will be by common consent taken out of the hands of the governments and put on a commercial basis through the operation of the Bank for International Settlements. He wants that terminal point to old controversies to mark also a new start, to be positive and forward-looking.

Would Work With League.

M. Briand's idea may be summarized as a desire to form an extended regional pact. He is not seeking to create an opposition unit to the League of Nations. On the contrary, he sees his federated Europe fitted into a scheme of the League and advances the hope that other ethnical units may be formed equally dedicated to the cause of peace and cooperation.

It may be taken for granted that in every possible way the French Foreign Minister will seek to avoid even the remotest suspicion that his federated Europe is intended as an opponent force of either America or

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—The Prince of Wales appeared in the rôle of a good samaritan today by giving first aid to an injured motorcyclist.

En route to Hendon airdrome to fly to Sandwich for the golf tournament, the Prince saw two men bending over the unconscious figure of John Penniall, who had fallen from his machine. After ordering his chauffeur to stop the Prince alighted and asked, "Can I do anything?"

Then he went to his car and returned with a cushion which he placed carefully under the man's head and used his handkerchief to check the man's nose-bleeding.

Assured that everything possible had been done, the Prince continued to the airdrome, but sent back his car in case the ambulance had not arrived. By that time, however, the ambulance had removed the injured man.

VAUSE UNDER FIRE IN BANK CHAIN DEAL

State Prosecutor Delves Into Affairs of Company Headed by County Judge.

WALKER PRAISES JURIST

Indicates He Will Investigate City Bureaus if Grand Juries Show Irregularities.

The State Attorney General's office has been conducting a quiet investigation into a corporation organized and headed by County Judge W. Bernard Vause of Kings, it became known yesterday as Mayor Walker returned from Bermuda expressing confidence in the judge, whose activities are the subject of two grand jury inquiries and whose income tax returns are being studied by government officials.

The new investigation which Judge Vause is facing has to do with the operations of a company organized to take over a string of banks. Officials of the Attorney General's office in the Bureau of Frauds refused to discuss the matter, but former Representative Nathan D. Perlman of counsel for Judge Vause admitted that his client had been invited by representatives of the Attorney General's office to discuss "certain matters."

Sheehan Tells of Company.

Cornelius M. Sheehan, an active worker for former Mayor John F. Hylan in several Mayoralty campaigns and one-time first vice president of Judge Vause's company, admitted last night at his home, 788 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, that he had made an affidavit regarding the affairs of the company at the request of representatives of the Attorney General. He severed his connection with the corporation, Mr. Sheehan said, because "I didn't like the way Judge Vause was running things."

Meanwhile, the investigations by United States Attorney Tuttle and District Attorney Crain into the $250,000 fees Judge Vause received from the United American Lines for "professional services" in connection with obtaining leases to two piers

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—The French capital saluted tonight 234 mothers of American soldiers who gave up their lives on the battlefields of France.

The mothers were received with dignified but warmly hospitable courtesy by government and army officials at the Gare des Invalides, the location of which, in one of the most beautiful quarters of the city, enhanced their first glimpse of Paris. The special train which brought them from Cherbourg, where they disembarked from the United States liner America, was especially diverted from the Saint Lazare station, the usual terminal for boat trains. En route in motor coaches to their hotels, they passed the brilliantly lighted Champs Elysées and the Place de la Concorde.

Most of the welcoming speeches were made at Cherbourg. On their arrival in Paris there were a few brief salutations by government officials.

Fifteen members of the United States War Department's organization, headed by Colonel Richard Ellis and including nurses and American Army officers who will act as guides for the mothers, went to Cherbourg to meet the contingent arriving today.

The most impressive moment at the Cherbourg reception was when the commander of the Wounded French War Veterans' Association there presented a large bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Helen Lindsey of Cincinnati, the eldest of the group. She is 75 years old. Many of the war mothers were visibly affected, some of them shedding tears.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 Mrs. Sarah Thompson of New York, mother of the late Lieutenant Hugh Thompson, who is buried at the Saint Mihiel Cemetery, will lay a wreath on the tomb of the French Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe. The ceremony will be attended by Ambassador Edge, General Pershing and French officials. Mrs. Thompson was chosen by her companions to place the first wreath. The ceremony will be repeated every day at the same hour by a different mother.

After tomorrow's ceremony Ambassador Edge will hold a reception for the mothers at the American Embassy. Sunday and Monday will be devoted to sightseeing. On Tuesday they will begin a tour of cemeteries in France and Belgium where American soldiers are buried.

WHALEN SUCCESSOR CHOSEN, WALKER SAYS ON HIS RETURN; SHIFT EXPECTED ON TUESDAY

MAYOR WITHHOLDS NAME

But He Is Expected to Appoint Patterson or Uniformed Man.

TALKS WITH COMMISSIONER

Both Insist That Only the Annual Report Was Discussed at Hour's Conference.

WALKER BACK FEELING FIT

Grover A. Whalen is expected to resign as Police Commissioner next Tuesday forenoon, at which time he has an appointment with Mayor Walker to discuss his recent Police Department report.

It also is expected that the Mayor at the same time or a little later in the day will announce Mr. Whalen's successor. Mayor Walker said frankly that he had in mind a man to succeed Mr. Whalen, but added that he had not offered him the place and would not do so until he had received Mr. Whalen's resignation. The opinion at City Hall was that the Mayor probably would offer the Police Commissionership to Richard C. Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Correction, or to a member of the uniformed force, either Chief Inspector John O'Brien or Assistant Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

Reports that Mr. Whalen's resignation, long expected, was imminent followed immediately Mayor Walker's return from Bermuda yesterday. Interviewed on the ship, Mayor Walker reiterated that he would like to have Mr. Whalen stay in his present post indefinitely.

"As far as I am concerned," the Mayor said in reply to inquiries by reporters, "Mr. Whalen can stay as long as he likes as long as I am Mayor. I hope he stays with me. Any time Mr. Whalen wants to step down I have some one in line. I will announce his successor concurrently with Mr. Whalen's resignation."

Confers With Mayor.

In the late afternoon Commissioner Whalen telephoned to City Hall from Police Headquarters that he would like to see the Mayor. Upon receiving the reply that the Mayor would be glad to see him Mr. Whalen went at once to City Hall, where he conferred with the Mayor for more than an hour.

It was fully expected by most of the officials and reporters at City Hall that Mr. Whalen had come to tender his resignation, but both the Mayor and Mr. Whalen denied that the resignation had been discussed. Each said that the long conversation had been entirely about the Police Department report, which Mr. Whalen made public during the Mayor's absence in Bermuda.

A score of reporters surrounded Mr. Whalen when he left the Mayor's office. The Police Commissioner, clad as always in the height of fashion, was smiling broadly.

"Have you resigned as Police Commissioner?" Mr. Whalen was asked.

"No," he replied.

"What was the purpose of your conference with the Mayor?"

Has Appointment for Tuesday.

"I came down here to present in person a copy of the Police Department report. This led to a long conference on various phases of departmental work. This discussion was not concluded and we have arranged to continue it at 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning."

"Do you intend to tender your resignation next Tuesday?" Mr. Whalen was asked.

"You will have to wait until Tuesday to find out," Mr. Whalen replied with a grin.

Ten or twelve photographers who had set up their cameras on the steps of City Hall tried to get Mr. Whalen to pose for a photograph as he stepped out the door. Much to their surprise he refused, and further astounded them by putting his hand in front of his face as he ran down the steps.

"I'm in a hurry," he said in explanation.

Mayor Walker corroborated Mr. Whalen's statement that the resignation had not been mentioned in their discussion, which, he said, had been confined to the Police Department report.

"I found the report, which I had not seen before, very voluminous," the Mayor said. "I commented that it seemed to be a hot report, just as the police parade was a hot parade. Mr. Whalen said that anyway it was bound in red.

"We only had time to cover the report in the most superficial way and I wanted to discuss it further. We found that next Tuesday was the first time that would be mutually convenient for a further discussion."

"Was anything said about Mr. Whalen's intention to resign?" Mayor Walker was asked.

"Nothing whatever," he replied. "As you all know, it is my desire that Commissioner Whalen should remain as head of the Police Department as long as possible. The longer he remains the better I shall be pleased. There was no reason, therefore, why I should start a conversation about the time of his resignation, if he intends to offer it. Since Mr. Whalen volunteered nothing on the subject, it did not come up."

Has Made No Offers of Post.

Mayor Walker was asked about his statement on shipboard and he qualified it somewhat by saying that he might not be able to announce Mr. Whalen's successor simultaneously with his resignation. He repeated that he had said he had a man in line for the place.

"That means that you have a man in mind, does it not?" he was asked.

"I have had several men in mind, of course," Mayor Walker said. "But I can say this: I have not offered the position to anybody, and I will not until I receive Mr. Whalen's resignation."

The Mayor then recalled that he had received only short notice when George V. McLaughlin, his first Police Commissioner, resigned, and had to select in haste the late Joseph A. Warren to succeed him. He added that he had induced Mr. Whalen to take the post when Mr. Warren's health broke down, and indicated that he did not intend to be caught without a man to succeed Mr. Whalen.

Asked for the name of the man he had picked for the next Police Commissioner, Mayor Walker said:

"I am not going to name any names. Supposing I did name my first choice and he declined, the man to whom I turned next would have the unpleasant knowledge that he was my second choice. I am not going to put myself in that position."

Asked if he expected Mr. Whalen's resignation at their next meeting, the Mayor said:

"As for Tuesday, I don't know. I have no reason to expect Mr. Whalen's resignation then. That's up to him."

Said to Have Cleaned Slate.

Confirmation of Mr. Whalen's intention to resign within the next few days was seen in a report that he had moved most of his personal belongings from his office at Police Headquarters and had brought all his work up to date so that he could retire with a clean slate at a moment's notice. Presumably Mr. Whalen will resume his old place as general manager at Wanamaker's at once.

Despite Mayor Walker's many declarations of complete satisfaction with Mr. Whalen's administration, it was predicted by those in the Mayor's confidence that Mr. Whalen's successor would receive at least a hint that less spectacular methods would be welcomed at City Hall. Mr. Whalen's fondness for publicity is said to have been somewhat displeasing to the Mayor.

For that reason, the selection of a member of the uniformed force is said to have been considered by the Mayor. Should a uniformed man not be chosen, it was said that Commissioner Patterson was a likely selection. Mayor Walker is known to have a high opinion of his ability and to feel that this appointment would not be construed as political. Mr. Patterson is a Democrat but has not been identified with Tammany.

Mayor Tanned and Jovial.

Tanned by the southern sun and in jovial spirits, Mayor Walker was in good health and expressed eagerness to get back to work yesterday when the Furness Bermuda liner Bermuda arrived in Quarantine. With him were his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, who had sailed with the Mayor two weeks ago by coincidence.

Several friends met him at Quarantine and others were waiting at the pier, anxious to see if Mayor Walker's rest in Bermuda had improved his physical condition, described four weeks ago as serious by his personal physician, Dr. William Schroeder Jr., chairman of the Sanitary Commission.

Those at the pier saw a cheery, energetic Mayor Walker stride down the gangway in his usual natty dress, swinging a cane and smiling broadly.

The Mayor confessed he had been converted to physical culture and declared that hereafter he would plan his daily activities to allow time for regular exercise and sports. He became attached to golf while in Bermuda and plans to continue it, although he admitted that his score was something not to be mentioned.

At Quarantine the Bermuda was met by Arthur Foran, a Controller of Customs, and William Seeman, a friend of Mayor Walker. The Mayor was still in his compartment, Suite Lyric. Reporters were met by Mr. Malone, who took them to his suite to await the Mayor's arrival.

When he did arrive the stateroom buzzed with questions on all subjects. The Mayor met them with good humored answers and proceeded to recount the events of his trip.

Avoiding social functions, he said, he spent his visit with H. C. Blackiston, head of the Furness Line, resting whenever he felt like it, playing golf, riding a bicycle, swimming and walking.

"I am a square golfer," he declared.

"What was your score, Mr. Mayor?" some one asked.

"Far too much to count," he replied. "I am no mathematician."

He verified reports from Bermuda that he had suffered from a form of autointoxication due, he believed, to lack of exercise.

He was asked if he felt better, and replied that he would not be back if he did not.

The Mayor was stricken four weeks ago and was ordered to bed by Dr. Schroeder, who prescribed a complete rest. His journey to Bermuda came so unexpectedly that many of his closest friends knew nothing of it until he was already at sea.

His illness compelled him to cancel a busy month of activities and he expressed the desire yesterday to get back to City Hall and take up the reins of the city administration again.

In the party that returned with the Mayor and the Malones was Miss Betty Compton, motion picture actress.

Thaw Has No Visa to Enter Britain

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—The Foreign Office has no information concerning the report that Harry K. Thaw has sailed from New York aboard the Ile de France in a fresh attempt to obtain admittance to England. It was said, however, if Mr. Thaw had sailed he had done so without a British visa and that the question of his admission to this country would not come up until he reached port. On the last occasion Mr. Thaw was denied the right to land in Britain.

FLEET WILL LEAVE NEW YORK MONDAY

Admiral Pratt Expected Back From Capital This Evening to Take Command.

VESSELS LOAD SUPPLIES

The ships of the United States fleet, nearing the end of their stay in New York harbor, were in a bustle of activity yesterday taking supplies and ammunition aboard and receiving their final polishing and painting in preparation for the review by President Hoover off the Virginia Capes next Tuesday.

On Monday some sixty-five vessels will steam out to sea and give New York another spectacle of stately battleships and trim cruisers sailing down the Hudson.

The spectacle, for most of New York, will begin at 3 P. M., Daylight Time, when the eleven battleships anchored in the river will get under way and move out in column. After an interval of 1,000 yards the eight light cruisers will follow them.

The battleship Texas, flagship of the fleet, which is now in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, will get away at about 9 A. M., however, bearing the commander-in-chief, Admiral William V. Pratt. Admiral Pratt, who has been in Washington testifying on the new naval treaty before the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, is expected to return this evening to his command. He will be aboard the Texas commanding the combined fleet through its review and manoeuvres. The twenty-five destroyers, nesting now at Staten Island, also will get away Monday morning.

These vessels, together with twenty submarines, various auxiliary vessels and two aircraft carriers laden with planes, will meet at sea and fall into formation for the review, which will take place about twenty-five miles off the Virginia Capes at the entrance to Chesapeake Bay.

At the end of these manoeuvres the combined fleet will break up. The battle fleet will proceed to Hampton Roads, leaving there on May 26 for the Pacific Coast, where it is stationed. The scouting fleet will go to Newport to resume its normal routine. The Texas, however, will return to the Brooklyn Navy Yard to have its hull cleaned.

Yesterday was what is known as "field day" in the navy. Men on every ship were preparing the ships and themselves for Captain's inspection this morning in addition to preparing for Monday's departure. Thousands of civilians visited the war vessels yesterday, as thousands have done every day since the fleet filed in on May 7. Yesterday's visitors included two Consuls General, Radoye Yankowitch of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, and Pan P. Paraskevopoulos of Greece. They explored the Texas.

This afternoon half the enlisted men of the fleet, numbering about 15,000, will go ashore on the last week-end two-day liberty of the fleet's stay here. Both officers and men yesterday expressed regret that the stay is about to end.

PLAN 24-HOUR FLIGHT TO COAST AND BACK

Brock and Schlee Will Broadcast Progress Across Continent Over National Chain.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 16.—Plans for a transcontinental flight designed to break three cross-country speed records in a twenty-four-hour trip from east to west and return were announced today by William S. Brock, veteran Detroit pilot. The flight, to be attempted within four weeks, will be broadcast through a national chain which will keep the country informed of its progress from start to finish.

Edward F. Schlee, Brock's companion and copilot on their flight from Detroit to Tokio, will alternate with Brock at the microphone.

Brock and Schlee plan to fly to Jacksonville, Fla., where final tests will be made, and the transcontinental flight will start on the first opportune day. Leaving Jacksonville at sunrise, they will race westward over the route on which Robert Fowler of California made the first flight across the continent in 1912.

On the westward flight Brock's objective is to break the record of 17 hours 38 minutes, established last year by Captain Frank M. Hawks of New York, and flying eastward the record of 14 hours 23 minutes established by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

The route Brock has chosen is 360 miles shorter than the Los Angeles-New York route flown by Colonel Lindbergh and Captain Hawks, but he expects to make up for the distance by a greater showing in speed.

The plane to be used is a Lockheed Vega built by the Detroit Aircraft Corporation and powered by a Pratt & Whitney Wasp engine rated at 450 horsepower.

SPEECH OF MUSSOLINI STIRS FRENCH PROTEST

Ambassador to Rome Calls on Grandhi, Expressing Disapproval of Tenor of Address.

ROME, May 16 (AP).—Maurice de Beaumarchais, the French Ambassador, today called on Foreign Minister Dino Grandi at the Chigi Palace and protested unofficially against the tenor of a speech delivered last Sunday at Leghorn by Premier Mussolini.

The Fascist Premier said in his address to 55,000 subjects that "if our frontiers were threatened, there would be gathered one human mass—nay, a thunderbolt—launched against any and all comers." Recalling that Sunday was the anniversary of the Leghorn battle with the Austrians, he said, "There is something unescapable, inevitable, in this march toward destiny of Fascist Italy, and nobody can halt it." The Premier further declared:

"I want to say not only to you but to the people beyond our frontiers that we are not anxious to precipitate adventures. But if any one deceives himself so far as to think he can halt our onward march he will find the whole Italian people in front of him."

$300,000,000 PROGRAM FOR WASHINGTON TOLD

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP).—Beautification of the nation's capital and expansion of government buildings in the city are expected by the Treasury Department to cost more than $300,000,000 in the next eight or ten years.

In reviewing the progress of the projects, F. K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, reported to President HooverP today that much of the work was now under way and that other contracts were to be let before December.

The largest operation under the program is the projected group of eleven buildings to be erected along the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue near the base of Capitol Hill.

Mr. Heath said that by December it was hoped that actual construction operations might be under way for a new Postoffice Department building and that ground would be broken for the Department of Justice building, followed by a general accounting building and one for the Department of Labor.

Improvements on Capitol Hill, involving an expenditure of over $26,000,000, include an addition to the House office building, an enlargement of the Senate office building, a new building for the Supreme Court and general landscaping of the grounds from the Capitol to the union station.

Projects for parkways, boulevards and drives call for $43,750,000. A civic centre for the municipal government, expected to cost about $25,000,000 or $30,000,000, has been approved by Congress.

LINDBERGH CONFERS ON GLIDERS AT CAPITAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Flying his Lockheed-Sirius plane, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Bolling Field at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon following a flight of an hour and fifty minutes from New York. He came here to discuss general business with government officials, particularly regarding the development of gliders, in which he is much interested.

It was stated in his behalf that his trip is "merely an ordinary one," and that there is nothing sensational about it. He will leave Washington tomorrow or Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., May 16.—When Colonel Lindbergh started here this afternoon on the flight that took him to Washington, his destination was unannounced. He said only that the "pressure of other appointments" had prevented him from going to Montauk Point with Hawley Bowlus of Los Angeles, American glider endurance record holder.

Arriving at the field about 3 o'clock, the Colonel first made a short flight in the new Prudden-Whitehead trimotored, all-metal monoplane recently completed in Atlanta and brought here for instrument testing. Then he went to the hangar where his own machine is kept, took two parachutes and a small suitcase from his automobile, shook hands with reporters and, after warming his motor, took off in a southwesterly direction.

CONSERVATIVES ISSUE PRESBYTERIAN PAPER

Christianity Today Is Organ of Fundamentalist Group That Left Princeton Seminary.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16.—Affirmed by its editors to be "committed to a militant defense" of the Presbyterian faith "against enemies—whether within or without its borders," the first issue of Christianity Today, the organ of the conservative faction of the Church, appeared here today. The paper is published by the group of "Fundamentalist" theologians who recently split with the liberal group of the Princeton Theological Seminary and later established the Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia.

Dr. Samuel G. Craig, former editor of The Presbyterian, the official organ of the Presbyterian Church, who was forced to relinquish his position at the Princeton Theological Seminary, is editor of the new paper, associated with Dr. J. Gresham Machen, former member of the faculty of the Princeton Seminary, in active support of the Philadelphia seminary.

"In the judgment of its editors, what is known as evangelical Christianity is a purer and more adequate expression of Christianity than what is known as 'catholic' Christianity," said Dr. Craig. "According to the same judgment, what arrogates to itself the name of Modernism, in all its consistent forms of expression, is not Christianity at all."

The present situation in the Presbyterian Church in the United States is only one phase of a situation that prevails in the Protestant churches throughout the world, according to Dr. Machen's article in the new paper.

TAKES UP HAGUE PACT BILL

Hungarian Parliament in Bitter Debate on Bethlen's Work.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, May 16.—The Hungarian Parliament today voted the reading of a bill to ratify the Paris-Hague reparation agreements.

During debate on the measure Premier Bethlen answered bitter Opposition reproaches upon him. The Opposition charged that as he was himself on optant it was improper for him to represent Hungary in a question where the financial indemnification of the optants on the one hand had to be balanced against the general interests of Hungary on the other. Nothing could prevent a revolution unless the government policy changed, Emil Nacy, former Minister of Justice, said.

Count Bethlen replied that everybody in Hungary knew he was disinterested and that the agreements made at The Hague would make it easier for Hungary to raise her voice in international conferences.

SEES HOOVER ANGLE IN JERSEY CONTEST

SITUATION WAS EXPECTED

Wets Are Elated Over Morrow's Stand for Repeal, Drys by Fort's Challenge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Speculation as to the effect of their opposing candidacies on their relations with President Hoover was the chief reaction today of political Washington to the spectacle of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, a wet, and Representative Franklin Fort, a dry, contending for a Republican Senatorship from New Jersey.

Mr. Fort has been often referred to as a sort of spokesman for the President, and Mr. Morrow's political fortunes have been regarded as allied with those of Mr. Hoover.

According to Mr. Fort's announcement today, Mr. Frelinghuysen also "has been a loyal and unselfish friend for many years" of Mr. Hoover.

Neither Mr. Morrow's wet stand nor Mr. Fort's entry into the contest as a dry surprised Washington. Before Mr. Morrow's return from London it was predicted that he would express the views he did.

Mr. Fort's so-called "home-brew" speech in the House stamped him as a dry champion, and he recently announced that the dry cause would not be allowed to "go by default" in New Jersey.

The Anti-Saloon League let it be known that it was opposed to Mr. Morrow's candidacy on an "out-and-out wet platform" and it had been generally assumed that Mr. Fort would have the league's backing if he ran.

"That goes right back to where we were before we adopted the Eighteenth Amendment, and I don't think the country wants to do that," said Senator Jones, commenting on Mr. Morrow's view.

"Mr. Morrow is clever," Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democratic Representative from New Jersey, said, "but he did not have to go outside of New Jersey to get a platform. He is advocating exactly the same thing that is in my bill, now pending before the Judiciary Committee."

Of Mr. Fort's candidacy she said:

"It is as much of a puzzle to me as was his home-brew speech."

New Jersey politicians here say there is no doubt that Mr. Morrow will have the backing of the State organization and Representative Bachrach, dean of the State delegation in the House, virtually confirms it. But there was a fear that Mr. Morrow might split the wet support with his wet opponent, Mr. Frelinghuysen, and that Mr. Fort might "run home with the bacon."

CANNON REPLIES TO MORROW.

Bishop Holds Amendment Is Only Safeguard for Dry Communities.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, May 16.—Bishop Cannon gave out this statement today touching the candidacy of Dwight W. Morrow for the Senate:

"The Eighteenth Amendment was not adopted until it had become evident that any other form of Federal legislation would not protect the dry sections of the country from the wet sections, and it was adopted by the largest vote ever given for any constitutional amendment.

"For example, Virginia passed a State-wide prohibition law. Her liquor dealers went to Baltimore and proceeded to flood Virginia with liquor.

"If the manufacture and sale of intoxicants is legalized in any State, that State will become a legalized source of supply and distribution for the illicit trade throughout the country.

"No Federal legislation will avail to overcome the advantage of a legal status thus again given to the liquor traffic.

"The object of the Eighteenth Amendment is to protect society from selfish individualism. Dry communities cannot be expected to surrender the protection they have under the Federal law from the deluge of intoxicants which would come from legalized brewers and distillers in States which might legalize the traffic.

"It is regrettable that there are communities which do not desire to protect themselves from the evil effects of the liquor traffic, but the rest of the nation cannot be expected to surrender its protection because these communities fail to recognize this danger.

"Mr. Morrow declares the saloon 'must not come back', if the manufacture and sale of intoxicants is legalized in any State, there must be breweries, distilleries and places of distribution, whether called saloons or something else.

"Legalization, the removel of the brand of the criminal from the traffic is the fatal defect in Mr. Morrow's proposal. The State-controlled plan of Ontario, so highly extolled recently in Washington, has resulted in an increase of intoxicant consumption from $30,000,000 to $60,000,000 in three years. Certainly that is not a remedy to be recommended.

"Finally, Mr. Morrow ignores the fact that the moonshiner, the bootlegger and the law-violating and graft-producing liquor dealer were ever present before the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment and that bootlegging is not a new factor in the situation."

DEPLORES MORROW'S STAND

Rabbi Wise Regrets Prohibition Dominates Other Issues.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., May 16.—Speaking before a district Rotary Club Convention here today, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York deplored Dwight W. Morrow's campaign in New Jersey on the prohibition question.

"I regret to see every economic and social issue in America's political life subordinated to the liquor question," he said; "to find, for example, an outstanding statesman and leader such as Ambassador Morrow waging his battle for the Senate on the liquor issue."

MORROW WINS PRAISE FOR FRANK STATEMENT

Even Drys Hail Straightforward Stand, While Wets View It as Rallying Point for Drive.

The demand of Dwight W. Morrow for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and return of control of the liquor traffic to the States attracted wide attention yesterday not only in New Jersey but in New York, in Washington and elsewhere throughout the country.

The frank stand for constitutional repeal taken by the Ambassador to Mexico in the opening speech of his campaign in Newark Thursday night for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey, was hailed by prohibition opponents as an address which would serve as a keynote for a concerted drive for a change. Even the dry supporters, while voicing their disapproval of Mr. Morrow's position, commended the straightforwardness of his declaration.

While a good deal of the comment in New Jersey concerned the effect Mr. Morrow's address would have on the political situation there, in other sections the pronouncement was received as more in the nature of a general statement on prohibition. Mr. Morrow's prestige as a financier and diplomat gained his address for repeal unusual interest in widely scattered parts of the nation.

Governor Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey, a supporter of Mr. Morrow, praised the speech highly as "straightforward, courageous and definite."

Alexander C. Simpson, organization choice for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in New Jersey, commended the clarity of the statement.

The Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, which will support Representative Franklin W. Fort against Mr. Morrow, said: "I think he went the limit. He left the people in no doubt at all on his stand—a commendable thing. It leaves the people clear on his attitude on prohibition. The Anti-Saloon League absolutely will not support his candidacy."

Fred A. Victor, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, linked Mr. Morrow to Alfred E. Smith in his prohibition views and declared that Mr. Morrow had repudiated the Republican national platform.

"Perhaps Mr. Morrow has never read the national platform of the party to which he belongs," he said. "It was upon that platform that President Hoover was so overwhelmingly elected."

Mrs. Nina G. Frantz, president of the New Jersey W. C. T. U., said at her home in Moorestown that her organization was "no longer interested in the candidacy of Ambassador Morrow."

Miss Parkinson in Senate Race.

Miss Thelma Parkinson of Vineland, it was announced yesterday, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in New Jersey. She will seek nomination only for the "short term," from election day to March 4, and will not contest Alexander C. Simpson who is seeking only the "long term." Miss Parkinson has been a member of the Democratic State Committee since 1922.

MORROW STAND HIT BY FRELINGHUYSEN

Opponent of Ambassador Says State Liquor Control Would Bring Back Saloon.

SEES FLAWS IN PROPOSAL

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, opponent of Dwight W. Morrow for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in New Jersey, attacked Mr. Morrow's anti-prohibition position in speeches and over the radio last night as one which would bring back the saloon and other evils antedating the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Frelinghuysen said he agreed with Mr. Morrow that prohibition had failed and that the amendment should be repealed, but he voiced disapproval of Mr. Morrow's proposal for State control of liquor as a remedy. While Mr. Morrow, he said, had taken a stand against any return of the saloon, his plan left a loophole.

Mr. Frelinghuysen spoke at four meetings during a tour of Bergen County and later over Station WOR in Newark.

"There is a very vital point of difference between Mr. Morrow's attitude and my own," he said. "In reaching my conclusion that the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed I left no loophole for the return of the saloon, whereas, in spite of Mr. Morrow's stated opposition to the saloon his program must inevitably permit the return of the saloon under the advocacy of a State's rights policy for the regulation of the liquor traffic. It will mean a reversal of whatever progress has thus far been made. I am, as stated, in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment under the proper provisions."

Mr. and Mrs. Frelinghuysen will be greeted by Somerset County residents and campaign workers from other parts of the State at their Somerville home today.

REFUSE TO QUIT KWEIHSIEN.

Eight Americans Reject Plan to Leave With Armed Escort.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The eight Americans at Kweihsien, Kwangsi Province, China, for whom Douglas Jenkins, American Consul General at Canton, asked an armed escort from General Huang Shao-hung to permit their escape because of the danger from airplane bombardment, have elected to remain in their homes in Kweihsien, according to reports to the State Department today from Mr. Jenkins.

The State Department records show that the eight Americans in Kweihsien are Miss Annie Baillie of Turtle Creek, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Lackey Broaddus, and their two children, of Lancaster, Ky.; Miss Ethel Mattley of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Smith.

Argentinian Society Honors Kellogg, MacDonald, Guggiari

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, May 16.—The Argentine League for Universal Peace has awarded three peace medals to Frank B. Kellogg for his Briand pact outlawing war, to Ramsay MacDonald for his initiative in favor of diminishing naval armaments and to José Guggiari, President of Paraguay, whose stand for arbitration has prevented the possibility of a South American war.

The medals will be presented to the diplomatic representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Paraguay at a big peace meeting in one of Buenos Aires's theatres.

SCHWAB TO TESTIFY IN STEEL MERGER SUIT

Deposition of President Grace Is Also to Be Taken Here in Youngstown Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 16.—Attorneys arranged today to take depositions in New York, beginning May 26, from Eugene G. Grace, president, and Charles M. Schwab, chairman, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and from Grayson M.-P. Murphy, investment broker and director of Bethlehem, in the fight to prevent the sale of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company to the Bethlehem Company.

Officials of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, will be examined at the same time.

James A. Campbell, veteran chairman of the Sheet and Tube Company, testified that the merger of Bethlehem and Sheet and Tube was first discussed by him and Mr. Grace two years ago; that nothing has been done since the stockholders' meeting approving the plan to effect consolidation of the two companies, and that his salary last year from Sheet and Tube was $100,000, and in addition to that he received a bonus of $150,000, or a total of $250,000.

Asked about Mr. Grace's salary, Mr. Campbell said he does not think Mr. Grace received $1,500,000 compensation last year from Bethlehem, as suggested by Attorney Harry M. Crawford, who conducted the questioning.

Mr. Crawford's questions were directed toward an effort to show that Sheet and Tube stockholders did not get an opportunity to inform themselves fully as to the value of Bethlehem stock.

Mr. Campbell expressed the belief that President Grace of Bethlehem would permit the deal to fall through before he would reveal for public information the facts which were presented to the Sheet and Tube board about the Bethlehem organization.

NAPLES, May 16 (AP).—Ambassador John W. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett sailed today aboard the steamship Saturnia for New York, where they will spend several months.

mon, Essex County leader and supporter of Mr. Frelinghuysen, went so far as to voice the opinion that friends of Mr. Hoover inspired the Fort candidacy. Mr. Salmon said he was inclined to believe that the Morrow-for-President boom has produced this effect on the President's friends and that in view of Mr. Fort's close relationship with Mr. Hoover he could not account for the Representative's candidacy in any other way.

Against this was the contention of other leaders that Mr. Fort faced defeat in his own congressional district, where a wet Democrat is to be the candidate and that the Representative chose to run for the Senate nomination rather than face defeat for Congress on election day. On all sides it was predicted that despite the limited time for forming a working organization Mr. Fort would play a large part in the campaign and some forecast a victory for him, with the wet votes split between Mr. Morrow and Mr. Frelinghuysen.

Running for Long Term.

Mr. Fort disclosed in his statement that he would seek the nomination only for what is known as the "long term," that is the six-year term starting March 4, 1931. Mr. Morrow and Mr. Frelinghuysen are seeking nomination for both the "short" and the "long" terms. This situation arises from the fact that the New Jersey law permits the incumbent of the seat, Senator David Baird of Camden, to retain it only until election. The "short term" is for the period from election until March 4, when the "long term" starts. Mr. Morrow and Mr. Frelinghuysen will have their names on the ballots twice, while that of Mr. Fort will be printed only once.

Mr. Fort's Declaration.

Here is Mr. Fort's statement:

"I have determined to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator for the long term.

"I would not feel free to do this if it were not for the close relationship between both of my opponents and President Hoover. The suggestion made in advance in some quarters that my candidacy would carry an indication of any personal preference on his part is not only untrue but is utterly unjust to him, to the other candidates and to me. It is unjust to the President because his office necessarily makes it impossible for him to speak for himself in such a contest between Republicans in any State. It is unjust to the other candidates because it suggests a preference over Mr. Frelinghuysen, who has been the President's loyal and unselfish friend for many years, as I have especial occasion to know, and over Mr. Morrow, whose friendship and high standing the President has so signally recognized. It is unjust to me in denying me freedom of action in a matter involving my own deep convictions.

"The true motive for my candidacy is obvious. I am opposed to any return of the sale of intoxicating liquor under any known or suggested form of law or regulation. I believe in the Eighteenth Amendment and I am unwilling that my native State should, directly or indirectly, go on record for its repeal.

Views of His Opponents.

"Mr. Frelinghuysen stands for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment with a nebulous plan which can mean only the government's entrance into the liquor business. I am opposed to the government's entrance into any business—and, last of all, into the business of selling liquor.

"Mr. Morrow is more definite. He proposes simply a return to the legal status which prevailed prior to prohibition. His proposed new amendment confers no power or duty on the Federal Government which it did not always possess. Despite his denunciation of the saloon, he would 'restore to the States' every power they ever enjoyed to permit the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors, including the power to reopen the saloon.

"Until the Civil War the Constitution permitted States rights in the control of the traffic in slaves. Until the Eighteenth Amendment the Constitution permitted States rights in the control of the traffic in liquor. In each case the people solemnly resolved that the nation could not permit individual States to continue practices injurious to themselves and to the nation as a whole. There is no more chance of retreat from one position than from the other. The legalized traffic in liquor will never return in the United States.

"I recognize that apparently the odds are against my victory, that the people of New Jersey are supposedly more strongly against prohibition than are those of any other State. But I cannot believe that, after full and free discussion, their reasoned determination will follow their present apparent mood. At any rate, as a native Jerseyman, proud of my State and its fine career, believing in the unselfish patriotism of its people, I cannot permit the issue to go by default.

Reason for Late Decision.

"My decision is very late because, until last night, I could not believe that the national position of the Republican party on the Eighteenth Amendment would be flouted by all the candidates in a Republican primary. My ambitions have never looked toward the Senate, and I have refused many proffers of strong support both for appointment and nomination in the last year. But the primary system has no justification unless it affords a place for clarification of the party's attitude on questions of major public policy.

"My opponents are men of high character and distinguished public service. On all other real issues, I assume we are in practical accord. I hope that those who agree with me on prohibition will be satisfied with the opportunity my candidacy gives to vote their convictions and will not make the useless gesture of a third ticket at the election—an action which cannot advance their cause, but would simply result in the victory of a Democratic opponent of prohibition.

"I have no assurance of support from any organization. I have no organization of my own and no pledge of support from any existing group. So far as I know, no political leader of any consequence sympathizes with my candidacy. I have but a few thousands with which to match the financial strength of my opponents and their friends. I appeal for support—both personal and financial—from those who share my beliefs.

"I recognize fully the grief that my decision will cause the numerous and very true friends who differ from me or who find themselves pledged to some other candidate. My friendly feelings will not be diminished by their support of either of my opponents. But I know that they would think less of me if I were not true to my convictions at a time when, under new, able and powerful leadership, a principle in which I believe is threatened.

"The issue is prohibition—not friendship. The liquor traffic is outlaw and must so remain."

Long in Party Councils.

Mr. Fort entered the House of Representatives from the Ninth New Jersey District in 1924 and has won attention by his efforts in support of the Republican administration. He is the son of a former Governor of New Jersey and has been high in the councils of the party for some years. His home is in East Orange.

An unusual feature of his candidacy is that his sister, Miss Margeretta Fort, was a supporter of Mr. Morrow—she rode in the motor tour made by the Ambassador on Thursday—but when her brother announced his entrance into the race, she said she was with him in the fight despite her admiration of Mr. Morrow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—Lord Kylsant, chairman of the White Star Line, explained to the stockholders today that the building of the new superliner, the Oceanic, had been "deferred" so as to give time for deciding on the type of engines needed.

In a speech which abounded in optimism Lord Kylsant said nothing of the financial difficulties of the Royal Mail group, nor did he admit there was any severe slump in ocean passenger traffic. He said that last year the White Star Line obtained its full share of passenger traffic in proportion to its number of sailings, showed an increase in the average number of passengers carried on each sailing in comparison with the previous year and had a higher average for each sailing than any other North Atlantic line.

This relative position, he added, should be improved by the advent of the new motorshi Britannic, of 27,000 tons, which will start her maiden voyage on June 28.

"Though preparing, as far as possible, our plans and arrangements for the construction of the new Oceanic for this service, Lord Kylsant said, "we have decided to defer actively proceeding with the vessel for the present. In the existing shifting phase of marine engineering science the progress and development of varying types of engines are so rapid that it is naturally of the utmost importance to give the fullest and most mature consideration to the design of propulsive machinery for so large and costly a vessel, which, when completed, should be the last word in speed and equipment and, at the same time, should be able to hold her own as an economic proposition in the transatlantic trade."

After referring to the policy of the United States in giving large postal subventions and other assistance to American shipowners, Lord Kylsant delivered the latest of a series of hints from White Star sources that he would welcome a sort of shipping pool or amalgamation in the North Atlantic trade.

"It is manifestly the intention of the United States Government to support its own national lines by every means in its power," Lord Kylsant continued. "The North Atlantic service is well catered for by high-class tonnage, and there is urgent need for closer cooperation among those engaged in that trade. It is noteworthy that two great German shipping companies recently amalgamated their interests."

Admitting that owing to world trade depression the shipping outlook was "not as hopeful as might have been anticipated," Lord Kylsant expressed faith that business conditions would right themselves.

"I have always been an admirer of the wonderful resources, organizing power and business efficiency of the United States," he said, "and I feel confident their phenomenal prosperity will quickly revive. In conclusion, I may say the board is keenly alive to the position in the North Atlantic trade and is closely watching the developments with a view to taking whatever steps may be necessary in order to continue to keep the flag of this world-famous line in the forefront of transatlantic travel."

SENATE TARIFF TEST PUT OFF TO MONDAY

Smoot Delays Move to Release Conferees on Debenture and Flexible Clauses.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FIGHT

'SHOW-DOWN' MOOD GROWS

Norris, Progressive, Favors Test on Full Report, but Will Go Along With Minority.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Definite plans were made by Republican leaders in the Senate today to take its tariff bill back to the floor on Monday in a desperate effort to untangle the complicated situation in which the measure finds itself and start it on the road to a vote. The passage or failure of the bill will be at stake, it is declared.

Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee serves notice that on Monday he would call up a resolution which he offered, declaring it to be the sense of the Senate that its conferees should be relieved of their promise to return the export debenture plan and the flexible tariff provision to the Senate before they committed themselves on these clauses.

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders decided to stick by their guns in their program, opposing the move on the part of the Republican regulars. They will attempt to carry a substitute for the Smoot resolution and instruct the Senate conferees to adhere to the debenture and flexible tariff provisions.

Bill Hangs in the Balance.

The issue Monday will be whether the bill shall pass or die in conference, since it is said on all sides that if the Democrats should win in their program to have the Senate stand fast on the export debenture and flexible tariff provisions, the bill would, in effect, be dead. Its chance of passing at this session would be extremely remote, and if it should not pass at this session it is contended there would be little chance of its passing at all.

The test on the bill was to have been made today, but Senator Smoot explained that the Republicans would wait. The announcement met with grumbling from the Democrats, who said they were unable to depend on the Republicans acting as planned.

The charge was made on the floor by Senator Harrison of Mississippi and Senator Simmons of North Carolina that Republican regulars were determined to kill the tariff bill and not permit it to reach the White House.

Mr. Harrison declared that Mr. Smoot "was now the only man in the country that favored the bill," a statement which the Utah Senator denied, as well as the accusation that there was any intention on the part of the Republican regulars to kill the bill.

Watson Says Bill Would Die.

Democratic leaders in the conferences in which they decided tentatively to offer a substitute for the Smoot resolution demanding that the Senate adhere to the two main disputed points, planned to meet tomorrow to decide on procedure.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, admitted again that the outcome is in doubt, reiterating that if the opposition "sticks fast" it will "kill the bill."

Other Republican conferees were of the opinion, however, that there was good chance that the Senate would give them a free hand on the debenture and flexible clauses.

Much depends on the attitude of the Republican progressives. Senator Norris has announced his willingness to go along with the Democratic program, although he preferred to make the test on a completed conference report.

Senator Norris believed the bill's opponents would have a better chance in a fight on a conference report in which the debenture and flexible tariff provisions had been stricken out or modified.

Many Senators, however, seemed resolved on making Monday the day for a final showdown on whether there will or will not be a tariff bill.

Text of Smoot Resolution.

Senator Smoot said he will call up his resolution immediately after the Senate convenes Monday. It follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the majority members of the conference committee on the part of the Senate on the tariff bill should be relieved from the promise made by them that no agreement in conference on the export debenture or flexible tariff would be made until opportunity was afforded in the Senate for a separate vote on such items."

The Senator remarked that he and other Republican conferees had "perhaps made a mistake" in promising that before acting on the debenture and flexible tariff they would ask for instructions.

House conferees, he explained, had taken the position that there could not be a "full and free conference" as long as this pledge hung over the heads of the Senate conferees.

Senator Harrison protested to Senator Smoot over the Republican decision to postpone the test until Monday.

Says Smoot Alone Is for Bill.

"I am not finding fault with the Senator," he said. "He is living up to the spirit and letter of the promise he made to the Senate, but the Senator knows full well, or ought to know—every one else knows—that certain gentlemen, leaders of the Republican party who were enthusiastic for this bill, having heard from the country, are now cold on it, and in some mysterious way are trying to keep it from the White House, and they are trying to kill it. I am not referring to the Senator, because I think he is the only one in the country who is for this bill now."

"The Senator is entirely wrong there," Mr. Smoot replied, "and he can ascertain, I think, that a majority of the Senate is in favor of the bill. I rather think there are quite a number of other Senators who would like to see some legislation along the line of the bill as passed by the Senate."

"I feel," Senator Simmons interposed, "that the conferees on the part of the other branch of Congress have been rather obstinate about this matter and I cannot but concur in the suggestion of the Senator from Mississippi that their action indicates that they do not care to have this bill passed."

Senator Simmons declared that had the House conferees taken another conference report to the House, their Senate colleagues could have followed with another report to the Senate, thus paving the way for possible release of the Senate conferees from their obligation.

tion, a Challenge and a Promise." Extemporaneous—"How does the Constitution provide for changes in itself and yet protect itself against impulsiveness or haste?"

8. Jacob Lefkowitz, Alexander Haminton High School—"Thomas Jefferson and the Spirit of Religious Liberty." Extemparaneous—"What definite contribution was made to religious liberty by the Virginia statute of religious freedom?"

John W. Davis Presides.

Rollo Ogden, Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, called the meeting to order and after a brief explanation presented John W. Davis, former United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, as chairman. Mr. Davis introduced each of the contestants.

"It is my pleasant duty on behalf of THE NEW YORK TIMES to bid you welcome to this meeting," said Mr. Ogden. "The fact that THE TIMES has stood sponsor for this contest for years past is sufficient evidence of THE TIMES's belief in its benefits."

In presenting Mr. Davis, Mr. Ogden described him as "a great authority on the law of the Constitution." He referred to the widespread belief that the Supreme Court interpreted the Constitution, and suggested that the highest court often learned much about the law and the Constitution from the lawyers who practiced before it. Mr. Ogden in humorous vein suggested that the appointment of Mr. Davis as United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's had been designed to give other aspiring lawyers more opportunity to plead before the Supreme Court.

Mr. Davis in accepting the chairmanship of the meeting said:

"I count it, ladies and gentlemen, a really great occasion that calls us together here, and a public service of the highest order that THE NEW YORK TIMES and its associated newspapers and its enterprise are performing for the country at large, and the contestants in this contest in putting on foot this nation-wide oratorical contest concerning the Constitution.

"Every boy and girl who engages in it, no matter what the ultimate award may be, is inevitably a winner. A winner, first, because it calls their attention to the careful study of the great charter of our liberty, which every moment and every hour of our lives guides and guards and shepherds all those things which are most precious to a liberty-loving man or woman. And winners also because of the practice they get in public speaking.

"Now, tonight, I am told that this regular contest, embracing Westchester County, Greater New York and Northern New Jersey, has presented to us the choice flower of 70,000 contestants coming from 318 schools. Seventy thousand minds have been called to the Constitution. Seventy thousand have, with more or less success, endeavored to express to others the views they entertain on that great subject. That is a great achievement. And when we multiply it by seven we can see what a stupendous thing this is."

The Winning Oration.

The prepared speech of Mr. Peyser follows:

LIKE MAN—LIKE STATE.

It was the Greek philosopher Plato who said: "Like man—like State; governments vary as the characters of the men vary; States are made out of the human natures which are in them."

This hypothesis held true at the Federal convention held in the early Summer of 1787 at State Hall, Philadelphia.

The memorable convention was not a stroke of fortune. It came as the culmination of a multitude of hardships when the not-yet-united states were hopelessly tangled in the mire of discord and the quicksands of jealousy.

The herculean task which confronted the delegates was complex. In the last analysis they were not dealing with pen and ink, with imports and exports, with cotton bales and iron ore. They were working with men. Theirs was the task of welding four million human souls into one mass, of satiating those pioneers who were searching for prosperity, mistaking the success of their angry passion for illimitable strength. They had to form a nation of a band of Englishmen no longer English, of a tribe of Americans in an America not yet born.

Consequently they became, to some degree, psychologists. They were statesmen, soldiers, lawyers, bankers and philosophers, but, above all, they were students of human nature and American freemen.

While the States groped in darkness, the clarion call of a man's name rang from Maine to Georgia. Self-government was unknown in America and the victorious soldiery looked for their political defense to their hero and savior, the Commander-in-Chief, and, amid the shouts and acclaim of his people, Washington rode in state to Philadelphia and assumed the chair behind which flashed the golden rays of a painted sun.

An English scholar has called Washington the noblest figure that ever stood in the forefront of a nation's life. He was a Virginia gentleman, a man of action, turning from the erudition of statesmanship, foreseeing the United States of the future. The Commander-in-Chief left all the hair-splitting constitutional theory to those who came after, but before he assumed his official duties, as he stood there upon the raised platform, he is reported to have said: "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the good may repair. The event is in the hand of God."

Like man—like State * * * let us look at another of these men. In the glow of the painted sun, apparently oblivious to the convention, sat the erudite James Madison. He, who often has been called the "Father of the Constitution," looked like a shy young minister of 22. Madison, though, had studied the histories and the governments of the past. He had analyzed the fall of Rome, he had unsphered the spirit of Plato, and when finally his theories were crystallized they became synonomous with a nation's creed.

But the greatest mind, the ablest administrator and the most brilliant politician at the convention was the precocious Alexander Hamilton. True Hamilton made but one speech and was hissed to his seat; his conception of an American Utopia was far too radical. A colleague wrote of him at the time: "The gentleman from New York has been praised by every one but supported by none." Hamilton, the fiery, brilliant star; Hamilton, who was the master spirit of a nation's birth, was to have his day later, when he placed before a skeptical people a new and original scheme of the Federal Constitution.

Then, then, were these three men the three guiding spirits and most influential personalities at the convntion. Let this not detract from the mellow philosophy of the aged Franklin, the earnest debate of James Wilson and the sagacity of the other delegates, but among the galaxy of characters that strode the stage of this political drama in the forefront were Washington, Madison and Hamilton.

So we have traced the first phase of the development of American freedom. We have seen that before the convention the States were in confusion and turmoil. We have observed the difficulties that confronted the delegates, the huge task of meeting the controlling element of human nature. We have found the true success of the fathers of our country, first in the imperishable legal pattern that has braved the storms of calumny and war, and second in the undying spirit which transcends the law itself, that spirit which was recognized 2,000 years ago when Sophocles said in the words of his heroine Antigone: "I never deemed that thy decree, mere mortal that thou art, could override those unwritten and unfailing mandates which are not of today nor yesterday, but live forever, and no one know their birthtide."

We have watched the guiding spirits of the convention: Washington, the Chief Executive; Madison, the assiduous scholar, and Hamilton, the brilliant administrator. We have proved that the development of the American Constitution was due to the work of great men. Like man—like State.

Winner's Impromptu Speech.

The following is the extemporaneous address of Mr. Peyser:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Just one week ago I received a copy of a speech delivered by the Hon. Victor A. Berger, Socialist Representative from Wisconsin in the House of Representatives, lately deceased, which he delivered in 1924 in the House of Representatives. In this address he says, "Why should we be governed by a set of rules set down by a group of men who wore knee pants and who knew nothing of corporations and trusts."

Let us for the moment acknowledge to Mr. Berger the anachronism of the knee pants, but let us go on to reply to Mr. Berger that the Constitution was not meant to deal with corporations and trusts; that the Constitution is not a legal code, but a legal pattern, and that the citizen of 1787 and that the citizen of 1930 can benefit alike from this legal pattern, which is the Constitution.

Union One of Sentiment.

Let us see just what, specifically and concretely, these benefits are: First of all, paramount, essential, and one which cannot be forgotten, is that of union. If one studies the history of the Constitution carefully, one will find that it is nothing more than a development and a steady current of the nationalism sentiment. One will find that it is nothing more than the history of a sentiment that started with a loosely governed group of States and ended with its culmination at Webster's reply to Hayne in the Senate when the United States was a nation—a nation and a world power whose States were stalwart but minor, and whose States may be self-governing but nevertheless bow to the Federal law, and then we go on to some more Federal and State liberties which the Constitution assures to both the citizen of 1787 and the citizen of 1930. One finds that benefit of democracy.

The sages of 1787 were wise enough to eliminate the discrepancies which had come up with ultra-autocratic or ultra-democratic government and followed the advice of Aristotle, and we have the democracy now which will last forever perhaps.

Then we go on to the liberties which were assured in 1787 for the time to come, the liberty and the freedom of speech, the liberty and the freedom of the press, and finally that liberty which this Constitution cannot be without, that liberty of religion which has been dealt with so ably tonight.

Finds Fundamental Pattern.

And finally, we come to the last, the financial backing which was started with the untiring efforts of Alexander Hamilton and has proceeded in like measure until this present day.

Thus we have found the Constitution is not a code of laws. The Constitution is a legal pattern. We have found that the Constitution does not deal with corporations and trusts, and does not deal with the knee pants of the gentlemen whom Mr. Berger mentions. We find rather that the Constitution can govern the citizen of 1787 and the citizen of 1930 alike; and of the same fundamental pattern, and we find that the citizen of 143 years ago and the citizen of today can enjoy these liberties, first, of union, which is one and inseparable, to quote the phrase of Webster: "the liberty of democracy," the benefit of the personal liberties and liberty of religion, and finally, the financial backing.

Finally, is it not surprising the government and history of the governments of this country is one of change rather than development!

Tested on Impromptu Speech.

With the addition of extemporaneous speaking the eight contestants underwent a more thorough test as to their ability for research, thought and expression than in any former oratorical contest under the same sponsorship. Following the delivery of their six-minute prepared orations, each was assigned for extemporaneous discussion a single topic taken from his prepared speech. They were allowed a brief interval off-stage to study their assigned subject, and then four minutes were permitted for the impromptu discussion.

The judges considered equally the two discussions, giving attention to the substance of the speeches, the form of expression and the style of delivery. The judges balloted until three of them gave a first choice vote to one of the contestants. The same system will be employed in the national contest.

The five college heads who acted as judges were:

Dr. CLARENCE A. BARBOUR, Brown University.

Dr. GEORGE B. CUTTEN, Colgate University.

Dr. FREDERICK C. FERRY, Hamilton College.

Mrs. HELEN TAFT MANNING, acting president and dean of Bryn Mawr College.

Dr. JAMES L. McCONAUGHEY, Wesleyan University.

In the conduct of the regional finals THE NEW YORK TIMES had the cooperation of authorities in the field of public speaking. Professor Elmer W. Smith, head of the Department of English at Colgate University, had general supervision of the contest. He organized the Colgate extemporaneous speech contest in successful operation for the past fifteen years, contests after which the extemporaneous- feature of last evening's contest was fashioned.

Elmer E. Bogart, principal of Morris High School, the Bronx, was timekeeper. William J. Halloran, principal of Port Richmond High School, S. I., was proctor in charge of the contestants. Alfred A. Tausk, administrative assistant of the Boys' High School, Brooklyn, was marshal and directed the drawing of lots for places by the speakers and the counting of the ballots.

Dr. Gilbert J. Raynor, principal of the Alexander Hamilton High School, lent for the occasion his school's orchestra under the direction of Edward F. A. Zeiner, and the musical program included, in addition to orchestral numbers, organ selections played by Henry F. Seibert, organist of Town Hall.

Station WGBS of the General Broadcasting System broadcast the program on a 500-meter wave length.

Talking motion pictures of the eight contestants were taken by Fox Movietone News, which installed equipment in Town Hall and will show the pictures throughout the country.

Eight Prizes for Speakers.

The winner in the regional contest will represent New York City, Westchester, Long Island and Northern New Jersey in the national championship at Washington, D. C., on May 24, and will receive as a first prize a Summer trip to Europe, $1,000 in cash, the equivalent of four years' college tuition and a gold medal. The second prize includes $500 and a gold medal, and the third prize $250 and a gold medal. Five individual prizes of $50 each were awarded by THE NEW YORK TIMES to the other contestants, the presentation being made by President George J. Ryan of the Board of Education.

Last night's champion at Town Hall will meet six other regional winners in the national championship at Washington. Harold G. Campbell, Associate Superintendent in charge of New York City public high schools, will anounce the winner in that contest and will present the silver cup that goes to the national champion who will represent the United States in the International Oratorical Contest in Washington on Oct. 25.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior and former president of Leland Stanford Junior University, will make an address inaugurating the national contest. The nine judges will be:

Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, United States Senators James E. Watson of Indiana, Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, formerly of Yale University; James Couzens of Michigan and Pat Harrison of Mississippi; Dr. L. S. Rowe of the Pan American Union, Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University, and Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University.

COALITION HITS BACK; AMENDS SENATE RULES

Swanson Resolution, Doing Away With Committee of the Whole, Is Passed, 48 to 13.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A flareback from the overthrow of tariff coalition developed today when the Swanson resolution to modify the rules was put through the Senate, thus doing away with the consideration of legislative matters in the Committee of the Whole. The vote was 48 to 13.

Democratic and Progressive Republican forces proved supreme during the consideration of the tariff bill in the Committee of the Whole, which up to now has been the first stage in legislative business. Between the time when the bill was completed in the Committee of the Whole, however, and came up for reconsideration in the Senate, a logrolling combination had been formed, it was charged, with the result that the coalition was overthrown so far as the tariff rates were concerned.

Senator Swanson then introduced his resolution to do away with the Committee of the Whole and consider legislative business in the Senate once only. Two parliamentary stages were useless, he argued; they not only made log-rolling possible, but the procedure was a needless waste of time and unlike that of any other legislative body in the world.

The resolution amends the rules to permit Senators who have not voted to move for reconsideration. Heretofore only those who had voted in the affirmative could move for reconsideration.

The change becomes effective immediately.

Wins Eastern College Contest.

The Eastern semi-finals of the Sixth National Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest were held last night in the auditorium of Fordham University. James P. Casey of Fordham won and will enter the Eastern finals. Miss Phoebe Steffey of Maryland won second place. The other contestants were: W. Clark Hanna, Haverford; Philip P. Kotlar, Delaware; William G. Fennell, Yale; Orlo H. Maughan, Cornell; S. Richard Buscaglia, Canisius, and Max Lehman, Rutgers.

STEEL CARTEL FAILS TO REACH SOLUTION

Heads Adjourn Paris Session Without Settling Difficulties Laid to 'Individualism.'

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—The leaders of the European steel cartel, who have been meeting here to consider serious internal difficulties which are threatening the future of the great industrial combine, have been forced to adjourn without reaching a solution of the pressing problems. Another meeting will be held in the near future and, meanwhile, the cartel will continue to operate under the terms of the temporary accord.

It now seems certain the current difficulties will delay for many months the elaborate plans for the establishment of a world sales organization, by which the members expected to dispose of their products at a fixed export price and on a quota basis. The sales organization would eliminate many costly overhead charges and would make the cartel a much stronger contender for world trade, especially in the markets of the Far East and South America, where the cartel intends to concentrate much of its unified sales effort.

Six temporary unit sales offices will continue in operation in a limited way until the permanent organization begins to function, which, according to the present indications, will not be before the beginning of next year. No one here seems to doubt that the cartel will emerge from the present troubles as a bigger and stronger industrial force, but, for the moment, it is going through what some regard as its worst crisis.

The question is complicated by the widespread depression in the European steel and iron trades and by the necessity for a general price reduction. The latter question was discussed at the Paris meeting and reductions may be looked for in the very near future.

The existence of a surplus of 10,000,000 tons of European coal, 5,000,000 of which are in Germany alone, is expected soon to cause a reduction in the price of this commodity, and this, in turn, will facilitate the much-needed lowering of the cartel's prices.

The serious internal difficulties of the cartel, it is pointed out here, are aggravated by the "artificial stimulation" of the German export trade through the reduction of the prices tentatively agreed upon by the cartel. The tendency of the German industry to act for itself is reflected in other member countries, and one of the gravest issues before the cartel leaders is to find the best means of definitely checking the "individualism" of the members and replacing it by the cardinal principle of the cartel movement—wholehearted cooperative effort.

General Navy Board's Opposition to Treaty Is Revealed

in which Japan was now ahead of the United States.

When Senator Robinson asked Admiral Jones to reconcile the position of the General Board last September as favoring a considerable number of 6-inch gun cruisers with his testimony of yesterday against any 6-inch gun cruisers, he replied that without studying the record he could not remember the details of the arguments in the General Board when it reached its decision last Fall.

The board, he said, came to its conclusions "reluctantly," particularly as it did not wish to drop below the twenty-three 8-inch gun cruisers of the American building program. It stood upon twenty-one of this class as its irreducible minimum, he added.

Robinson Reads Memorandum.

Senator Robinson read from the memorandum as to what the board felt would constitute parity with Great Britain on a basis of 339,000 tons for each nation, as follows:

"The General Board is further of the opinion that if all of these principles be included in any agreement, that during the period of such an agreement the United States may, in a spirit of concession, agree:

"(a)—To accept the 339,000 standard tons proposed by the Prime Minister as the maximum tonnage in the cruiser category for the United States and the British Empire.

"(b)—To the proposal of the Prime Minister to scrap the four Hawkins 7.5-inch gun cruisers and three 6-inch cruisers, that will be less than twenty years of age by Dec. 31, 1936, prior to that date, and to replace them by new 6-inch gun cruisers.

"(c)—Not to exercise the freedom of choice of unit size and gun calibre, and to agree to build not more than 210,000 standard tons of 10,000-ton 8-inch units, and agree to utilize the remaining available tonnage, namely, 58,500 standard tons, in building not more than eight cruisers armed with guns not exceeding six inches in calibre."

First Statement on Parity.

"Now," said Senator Robinson, "that was the first statement during the period which is involved in this discussion by the General Board as to what would cnostitute parity. The aggregate tonnage of that first statement is 339,000 tons, exactly the same as the British tonnage in cruisers.

"In that statement let me point out that there was no concession whatever. Not a single ton was conceded by the General Board on account of the superiority, in its opinion, of the 8-inch gun cruiser. The General Board demanded exactly the same tonnage that the British were demanding, notwithstanding it was insisting on twenty-one 8-inch gun cruisers, and the General Board did not in that statement request or insist upon or suggest, for that matter, more than twenty-one of the 8-inch gun cruisers. Are you familiar with the record?"

"I don't remember that," Admiral Jones replied.

"I call your attention to that," said Mr. Robinson, "for the reason that you said a while ago that the board really wanted a greater number of cruisers than it asked for; that it wanted twenty-three, but reluctantly consented to twenty-one.

Board "Never Suggested More."

"I point out to you the fact that throughout the investigation and the studies that were being made in preparation for the London conference, the General Board never suggested more than twenty-one of these 8-inch ships, and in its first proposal as to parity never conceded a ton on account of the alleged superiority of the 8-inch cruisers."

"Well," said Admiral Jones, "all of the discussions and all of the talk that I have had within the General Board was the desire to carry out our original building program of twenty-three, and I do remember when they came down to the twenty-one they reluctantly did it for the purpose of effecting agreement."

As for the arrangement at London for only eighteen instead of twenty-one 8-inch gun cruisers for the United States, Admiral Jones said later.

"It was brought up very often that only three ships stood between us and agreement. But those three ships were to my mind vital, and particularly vital, in that we were required in accepting that to violate and to repudiate what we have been standing for ever since this thing started."

"Yardstick" Called "Camouflage."

In cross-examining Admiral Jones Senator Robinson also brought out, to the visible embarrassment of the officer, that in discussions last year with high officials he had referred to the celebrated "yardstick" for measuring equivalent naval values as "mere camouflage."

The question of the General Board's position in favor of 6-inch gun cruisers was first brought out by Senator Reed with Admiral Bristol on the stand. Senator Reed read from the memorandum of the board as follows:

"The General Board, in an earnest endeavor to reach an agreement on the basis of the proposed British cruiser category of 339,000 standard tons as of Dec. 31, 1936, is willing for this purpose to accept as representing parity with that category on that date a cruiser category of the United States consisting of 10,000-ton 8-inch-gun cruisers, 210,000 standard tons; 7,050-ton cruisers, Omaha Class, 70,500 tons; five new 6-inch gun cruisers, about 75,000 tons, total about 315,500 standard tons."

"Do you agree with that?" Mr. Reed asked.

"If you would read all of it," Admiral Bristol replied, "I think I can say that I do agree with it."

Senator Reed said he had read the conclusion, and that it proposed twenty-one 8-inch-gun cruisers and fifteen 6-inch-gun cruisers.

Admiral Bristol contended that the board was trying to go as far as it could in the direction of an agreement with Great Britain, and was going to great lengths in order to prepare the way for a successful conference at London.

The fact that the General Board had proposed, only shortly before, a cruiser arrangement with Great Britain on a higher basis for the United States was brought out later by Senator Robinson, when Admiral Jones was testifying.

Bristol Speaks for Navy Board.

Admiral Bristol began his testimony by reading a prepared statement in behalf of the general board, which, he said, represented the views of the board after many conferences and pertained to the London treaty.

Reviewing the policy of the board as defined in 1922 after the Washington conference and made public at that time, he said that the board had stood for maintaining the 5-5-3 ratio in all categories, having a navy second to none and preserving at all times a strength of 1 2-3 over Japan in cruisers.

The board had particularly declared for the construction of only 10,000-ton 8-inch-gun cruisers, although it was favoring the completion of the ten 7,050-ton cruisers armed with 6-inch guns of the Omaha class, which were then under construction.

Navy Board Policy.

This basic policy was revised in 1928, after the Geneva conference in 1927, but with no vital changes, and has since stood as the policy of the general board. It follows:

BUILDING AND MAINTENANCE POLICY.

To build and maintain an efficient, well-balanced fleet in all classes of fighting ships in accordance with the capital ships ratios; and to preserve these ratios by building replacement ships and by disposing of old ships in accordance with continuing programs.

To make superiority of armaments in their class an end in view in the design of all fighting ships.

To provide for great radius of action in all classes of fighting ships.

CAPITAL SHIPS.

To prepare and maintain detailed plans for new capital ships construction.

To replace existing capital ships in the years specified in accordance with treaty provisions.

To keep all retained capital ships modernized as far as treaty terms permit and good practice justifies.

AIRCRAFT CARRIERS.

To build and maintain aircraft carriers tonnage allowed by the Washington treaty limiting naval armament.

To design aircraft carriers with hangar space such that the maximum number of heavy class planes may be carried.

CRUISERS.

To support the fleet and protect our commerce, replace all old cruisers with modern cruisers of 10,000 standard tons displacement carrying 8-inch guns and, in addition, to build similar cruisers at a rate that will maintain effective cruiser tonnage in conformity with the capital ship ratios, as established by the Washington treaty limiting naval armament.

SMALL CRUISERS AND GUNBOATS.

To build no small cruisers.

To build replacement gunboats as required.

DESTROYERS.

To build and maintain effective destroyers tonnage in conformity with the capital ship ratios, giving priority to destroyer leaders.

SUBMARINES.

AIRCRAFT.

(Heavier Than Air.)

To direct the development and employment of naval aviation primarily to the fulfillment of its principal mission—namely, operations at sea with the fleet.

(Lighter Than Air.)

To complete the rigid airships now under construction or appropriated for with a view to determining by operations, primarily with the fleet, their utility for military operations.

To build only such non-rigid airships as may be necessary for training purposes.

Program Planned in 1927.

Admiral Bristol then pointed out that in 1927, after the Geneva conference, a five-year building program was recommended and was based on the assumption of Great Britain's announced building program for 8-inch gun cruisers up to and including the year 1929, and laying down an average of about 30,000 tons each year for the next four years.

"According to the program," he said, "Great Britain would have had 336,000 tons of such cruisers in 1936 and 177,636 tons of cruisers mounting guns of less calibre than 8-inch. The program for the United States would have provided for completing in 1932 130,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers and having laid down or building in 1936 150,000 tons, a total of 280,000 tons.

"There would have been ten cruisers of the so-called Omaha class of 70,500 tons, which were the result of the 1916 building program. It must be particularly remembered that they were recommended as a part of our fleet when six battle cruisers were to be built. Since the Washington treaty, whereby the battle cruisers were scrapped, only 8-inch cruisers have been recommended.

"Also it was specifically recommended to build no more light cruisers—6-inch gun cruisers. Further remember that Great Britain, if she scraps five capital ships now, will have three of these battle cruisers remaining with 31.5 knots speed.

77,400 Tons of Destroyers.

"This five-year program further provided for building 77,400 tons of new destroyers, 72,687 tons of submarines, 69,000 tons of aircraft carriers and laying down 175,000 tons of battleships and a five-year building program of airplanes. If this building program had been completed the cost by 1936 would have been $1,358,000,000."

Continuing his statement of the General Board's views, Admiral Bristol submitted a table detailing the proposed expenditure under the London treaty, and compared these figures with the previous program of the General Board.

The table estimated completed building by Dec. 31, 1936, under the treaty as follows:

Sixteen 8-inch cruisers, totaling 160,000 tons, at a total cost of $272,000,000, the sixteenth to be laid in 1933.

Ten 6-inch cruisers, totaling 73,000 tons, at a total cost of $135,415,000.

Thirty-two thousand seven hundred and ten tons of submarines, to cost $110,396,250, including 7,610 tons of replacements.

Sixty-nine thousand tons of aircraft carriers, to cost $95,013,000.

This would total 467,100 tons, at a cost of $1,031,324,250. The amounts spent on ships still under construction Dec. 31, 1936, would total $42,251,625, making the total treaty cost $1,073,575,000.

"Thus the expenditures by the London treaty," Admiral Bristol said, "would be less than the five-year building program by about $285,000,000, but in 1936 we would have scrapped eight battleships, having fifteen remaining, of which five would be of the latest design and new ships, instead of fifteen old ships.

"Also we would have twenty-eight 8-inch cruisers, the type we need, instead of eighteen, and a number of 6-inch cruisers which are not suited to our needs; also the categories of destroyers and submarines would be in a better condition."

Further outlining the views of the General Board, Admiral Bristol insisted that there was no desire to build a fleet in competition with any other power, but merely one second to none that would deter any nation from attacking the United States.

He was interrupted by Senator Borah, who asked how competitive building would be avoided in such circumstances.

"I will admit," Admiral Bristol answered, "that in a certain sense it would be in competition, there is no question about that; but the idea was not to institute competition between the two nations if it could possibly be avoided, and it would not be our intention to compete, but simply to maintain a parity."

Britain's 1927 Claims Criticized.

Resuming his statement of the General Board's views, Admiral Bristol said:

"The conference of Geneva really failed because Great Britain claimed a cruiser tonnage which in no way represented a reduction of armaments but a real increase, with great expenditures of money by all three countries. Great Britain, in spite of the Washington treaty, put forward a claim for dividing the cruiser category into two classes, which, if agreed to, would have been very much against United States interests.

"If the London treaty had not been negotiated and if we had continued to carry out the Washington treaty for replacing battleships, and at the same time completed the fifteen 8-inch cruisers, the twelve destroyers, the nine submarines and the one aircraft carrier already authorized, we could have had in 1936 five new battleships, twenty-three cruisers of the type best suited to our navy and made progress in replacing old destroyers and submarines at a cost somewhat less than the London treaty program."

Then, declaring that he was in full accord with the recommendations of the General Board, and that he believed these also "express the consensus of opinion of the navy," he said:

"There are several questions in connection with the London treaty which in my opinion must be considered in the light of what action with regard to that treaty is for the best interests of our country now and in the future.

He Asks Series of Questions.

"If this treaty is finally ratified, will it develop an international feeling of good-will and mutual respect generally or even between the five contracting powers, which feeling is essential to the preservation of peace in the world?

"Was it necessary to negotiate such a treaty at this time?

"Does this treaty provide for limitation of armaments? Reduction of same? Parity between Great Britain and the United States and the proper ratio between the strengths of the fleets of Japan and the United States?

"Has it really reduced the cost to the United States of a navy which we should have second to none and to preserve peace by deterring other nations from disregarding or lightly considering our legitimate rights? Is the treaty a square deal?

"If it was necessary to come to an agreement for limitation of armaments, were we justified in giving up our naval policy most carefully prepared and observed for over seven years?

"Is it for our best interests to abandon the principles with regard to parity which were established by the Washington conference, claimed at the Geneva conference, supported by our government's policy and confirmed by Congress?

"Is it fair that we should agree to other nations' defining the number and types of ships we require for our fleet in any category? Will it not be to our advantage to put off replacing our battleships and developing our navy economically and suited to our needs?

"I desire to point out the necessity of avoiding the establishment of bad precedents by the London treaty, which might readily embarass us in future negotiations. These precedents seem to me very evident, but as examples, what will result if we accept the proposed ideas of parity and ratios? Started along these paths, where will we stop?"

With his direct statement completed, Admiral Bristol was subjected to cross-examination by the committee.

Senator Johnson of California inquired if it was necessary for the protection of American commerce that the 5-3 ratio with Japan should be preserved.

"That is my belief," replied Admiral Bristol.

"Does the London treaty retain the ratio of 5-3 with Japan?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"It does not," Admiral Bristol said. "If any difficulty should arise between Japan and the United States that might result in war, or even threatening war, the United States would necessarily have to carry the campaign into the waters of Japan.

Senator Reed—"Why, Admiral?"

Admiral Bristol—"On the principle that the best defense in the world is a decided offensive."

Q.—She could not bring the war to us, could she? A.—She would not bring the war to us.

Q.—Then our nation would be safe, would it not? A.—Our nation would be safe from invasion, but we would lose the war. You do not have to invade a country to be successful in war.

Philippine Question Raised.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas introduced the element of the Philippines and their place as a factor in naval strategy. A long colloquy ensued, in which Senator Black of Alabama joined as to the results of giving up the Philippines.

Admiral Bristol disliked to admit that the Philippines might be turned loose, but finally, when the Alabama Senator asked if "the fact that we have the Philippines makes it necessary to have a larger navy than if the Philippines had their freedom," Admiral Bristol said, "not materially so."

From this point Senator Reed developed the factors entering into the 5-3 ratio with Japan.

"You say," he asked, "we have not a ratio of 5-3 with Japan under the London treaty and that, therefore, we would be greatly handicapped. We have 5-3 in battleships, have we not?"

"Practically," the Admiral replied.

"We have slightly better than 5-3, have we not?" inquired Mr. Reed.

"I do not carry the exact figures in my mind," the Admiral said, "but for the present I accept your statement."

Senator Reed—"I supposed that you knew. The fact is that we do have 5-3 in number of battleships; and we have better than 5-3 in tonnage. We have 5-3 in aircraft carriers do we not?"

Admira,l Bristol—"Yes."

Q.—We have 5-3 in 8-inch chuisers, have we not? A.—The cruisers, according to the London treaty would make the ratio of Japan 3.44 against 5.

Q.—In 8-inch cruisers? A.—Yes, that is right; and in destroyers she would have 3.5.

Ratio Changed, Says Bristol.

Admiral Bristol insisted, however, that Japan had more than a ratio of 3 under the London treaty.

"We arrived at the ratios in the Washington treaty of 5 and 3," he said, "and there has been a change in it in the London treaty."

"The reason it has been changed," Mr. Reed retorted, "and the way it has been changed has been that Japan has more than 5 to 3 in light cruisers, in destroyers and in submarines. That is so, is it not? Now which of those three is the important factor that makes it so difficult for us to carry on the operations that you have in mind?"

"As an example," said Admiral Bristol, "in view of the fact that Japan is operating in her home waters, we would have to have a very much larger proportion of cruisers to operate in those same waters on account of the distance at which we would have to operate. Therefore, even with 5-3 I think, as Admiral Jones said yesterday, it is really, under existing conditions, considering all the circumstances, 5-5 plus."

"In other words," said Mr. Reed, "Japan has an advantage in operating in her home waters."

"Yes sir, that is the point," responded the Admiral.

"Just as we have over Great Britain or anybody else," said Mr. Reed. "Admiral, is it Japan's large number of 6-inch cruisers that, in your judgment, is such an important factor?"

"No," was the reply.

"Then," said Mr. Reed, "it does not matter that she has 10-7 in the 6-inch cruisers?"

Bristol Cites "General Principle."

"It is the general principle of the percentage of tonnage which she has," Admiral Bristol answered. "Parity by ratios should be based upon the tonnage allowed, with each nation allowed to build within the category that ship which she believes is best for her naval operations. Therefore, when you begin to talk about 6-inch cruisers and 8-inch cruisers, you have got into a detail that does not explain the situation."

Here Senator Reed read the memorandum from the White House on the General Board's views last September toward 6-inch-gun cruisers as a possible compromise with Great Britain through an American strength of twenty-one 8-inch, 10,000-ton cruisers, ten of the Omaha class of 7,050 tons, each mounting 6-inch guns, and five new 6-inch-gun cruisers of an aggregate tonnage of about 75,000.

Admiral Bristol had not returned from the Orient at the time, but he said he had read the memorandum and agreed with it.

"But," he added, "that recommendation is based upon the fact that the General Board was trying to give the maximum concession for the purpose of arriving at an agreement and preventing the conference from failing."

"I understand," said Senator Reed, "but the General Board at that time, on Sept. 11, stated that twenty-one 8-inch gun cruisers and fifteen 6-inch gun cruisers would, in its opinion, constitute parity.

"The London treaty provides for eighteen 8-inch gun cruisers and approximately eighteen or nineteen 6-inch gun cruisers; and, as I take it, your objection to the treaty is based soley on the fact that out of those thirty-six cruisers three are armed as Admiral Pratt prefers and not as you prefer. Is that it?"

Says There Is No "Yardstick."

Admiral Bristol—"I am objecting to the principle—"

Senator Reed—"What is the principle?"

Admiral Bristol—"That in a category there is any yardstick at all used; and that, I can also state, is the opinion of the General Board. That there is no such thing as use of a yardstick; that it was not anything that we recommended.

"We utilized the so-called yardstick and counted in age. We made that which we considered was a maximum concession under the circumstances, but we said that under no circumstances, also, if you will read, should we go below twenty-one 8-inch gun cruisers, and we said that the tonnage should be 315,000 tons."

Senator Reed—"Very good, but the General Board asked for 315,000 tons, against Great Britain's 339,000 tons. Instead of coming home with 315,000 tons that the General Board asked, we came home with 323,500 tons. So that in tonnage the General Board got more than it asked for, did it not?"

Admiral Bristol—"The tonnage is increased, yes."

Senator Reed—'Yes; and the only way in which the treaty falls short of the General Board's requirements is that three out of thirty-six cruisers are to be armed other than the General board wishes."

Admiral Bristol—"But the fact is that you have eighteen cruisers; you have reduced the number by three you have reduced the number, rather, by five, because the General Board in its recommendation held to the twenty-three that Congress had already authorized, and five for which it had appropriated. So you came down from twenty-three to eighteen.

Question Broader, He Insists.

"Again, let me point out that the question of three cruisers one way or the other in a discussion of that tonnage is not the real point. The real point is how are these cruisers going to be utilized; where are they needed for the protection of our commerce?

"Cruisers are not only designed as tactical units of the fleet, but they are intended for the protection of our commerce, convoying it in far-distant waters, for munitions that we require in war that we cannot get in this country, and they are also intended for the purpose of raiding the lines of communications of other countries in far-distant waters; and the number and tonnage of cruisers that we require is based upon those principles, not upon the question of eighteen or twenty-one as simple figures in a proposition."

"Very good, Admiral," said Mr. Reed, "but have you not noticed that the total tonnage of six-inch cruisers which we have provided for will enable us to build eight of a tonnage of better than 9,000 tons apiece, which the experts tell us will have as good a cruising radius as your present eight-inch cruisers?"

"I contend," said Admiral Bristol, "that this is the opinion of the experts that I have given, and the opinion of the best experts we have in the navy."

Committee Recalls Jones.

Admiral Bristol was then excused until Monday, so that Rear Admiral Jones might be further cross-examined concerning some of his criticisms of the London treaty yesterday.

Senator Reed asked Admiral Jones if the General Board's memorandum of last September on a cruiser strength for the United States of twenty-one 8-inch gun ships and the rest 6-inch gun ships did not mean that the London treaty falls short of the board's requirements only as to the character of guns on three cruisers.

"That may be called the point of difference," Admiral Jones replied, "but I consider that a very vital point, where we agree to substitute for these three units that are particularly suitable for our needs, a tonnage that is not so suitable for us."

"That was one of the concessions we made," Mr. Reed explained. "There were similar concessions made by the other countries, were there not? For example, you remember the insistence of Japan on a large tonnage of submarines."

"But I would like to say," Admiral Jones replied, "that in accepting that situation and accepting the two types of cruisers which this entailed we are violating the stand which we have persistently maintained since we started in on the Preparatory Commission in 1926 and in all the conferences that we have attended. It violated our fundamental method respecting limitation and reduction of armament."

Reed Cites Japan's Concessions.

"Yes," said Mr. Reed, "and the agreement similarly violates the fundamental rules laid down by the Japanese Admiralty in demanding a great tonnage of submarines and relatively small tonnage of destroyers and light cruisers."

"In all conferences that we have been to," said Admiral Jones, "any instructions to the delegations that have gone abroad prior to this last one and in all making up of the agenda, the instructions were to firmly maintain the principles and the ratios established at the Washington conference."

Senator Reed—"Quite regardless of the status quo?"

Admiral Jones—"Sir?"

Senator Reed—"Quite regardless of the status quo?"

"I did try very hard," said Admiral Jones, "in the early part of 1929 to find a method of dealing with the situation as far as it was possible to do on the status quo, and not only with ourselves, but with Japan, and that was particularly in the cruiser category. And in that effort we worked out a plan which gave rise to what was commonly known as the yardstick."

Senator Reed then declared that Japan at present was superior to the United States in cruisers, yet under the London treaty would stand still while the United States built faster.

Admiral Jones, however, would not admit that this represented an advantage to the United States, should this country enter the 1935 naval conference with a "frozen" cruiser equipment through building to the limits of the London treaty.

Jones Desires Freedom of Action.

Senator Reed—"But everybody who comes to the 1935 conference will come with equal freedom of action, will they not?"

Admiral Jones—"Not unless you raise the limit. We won't have freedom of action unless you raise the limit. We are tied."

Q.—But we are not tied beyond 1936 any more than they are. A.—But we surely don't want to accept something now which we must realize that in 1935 we have got to raise the limit in order to readjust a possibility that is open to the others.

Q.—It would seem to me we have the same right to insist on our point of view in the next conference as they have. A.—That is very true, sir, but if you have the tonnage built up you cannot do that unless you raise the limit.

Senator Reed—Not at all. They will have the tonnage built up too.

"Pardon me, sir," interposed Admiral Jones. "The British will have 86,000 tons that go out by virtue of their age in 1936 and 1937 and 1938 that they may very easily start to replace—tonnage, now, mind you, sir—begin to replace in 1934."

"But," said Mr. Reed, "they would have to replace it with 6-inch guns, would they not?"

"I do not think so," rejoined Admiral Jones, "as to the letter of this treaty."

"I think the treaty provides that," Mr. Reed said, "if you will read it again, Admiral. And we will have 70,000 tons of Omahas almost at maturity and have a perfectly free hand to insist that we can put that into anything we wish."

Reed Sees Advantage in 1935.

As for the Omaha class of cruisers, Senator Reed insisted that at the next conference the United States would have the right to ask that they be scrapped and replaced with something else. Moreover, he contended that if America built with "any intelligence" during the next six years, "we will be in a far better trading position when the 1935 conference comes than we were this year."

"No," rejoined Admiral Jones, "I do not think so, if we build up to what this treaty says, if we build up to 143,000 tons of the 6-inch gun cruisers Great Britain, witnout building at all, will have, beginning in 1934, 86,000 tons free, going out under this treaty."

"At least," insisted Mr. Reed, "we will come into the conference owning a real navy instead of a paper one."

"Yes, sir, we will come into that conference with a real navy," Admiral Jones declared, "a good part of it in a type of units that we really do not want, sir. We want the other type."

When Senator Swanson inquired if the original "yardstick" for the 8-inch gun cruisers of the United States was applied to determining the number of 6-inch gun cruisers permitted in the London treaty, Admiral Jones maintained that "that original yardstick is not, to my mind, applicable in this treaty, because the original yardstick was devised really to take care of what was actually built, building, and appropriated for."

Robinson Enters Discussion.

Then Senator Robinson of Arkansas returned to the General Board's memorandum of last September on cruiser parity with Great Britain and disclosed what Senator Reed, in his earlier reference to this subject, had not brought out—that the General Board had put in an earlier suggestion calling for the same cruiser tonnage as Great Britain, with a superiority of 8-inch-gun ships.

Admiral Jones insisted that the board had taken its position "reluctantly."

"To refresh your memory," said Senator Robinson, "when this first proposal carrying the 210,000 tons in the 8-inch cruisers, and 58,500 instead of 35,000 in the 6-inch-gun cruisers, was reported to the President, did he or not call to your attention the fact that no allowance had been made whatever for the alleged superiority of the larger cruisers, and did he ask you about the yardstick, and did you say 'Oh, well, the yardstick is mere camouflage?'"

"I said that the yardstick all the time, sir, was a certain amount of camouflage, yes," replied Admiral Jones.

Senator Reed asked if Admiral Jones thought Great Britain would stand still on construction if there were no London treaty, and suggested that the United States under those conditions would have to build many more than twenty-three big cruisers.

Admiral Jones replied that "we wanted to stop her" at twenty-three, and Senator Reed rejoined that "under the treaty she has been stopped at fifteen."

Robinson Asks About Shift.

Senator Robinson asked Admiral Jones to reconcile his statement of yesterday in favor of a cruiser fleet entirely of 8-inch-gun ships, with the September recommendation of the board to the President for the construction of 58,500 tons of 6-inch ships.

"I confess that I don't remember the arguments that led up to that," Admiral Jones responded. "I know there was much discussion in the General Board at the time as to the existing program."

In response to questions from Senator La Follette as to how far the United States should build up to the treaty limits in 6-inch-gun ships, Admiral Jones said:

"I would recommend that we build five, because it just so happens that that gives us within the tactical organization of our fleet 6-inch-gun cruisers, the better unit under the guns of the battleships. However, that is as far as I want to go."

Further in response to Senator La Follette, Admiral Jones said that while building up to the treaty limits in cruisers would, in his opinion, give the United States a "frozen category" when it entered the 1935 conference, nevertheless failure to undertake this construction would defer the completion of tonnage in auxiliaries that he had long hoped would be added to the fleet in the next few years.

Jones Gives Background of Parley.

During the three-quarters of an hour that he was with the Naval Affairs Committee Admiral Jones sketched the background of the naval conferences, beginning with his membership on the Preparatory Commission in 1926. This was organized in relation to the Geneva Conference of 1927, he testified, but the commission never has been disbanded, being in recess, subject to call by the President.

Asserting that a reduction of armaments does not necessarily lessen the probability of war, Admiral Jones told the committee that he had insisted on a fleet sufficiently strong to defend the United States abroad and in her overseas possessions, and to protect trade routes. This requires a navy "second to none," he added.

GENERAL BOARD OPPOSES TREATY

His testimony before the Naval Affairs Committee did not extend sufficiently far today to reach into the question of cruisers and the relative merits of 8-inch or 6-inch-gun vessels, which has become the chief point of discussion in the hearings.

"In all the conferences we attended," the Admiral testified, "we sought no special advantages, but insisted that we must not be put at a disadvantage."

He was informed, he added, that this sentiment was not held by all delegates from other countries, but he would not commit his own views as to their attitude.

Geographical Problems Cited.

"We sought equal opportunity in the economic fiscal life of the world," he continued, "and in seeking that opportunity certain conditions were necessary in view of the geographical conditions and our lack of bases."

That condition is made acute for the United States by its lack of bases in the Pacific especially, he said.

"We need great sea distance in our fleet and a power of survival, or offensive," he continued. "We must consider those operations at a distance. When a unit sent out exhausts her fuel or whatever of her supplies, she must return home. She also must have the power at all times to take care of herself.

"If a ship is acting as guard for a convoy, she cannot use her superior speed to run away, but must stand and fight."

"I think that is a very good statement of our needs," commented Senator Walsh of Massachusetts.

This statement by Admiral Jones was preparatory to an exposition of our need of eight-inch-gun cruisers for convoy purposes, a point which he made yesterday in testimony before the Foreign Relations Committee.

Speaking more specifically, Admiral Jones turned the attention of the committee to the Pacific, stating:

"Should the necessity of a Western Pacific campaign come about, we must carry our forces there. That need is imposed by the fact that we have physical possessions in that area.

"Even if we had no possessions there, there are other questions to be considered so long as we stick to our national policies of the open door and the Chinese integrity. We must be prepared to defend those policies, and in a campaign we must move to that area."

Must Keep Supply Routes Open.

A further consideration essential to this premise, Admiral Jones testified, is that of keeping open lines of supply over a route of 5,000 miles.

Admiral Jones explained these considerations both to the British and the Japanese in 1926 and 1927, he testified, adding that this nation in 1926, as now, was opposed to the "global" method of limitation, or agreement through which fleet tonnage limits only would be set, without regard to limits on various types of vessels.

"No decision was reached on the basis of limitation at that preparatory conference, was it?" asked Senator Hale of Maine, the chairman.

"No decesion as to the method of reduction ever has been reached," replied the witness.

"Great Britain, however," he continued, "never has questioned our right to parity. The only question to be considered is 'what is parity'?"

The belief that Japan under the most limited conditions ranks actually stronger in the Pacific Ocean than this country also was expressed by Admiral Jones.

Japan Stronger, He Says.

"In 1927 I talked with the Japanese delegates," he said. "They at that time claimed a ratio of 10-7 instead of 5-3 in relation to us. But my conviction then was that under existing conditions the 5-3 ratio, as laid down, amounted in reality to 5 plus for them to 5 for us."

"That is," asked Senator Oddie of Nevada, "their bases and our lack of bases gives them the advantage over us?"

"Yes," said Admiral Jones. "We would need to operate two and one-half vessels in the Far Pacific to their one."

Admiral Jones also testified that while the United States wished to consider sea armaments as individual factors alone in the conferences, some of the Continental countries of Europe held that land, sea and air are integrally related, a condition which he admitted holds true there.

He will resume his testimony before the Naval Committee on Monday.

Sea Shells Fall From the Sky In Danville (Va.) Hailstorm

Special to The New York Times.

DANVILLE, Va., May 16.—Sea shells fell during a hailstorm here Wednesday. J. C. Womack, a local resident, displayed a pocketfull of shell fragments which he found on his porch.

The shells were not noticed until one of the Womack children called the attention of his father to them. They were small pieces lying amid the hail stones. Examination revealed their nature clearly.

The theory is that the shells were swept aloft in a cloud off the coast and fell of their own weight when the storm spent its force.

PRESIDENT EXPECTS VISIT FROM DAWES

When General Dawes went to his post last Summer he acted for the President in the negotiations that lead to the calling of the London conference by Prime Minister MacDonald.

There have been unsupported reports in Washington that General Dawes does not intend to remain at the Court of St. James's for long. Some of those professing to know say his program was to stay there only a short time after the treaty was negotiated and then return to the United States, in order, these same informants declare, to lay a possible groundwork for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1932. But, so far as is known here, the Ambassador himself has given no indication that he might have such plans.

Five Drivers' License Bureaus Open.

Five additional branches for the renewal of drivers' licenses will be opened today by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, it was announced yesterday by Deputy Commissioner James J. Leavy. Mr. Leavy pointed out that with only two weeks remaining before the present licenses expire, more than 750,000 motorists in the metropolitan area have so far failed to obtain new credentials.

TOKIO SEEKS TO WIN BIG NAVY ELEMENT

Vice Minister Predicts Accord on London Treaty Between Staff and Cabinet.

EXPECTS NO RESIGNATIONS

Navy Contends New American Cruisers Will Be Stronger Than Japanese Units.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, May 16.—With the session of the Diet out of the way, the government is bending every effort to conciliate the big navy element so as to avoid open conflict, which has loomed as a likelihood, upon the return here of Admiral Takarabe. There are now indications that the government may be able to moderate the big navy group led by Admiral Kanji Kato, chief of naval staff.

The first official intimation of a possible conciliation between the government and the big navy faction appeared in an interview in the Osaka today with Baron Shozo Yabuki, Parliamentary Vice Minister of the Navy, who said:

"I am confident all matters between the government and the naval general staff in connection with the London naval treaty will be smoothed over when the Navy Minister, Admiral Takarabe, returns to Tokio and fully explains his position. No serious misunderstanding now exists between the government and the naval general staff, and I do not believe any high naval officers will resign in connection with the naval treaty.

Baron Yabuki is now on the way to Shimonoseki or Fusan, where he will meet Admiral Takarabe with government instructions.

Your correspondent learns the objections to the London naval treaty on the part of the naval general staff, from the viewpoint of national defense, are based not so much upon the ratio accorded to Japan in large cruisers as upon the contention that the new American cruisers will, in all probability, prove much more powerful than anything Japan has, and that the fighting ratio will give the United States greater superiority than would appear from the ratio as figured by tonnage. The naval general staff has been observing the greatest secrecy on what it considers the technical aspects of the treaty.

J. C. DANA TABLET UNVEILED

Memorial to Museum Founder Is Placed in Newark Library.

A tablet in memory of John Cotton Dana, founder of the Newark Museum and for more than twenty-five years librarian of the Newark Public Library was unveiled in the library yesterday. Funds for the tablet were raised by children of the Newark public schools, under the auspices of the Schoolmen's Club.

Exercises in the Second Presbyterian Church, near the library, preceded the unveiling. Richard C. Jenkinson, president of the board of trustees of the library, spoke on Mr. Dana and Dr. John H. Finley on Mr. Dana's work. The Rev. E. A. Wasson pronounced the invocation. John J. Arnao, president of the Schoolmen's Club presided.

Miss Beatrice Winser, librarian, unveiled the tablet, which was presented to the trustees by Stephen B. Gilhuly, chairman of the tablet committee.

War Intrigues
General Pershing

A Recent Picture of General Pershing in Uniform.

By General Robert Lee Bullard.

This story has never been told completely before. In spite of criticism—and that from high sources—which followed his defeating the European intrigues against himself, General Pershing has never said a word. And now General Robert Lee Bullard, wartime Commander of the Third American Army Corps, tells the whole story in next Sunday's American. He tells how he himself was approached as Pershing's probable successor and he even tells how two of General Pershing's own generals aided in the intrigues against their commander-in-chief.

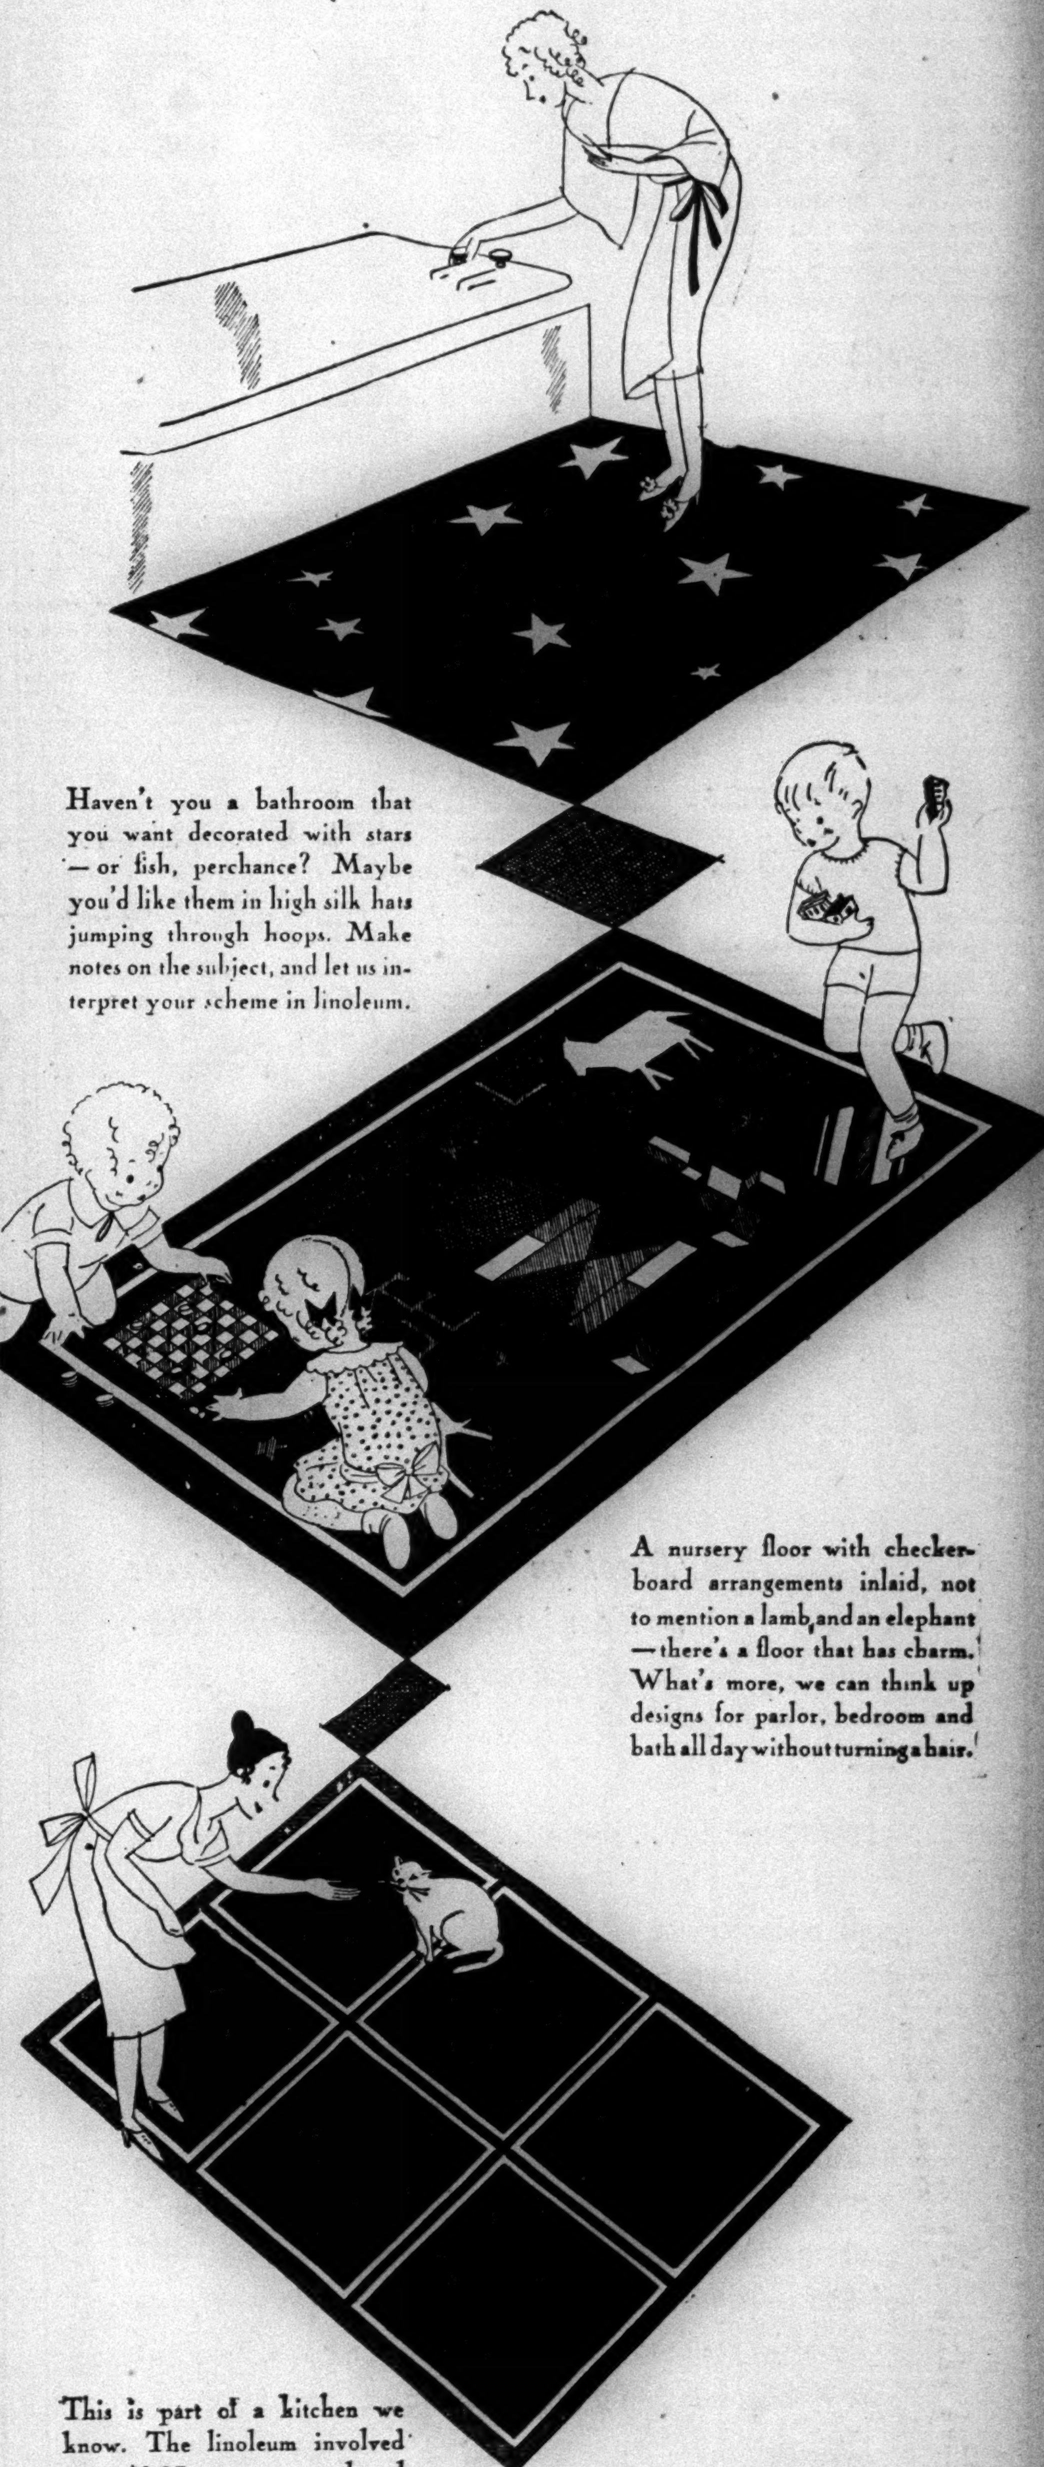
So this is LINOLEUM

Here is the new Macy way of making floors attractive. We cut fine linoleum in special designs to suit our fancy or yours, and then have it assembled and laid by our expert craftsmen, who take an artistic and workmanlike interest in the fine points of fitting every angle and curve.



Haven't you a bathroom that you want decorated with stars—or fish, perchance? Maybe you'd like them in high silk hats jumping through hoops. Make notes on the subject, and let us interpret your scheme in linoleum.

A nursery floor with checkerboard arrangements inlaid, not to mention a lamb, and an elephant—there's a floor that has charm. What's more, we can think up designs for parlor, bedroom and bath all day without turning a hair.

This is part of a kitchen we know. The linoleum involved costs $2.97 a square yard and the laying and cutting are done for $2 an hour. But when it's down over a layer of lining, it will wear and wear and wear.

POETESS ENDS RAID; TRUCE WITH POLICE

Mrs. Naidu Arrested, but Freed After Removal From Dharasana Salt Area.

HER SISTER-IN-LAW SEIZED

Mrs. Chattopadhyaya Gets Nine Months and Two Weeks for Many Illegal Activities.

90 INJURED IN BENGAL RAID

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, May 16.—The attempt of Mrs. Sarojini Naidu to raid the salt depot at Dharasana collapsed today when the police threatened to remove her forcibly after she had been sitting in a dusty roadway about twenty-eight hours. Mrs. Naidu and her followers had spent the whole night squatting opposite a cordon of police who were imitating her passive resistance methods.

Shortly before noon the comedy came to an end when the inspector of police told Mrs. Naidu she would be provided with an automobile if she agreed to go away quietly. She agreed, and the police took her to a volunteers' encampment near by, where she started her procession yesterday.

The only violence of Mrs. Naidu's "Death or Victory" adventure came after she and her followers had left. About 100 volunteers who had been waiting in the broiling sun suddenly rushed toward the salt pans after some of the police had left. Nine were hurt in a sharp scuffle when the police finally ejected them from the forbidden zone.

Woman Jailed for Nine Months.

Mrs. Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Naidu, was arrestd here this morning for breaking the salt act and the penal code and was sentenced to nine months' simple imprisonment.

India is not peaceful yet, despite the noticeably quieter atmosphere today. From Eastern Bengal news triskled through of a serious outbreak last Wednesday at Mymensingh, 200 miles northeast of Calcutta, in which ninety persons were injured.

The trouble arose between the police and 2,000 rioters, who attempted to prevent the delivery of a shipment of liquor from the government depot to vendors' shops. The police had t oopen fire, spreading havoc in the mob with a volley of buckshot.

The casualties among the police were five officers and twenty-eight men injured, one sub-inspector having been wounded seriously. The magistrate was hit by flying missiles.

Late tonight a bomb was hurled into a police barracks at Sibpur, near Howrah, Calcutta, where ugly riots occurred a fortnight ago. The explosion shattered the windows and blew out sections of the wall, but caused no casualties.

News from Sholapur was veiled by a strict military censorship. Although the town is quiet, details of the court martials are not being made public. It is known that the severest sentences have been passed on two ringleaders who tried to establish a Soviet during the last week's outbreak.

Severe Penalties Meted Out.

The president of the Sholapur Congress committee was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment at hard labor and fined $750. The secretary of the Sholapur Congress "war council" received ten years' rigorous imprisonment and a $1,125 fine.

Manekchand Shah, the president of the Sholapur Municipality, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and a $3,500 fine for not pulling down a congress flag from the municipal buildings in accordance with the martial law regulations.

The working committee of the All-India National Congress concluded its meeting at Allahabad today by proposing to extend the civil disobedience campaign. It appealed to student, lawyers, workers, peasants, merchants and government servants to support the movement. It called for an intensive boycott of foreign cloth and of British banking, shipping, insurance and similar institutions.

The committee of the All-Parties Conference concluded a futile meeting today by announcing that no decision of the Simon Commission can help or affect the committee's determination to smooth over communal rivalries between the Hindus and Moslems. An appeal was made to the leaders of all parties to cooperate in reaching a friendly settlement.

Hunger Strike Ends.

Chiefs Offer Selves as Hostages.

BOMBAY, May 15 (AP).—As a result of the recent British airplane demonstration twenty Wazir chieftains have offered themselves as hostages for the good behavior of their tribesmen.

The Bombay Congress Bulletin was published in defiance of an order to suspend for two months. It announced it would continue to appear.

BERLIN, May 16.—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm was the recipient of an impromptu ovation at noon today on the highway leading from Potsdam to Berlin, where he was delayed by the breakdown of his automobile.

Passing with sight-seeing car, a guide called his clients' attention to the illustrious automobilist, who, within a few seconds, was surrounded by twoscore American tourists.

The Crown Prince shook hands all around and willingly submitted to being "shot" by dozens of cameras, in recognition of which the Americans thanked him with a spontaneous song before proceeding toward Berlin.

HANKOW FORCES OUT TO CHECK BANDITS

WUHAN CITIES ARE WORRIED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, May 16.—The fighting between Northern and Nanking forces along the Lunghai Railway is approaching a major scale, with the hostilities heavy among the minor forces. The positions of the rival armies remain practically the same with the exception that Nanking's left wing, which has been reported successful in Northern Anhwei Province, is driving on Mamutsui, which is likely to prove a centre of considerable fighting.

Meanwhile, the bandit situation continues unchecked in the Hankow area, the latest involved, and it is feared the Red bandits plan to overrun the Yangtze Valley. A big gang of bandits captured Simakow, then advanced and captured Hanchwang, thirty miles from Hankow, afterward threatening Tsaitien, nearer Hankow, demanding $800,000 as the price of security for Tsaitien.

The proximity of the bandits is causing great uneasiness in the Wuhan cities (Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang), especially as many thousands of refugees are already sheltering in Hankow because of the bandit depredations. The Nanking Government is unable to muster a force to suppress the bandits owing to the Northern campaign. The Hankow military authorities admit the situation is serious and have dispatched the best troops to counter the threat which conceivably is part of the Red plans to drive against Nanking itself.

The sudden and unexpected announcement by the Nanking Government today of an embargo on gold bullion exports and foreign silver coin imports resulted in frenzied scenes on the local market, but ended in silver showing an appreciable improvement, greatly benefiting local traders.

A Nanking report says the government took the action following reports made by Sun Fo, Minister of Railways, and T. V. Soong, Finance Minister, stating that serious losses were occurring and that it was necessary to prevent the exportation of gold preliminary to the adoption of the gold standard and to ban the importation of foreign silver in order to prevent further currency confusion.

Reds' Papers Seized at Amoy.

AMOY, China, May 16 (AP).—Foreign police tonight dealt a blow to communistic banditry in Fukien Province and possibly in the entire south of China by raiding three houses in the foreign settlement. The documents seized proved the places were the headquarters of the Fukien Reds and probably the South China directing bureau of the outlaw armies that have ravaged Fukien, Kiangsi and Kwangtung provinces for several months, looting, burning and massacring.

Russian participation in the communistic organization of China was considered established by the raid, as among the documents confiscated were communist text books, lectures, pamphlets, posters and essays, all of Russian origin.

Shanghai Taels Jump Here.

The gold embargo imposed by the Nanking Government yesterday is believed by New York banking authorities to be of small significance due to the small amount of gold available for export. Because of the low price of silver, local banks have been accumulating gold in China, but the amount which is believed to have been purchased for shipment to America is not impressive. The immediate result in New York of the embargo was to stiffen the price of silver here. Shanghai taels advanced 75 points to 45.75; Pekins taels also were up 75 points to 47, and Hongkong dollars were up 25 points to 38.375.

KAISER REPORTED IN ESSEN.

Said to Have Been Seen Inspecting a New Steam Hammer.

ESSEN, Germany, May 16 (AP).—The German secret service tonight was investigating rumors spreading throughout the Rhineland that former Kaiser Wilhelm had been seen in Essen in company with a director of the Krupp von Bohlen-Halbach combination inspecting a new steam hammer.

The chief of police of Essen requested that the investigation be made after the report had roused great excitement in political circles at Düsseldorf and Cologne as well as at Essen.

SILESIAN OPPOSITION GAINS.

Its Leader Is Likely to Be President of New Legislature.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, May 16.—The new Upper Silesian Legislature will probably open on May 27. According to rumor, M. Corfanty, leader of the chief opposition party in Upper Silesia, the Catholic party, will be chosen President.

The government attached great importance to this election and government circles are disturbed by the results, which show the government party has lost more than 30 per cent of the votes in Upper Silesia since the general election for the Sejm two years ago.

RESULTS AT GENEVA SEEN AS GRATIFYING

Although Session Was Short, Conversations Are Held as of Great Importance.

NAVAL ISSUE IS ADVANCED

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 16.—The League Council session closing yesterday, though one of the shortest in years, left an impression of having more than justified itself by the conversations, particularly on the Anglo-Franco-Italian naval questions, the Franco-German problems and Aristide Briand's European federation project which it made possible. The conversations, indeed, continued after the session had closed, for several Foreign Ministers, including M. Briand, Dr. Curtius of Germany, M. Zaleski of Poland and Dr. Marinkovitch of Yugoslavia, left Geneva only today.

M. Briand saw Dr. Curtius again this morning, and, it is said, gave him stronger assurance that all the French troops would be out of the Rhineland by June 30. The two Foreign Ministers are understood to have concluded a discussion of the "liquidation organ" which is to handle the enormous amount of detail work entailed by the evacuation by fixing more precisely, as Dr. Curtius desired, its duties, rights and time limit in which to complete its labors.

Germans who have followed this commission, which includes French officers who might linger indefinitely, are pleased also by M. Briand's agreeing that any such officers who had to remain in the Rhineland after June 30 would change then into civilian clothes.

Aside from the Rhineland, the Franco-German talks here are considered to have made much more likely that the negotiations they are resuming now on the return of the Sarre basin to Germany will allow that question to be settled without a plebiscite when the League Assembly meets in September.

Naval Conversations Resumed.

On the naval side, the Council session enabled the British, French and Italian Foreign Ministers to resume after only three weeks' delay the negotiations adjourned at London and to agree on a program already reported for continuing them through the Summer until the Council and the Assembly sessions in September bring them together again.

The Italians, who before this year have never sent their Foreign Minister here, themselves stress the importance to the League in this regard, saying that if the Council session had not supplied an excuse for resumption of contact to M. Briand and Dino Grandi, it probably would have been delayed a long time, because it would be as difficult for Signor Grandi to go to Paris to see M. Briand as for M. Briand to go to Rome.

The aim of all three is to push negotiations as quietly as possible. Thus if the talks through diplomatic channels progress sufficiently for the political advisers of the three ministers to take them up directly, it will not be surprising if their meeting takes the form of Alexander Cadogan, René Massigli and Augusto Rosso all spending their "vacations" by "coincidence" in the same remote resort.

In this connection, some observers believe that the fact that the negotiations have been resumed in a somewhat better atmosphere than at London is due partly to the diversity of questions occupying the Council members, preventing the spotlight being centred on parity here as at the naval conference.

Subtle Manoeuvres Expected.

There is good reason to believe that the negotiations will be accompanied by many subtle manoeuvres in European politics by Paris and Rome with a view to strengthening their hands. Some of them have already started here.

The field both for negotiations and manoeuvres has been greatly enlarged by M. Briand's project for a European federation, and some of the best informed observers predict that his memorandum on the subject, which will be released tomorrow, will take a dominating place in European discussions. Certainly the Council sessions made it evident that the French are regarding M. Briand's far-reaching scheme more and more as a matter of practical politics. The Little Entente powers, it was disclosed here today, have decided to discuss the project at their June meeting.

In addition to these conversations, the Council session occasioned many others among the Foreign Ministers. How important this marginal side of the Council sessions is becoming it is easy to indicate. The Council agenda was the thinnest in years. There was not an item on it which before the war would have caused any Foreign Ministers to come together. Yet this shortest and thinnest session in years brought eight Foreign Ministers to Geneva—more than any other session has ever done.

Evacuation Plans Completed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—Arrangements were completed at a meeting this morning of Premier Tardieu, War Minister Maginot, Philippe Berthelot of the Foreign Office, General Weygand and General Guillaumat, Commander-in-Chief of the forces on the Rhine, for the evacuation of the Third Rhineland Zone by June 30, if by that time the Young plan for reparation payments is in official operation.

In Germany the delay which has occurred in giving the necessary orders for evacuation by June 30 has aroused in the past few days considerable protest, and it was stated that an attempt was being made to prolong the period of occupation. This alarm was founded on the belief that the plan of retirement would occupy fifty days and that the order to put it in force should be given by May 11.

Every day's delay in beginning the operation will make it more difficult. That the order was not given was due, it is said, to the fact that the French Government's promise to evacuate the third zone by June 30 was formally conditioned on the official adoption of the Young plan by that date. In reality, French officials say, the remaining troops can be withdrawn within fifteen days.

Tardieu Sees German Ambassador.

PARIS, May 16 (AP).—Complete evacuation of the Rhineland was indicated by conferences today between Premier André Tardieu and Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, German Ambassador.

The German Envoy informed the Premier that his government would deposit in a few days a certificate covering the reparation debt under the Young plan with the Bank for International Settlements. This is the last step preliminary to evacuation.

BRAZILIAN MAIL HEAVY FOR ZEPPELIN FLIGHT

Agents Fear Passenger Demands Will Be Too Great for the Ship's Capacity.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 16.—Air mail for the Graf Zeppelin's flight to the United States is already pouring in to agents of the State. Hundreds of pounds have been received and much more is expected before the ship arrives a week hence, while in Buenos Aires it is reported that more than 40,000 letters are being sent. Most of them are novelty greetings, which are rather costly, as the ordinary letter from Rio de Janeiro costs $1.20 and a postcard 60 cents.

The agents fear that on account of the large volume of mail and new passengers embarking at Rio de Janeiro, coupled with the fact that the hydrogen gas will be low after the long trip from Europe, some of the mail may have to be taken to Pernambuco, where the ship will be replenished with gas for the final leg of the trip to New York. According to present plans, the ship is due to arrive here at 6 A. M., May 23, without stopping at Pernambuco, and after a three-hour stay will double back to Pernambuco for fuel and gas.

The early morning arrival, while inconvenient for a high official reception, is essential, as the ship needs to conserve all its hydrogen—in the early, cool morning hours the gas has less lifting capacity, whereas a landing in daylight under the hot tropical sun, which expands the gas and increases the lift, means spilling some of the gas much needed for finishing the trip to Pernambuco.

A number of Brazilians and Americans are endeavoring to book passage from Rio de Janeiro to New York, but agents doubt whether they can handle all of them. Among the probable passengers on the first airship to visit South America will be William Leeds, millionaire sportsman, who made the trip around the world on the Zeppelin last year and who arrived here from the United States today, and Boies C. Hart, vice president of the National City Bank.

Arrangements for the reception at the field are well under way. Dr. Eckener will be greeted by President Washington Luis and high officials and American Ambassador Edwin V. Morgan.

ZEPPELIN TO START BRAZIL TRIP SUNDAY

TO CARRY 20 PASSENGERS

Dirigible Will Take Sufficient Fuel to Assure a Cruising Range of 120 Hours.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 16 (AP).—The Graf Zeppelin's first trip to South America, on which the dirigible will cross the Equator for the first time, will begin Sunday some time between 4 P. M. and 9 P. M., if the weather permits.

The first lap of the journey is to Seville, Spain, which place the airship expects to reach late Monday, by way of Lyons, Marseilles and Gibraltar. A mooring mast has been erected at the Spanish city. After an all-night stay there, the great ship will nose out over the Atlantic Tuesday morning for the flight to Pernambuco, Brazil.

On the first lap the Zeppelin will carry twenty-two passengers. Of these, six will remain at Seville, where four others will be taken aboard, bringing the total for the transatlantic flight to twenty, besides the forty-two officers and men of the crew. From Pernambuco to Havana and Lakehurst, N. J., there will be nineteen passengers.

To Delay Passenger List.

The names of those making the trip will be withheld until the dirigible is in the air. Some passengers fear their relatives might object, as happened in the case of Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York, when even the American Ambassador's intervention was asked to dissuade her from making the trip to America last May.

At present, therefore, the Zeppelin officials merely say that among the passengers will be six North Americans, three Latin Americans, five Germans and six Spaniards.

The Associated Press has learned, however, that the passenger list will include the following:

Karl von Wiegand and Lady Grace Drummond-Hay, representing the Hearst newspapers.

Dr. Martin Wronsky, director of the German Lufthansa.

Federico Garcia Sanchez, Spanish author.

It is understood that besides Lady Grace Drummond-Hay there will be two other women aboard, accompanying their husbands. One of them is reported to be the wife of an American marine engineer. It is also reported that the Spanish aviation head, Commander Herrera, will be a passenger.

Ship Insured for $768,000.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zeppelin, explained that he is allowing a latitude of five hours for the start because he must be governed by conditions of visibility. Should the day be cloudy he will start at 4 P. M. Sunday, so that he may fly over the dangerous weather zone around Besanco, France, in daylight. On the other hand, should clear weather be reported along the route to Seville he will wait until 9 P. M., as the temperature will be lower then.

"In Seville I expect to be able to add more blau gas, for Seville lies much lower than Friedrichshafen," Dr. Eckener said today. "That will enable me to increase my useful load by five to ten tons. This is important, for as a precaution I shall take five tons of water ballast, which we may need in case heavy cloudbursts in the equatorial rain zone should weigh the airship down too heavily."

The Graf Zeppelin will carry enough fuel for the Friedrichshafen-Pernambuco flight to assure it a cruising range of 120 hours. The big ship is insured for 3,200,000 marks (about $768,000) and life insurance on the crew totals 1,500,000 marks (about $360,000).

Will Carry Two Radio Sets.

Two wireless sets, one for long waves and one for short waves, will keep the Graf Zeppelin in touch with the world during its flight. During the day a long-wave apparatus of 120 watts will be used and at night a 50-watt set. The long-wave radio will be adjusted to two wave lengths—2,150 and 1,945 meters. Three short wave lengths will be employed during the night: 35.4, 53 and 26 meters.

Though Dr. Eckener hopes to be able to remain in direct touch with his home station at Friedrichshafen during the entire flight, he expects there may be difficulties in this respect when the airship reaches the calm regions of the Equator. As an offset to this, however, an extra gondola for electrical apparatus has been built into the dirigible. Two generators will furnish the current which was previously supplied by a wind propeller.

An innovation in the equipment is an instrument for measuring the electric tension in the air. The instrument was devised by Professor Albert Wigand, meteorologist of the University of Hamburg. By registering the aero-electric tension it warns the navigation officers of approaching electric and sand storms. During the Swiss cruise of May 2 the instrument was tested by Professor Wigand and was pronounced satisfactory.

In order to give the commander on the bridge a better opportunity of estimating how near the stern of the ship is to the ground, Dr. Eckener has, during recent landings, had a long rope lowered from the rear motor gondola, to the lower end of which a flag was fastened. From there to the top, at intervals of fifteen feet, small streamers were attached, so that the commander could easily estimate just how far the rear end of his airship was from the ground. This method will be employed on the present flight.

Mast Is Ready at Seville.

SEVILLE, Spain, May 16 (AP).—The Graf Zeppelin is expected here about 7 o'clock Monday night, and she will leave early Tuesday morning for Pernambuco, Brazil.

Dr. Sammt, the construction engineer representing the Zeppelin company, today inspected the fifty-foot mooring mast erected at La Tablada airfield and said it was ready to receive the airship.

BRIAND SENDS OUT PAN-EUROPE PLAN

By P. J. PHILIP.

Russia. From the United States the advice has come too often to Europe that it should forget its quarrels and nationalities and get together for there to be any misunderstanding there. The whole organism which M. Briand proposes is intended to try to bring harmony into Europe's interstate relations.

There are in this Continent twelve thousand miles of frontiers, each with its armed guards, its customs officers and protective tariffs. Even the signature of a pact which would affirm the principle of a moral union of these countries would do something to lessen the tension along these frontiers and to emphasize the feeling of solidarity. In time it could be transformed into a definite charter such as envisaged in Article XXI of the League covenant. Meanwhile, regular contact between the various signatories would be assured and a permanent mechanism would be established.

Would Have President at Outset.

From the outset the federation would have a president, who would be elected in rotation, and a permanent secretary. A committee would be elected and technical committees would be set up for a study of European problems.

M. Briand, however, is no believer in the settlement of international differences by business interests any more than he believes in the interference by business in the government of his country. The responsibility for whatever is done must rest with the governments of countries, representative of their peoples and working for all.

Just as Woodrow Wilson's proposal for the foundation of the League of Nations was in a manner an appeal to the peoples of the world over the heads of governments and was made possible by the popular approval of those who had done the fighting and had suffered in the war, so M. Briand's proposals are in reality addressed to the peoples of those twenty-six nations. None of them is so satisfied with its lot as to refuse to lend ear to the proposal that to live and to prosper they must unite.

What reception the plan will get is difficult to predict. Small countries probably will favor it. Some of the bigger ones may be anxious about who is to control the federation, for control, for the time at least, must lie with the strongest member, even though all are theoretically equal.

M. Briand, however, in his long experience in the French Parliament, is prepared for that. He knows that no party and no government can for long withstand the impulse of an ideal once it takes root in the minds of their peoples, and it is on this that he is relying for the ultimate slow development of his plan.

In his covering letter to his memorandum, M. Briand expresses the hope that the various governments to which it is addressed will be able to reply before July 15 so that a report on the progress of the plan can be submitted to the League Assembly at Geneva next September.

The Foreign Minister returned from Geneva today.

R-100 SET TO FLY TO CANADA

Will Start in a Few Days, According to Officer Heading Advance Party

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—If weather conditions are favorable the British dirigible R-100 is expected to leave Cardington on its Canadian flight in a few days, according to Flight Commander N. G. Atherstone, first officer of the R-100, who left Liverpool today for Montreal with an advance party of twelve, which will form a relief crew for the airship on her arrival at ther mooring mast there.

According to Commander Atherstone, the R-100 will remain in Canada about a fortnight and will make short flights, probably visiting the United States.

"The Graf Zeppelin did this all right. There is no reason why the R-100 should not," Commander Atherstone said. "This flight is part of her trials. The trip will be purely experimental, not even carrying mails. The crew are all civilians with the exception of one or two specialists."

The R-100 will be commanded on her flight to Canada by Squadron Leader Booth. Her route will be via Cape Farewell, Greenland. It is estimated the journey will take three days. Her full crew is forty-eight, but only thirty-six are going, the advance party supplying the reliefs.

PANAMA PRESIDENT PAYS HONOR TO BYRD

TINY PLANE CIRCLES ROOM

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, May 16.—The desolation of snow and ice at Little America and on the ice-jammed Bay of Whales must have seemed far away to Admiral Byrd today as he sat as the guest of honor of President Arosmena of Panama in the State dining room of the Presidencia beside the palm and fern-filled patio overlooking the calm blue waters of the Bay of Panama with evergreen mountains in the distance.

Responsding to the toast of the President, in which he was complimented as "a wise and thoughtful commander," and congratulated upon the success of his expedition, Admiral Byrd said:

"I want to thank you for your generous hospitality and friendly spirit toward me and my shipmates. I greatly appreciate your spirit of good-will and will leave Panama with endearing memories of our visit here."

Among the twenty-eight guests of President Arosmena gathered at the luncheon to honor the explorer were all the members of his Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, the Diplomatic Corps and officers of the United States Army and Navy.

Between the President and Admiral Byrd, seated on opposite sides of the long oval table, was a globe with a model airplane suspended over the pole. This miniature plane later circled over the heads of the diners.

The colors of the United States and Panama were clustered on the walls and an orchestra played the national anthems of both countries as well as Dixie and My Old Kentucky Home in compliment to the guest from Virginia.

Tonight the Admiral was the guest of honor at a stag dinner given by Rear Admiral John R. Y. Blakely, commandant of the Fifteenth Naval District. The Admiral has no engagement for tomorrow, which will be his first free day since his arrival, and his final engagement will be at a dinner to be tendered on Sunday by Major Gen. Mailin Craig, commanding the Panama Canal Department.

Admiral Byrd told newspaper correspondents today that he expected to do some plane piloting himself before leaving the Isthmus. He will probably make the flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific and return with a navy plane.

Admiral Byrd has so caught the admiration of Panama that he is becoming another good-will ambassador like Colonel Lindbergh. On Monday he will fly to the Valley of the Moon Mountains in Chirqui for a change to the cool climate of the highlands.

President Arosmena has requested the Governor of the Province to meet the Admiral when his plane lands at David and escort him to the mountain village of Boquete, where he will be the guest of "Pop" Wright, who was host to Colonel Lindbergh in 1928.

BYRD'S RADIO EXPERT RETURNS TO SEATTLE

Mason Arrives Too Early for Public Reception but Is Welcomed Later.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, May 16.—Howard Mason, the radio expert of Admiral Byrd's South Pole expedition, came back to Seattle, his home town, this morning, peering unpretentiously from behind his spectacles, surprised that such a thing as a reception committee should ever have thought of welcoming him.

He arrived with his mother, who had met him in San Francisco, aboard the steamship Ruth Alexander. The ship was early and the reception committee late, so Mason missed the Mayor, the delegations, the motorcycle escort and the drums.

He missed also a pretentious breakfast arranged for him, and breakfasted instead with his mother, his sister and brother-in-law and their two children. At noon, however, he was guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"No, I didn't wear whiskers; the ice gets stuck in them," he chuckled.

The complicated low-wave radio equipment he designed, and much of which he built, functioned beautifully, he said. News from the outside world came through almost daily. Once he chatted with the Russian Arctic expedition and once with Franz Josef Land. He reached all parts of the world through his key.

He will meet the Byrd ship when it docks in New York in June.

BYRD'S MEN MOURN DEATH OF DR. NANSEN

A message of consolation to the widow of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen from the members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, now crossing the Pacific on the steamship Eleanor Bolling and the bark City of New York, was received last night by THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station and was forwarded to Oslo.

The message, signed by Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, second in command of the expedition, in behalf of his comrades, was as follows:

"Members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition homeward bound aboard the two expedition ships have learned with deepest regret of the death of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen.

"There are many Norwegians in our expedition, some of whom knew Dr. Nansen personally, but their sense of loss can scarcely be greater than ours, for by his example and achievements Dr. Nansen has been an inspiration to all of us.

"We know how futile may be any words of ours in assuaging your grief, yet we would like you to know that we share your loss."

DOMINICANS ELECT TRUJILLO PRESIDENT

But Aliancistas, Who Withdrew Candidates, Will Fight Contest as Illegal.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, May 16 (AP).—General Rafael Leonidas Trujillo and General Rafael Estrella Urena, government candidates, were elected today to be President and Vice President, respectively, of the Dominican Republic.

The names of the opposition candidates, Federico Velasquez and Angel Morales, were withdrawn Wednesday by the coalition of the National Progressive parties and thus the government candidates had a clear field. The Aliancistras, as the coalitionists call themselves, hope, however, to have the election declared illegal by the courts and thus bring about new balloting. They assert the members of the Junta Central Electoral, the body which supervises elections, were illegally appointed some time ago and that the election therefore will not stand up.

The voters went to the polls well armed, both Trujilistas and Aliancistas. To forestall trouble, liquor shops, restaurants and drug stores were closed so that the armed partisans might not congregate and cause trouble.

General Trujillo began in the United States Marine Corps the military career which in twelve years has brought him, at the age of 37, to the presidency of this republic.

General Trujillo has been a soldier continuously since the marines discovered him, and there have been few days since 1918 when he has not worn a uniform. In the political campaign, however, he put aside his military habiliments to allay the fears of those who regarded his candidacy for President as a threat of military dictatorship.

"I hate these clothes," he remarked one day, fumbling with his civilian necktie and tugging at his vest. "The soldier's garb, the soldier's life—they're the best for a man."

General Trujillo and General Estrella Urena personify the "youth movement" in Dominican politics. The figures denoting the number of President Trujillo's years are the reverse of the 73 marking the age of Horacio Vasquez, who was president until last February.

SEES GERMAN AIR VICTORY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DESSAU, May 16.—Germany's position in aviation is destined to paralell that of England on the high seas, Professor Hugo Junkers said today on the return of the G-38—the world's largest land plane—to its home port after a successful trial flight over North and Central Germany.

"Germany lacks something which will unite all its parts," he continued. "Formerly we believed war would accomplish this. Maybe aviation is now destined to become the tie which will unite the German nation into a common unit." Professor Junkers said he saw in the airplane a weapon with which Germany could make a peaceful conquest of the world.

Presbyterian Mission Board Seeks Funds for Relief in Persia.

Presbyterian missionaries in the West Persia Mission, stationed at Tabriz and Rezaieh, have offered medical and surgical assistance to the earthquake victims in the Salmas District of Northwest Persia, according to a cablegram received yesterday by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, 146 Fifth Avenue. The cablegram was sent by Dr. W. S. Vanneman, in charge of the mission's dispensary at Tabriz, and the Rev. J. Christy Wilson.

Although its budgeted operations will not permit the board to appropriate funds for relief, the board announced that it is willing to transmit to Persia gifts which may be sent to it for relief and which will be administered by its missionaries."

CRAIN TO GO DEEPER INTO WALSH'S ACTS

Defiance by Chairman Causes Him to Broaden Inquiry Into Appeals Board.

TO SIFT CRIMINAL CHARGES

He Subpoenas 82 Clients of Doyle—Mayor Says He Will Look Into Accusations.

The failure of William E. Walsh, chairman of the Board of Standards and Appeals, to notify District Attorney Crain whether he would waive immunity from prosecution and appear before the county grand jury caused Mr. Crain to announce yesterday that he would broaden his investigation of that board to include complaints of "substantial injustice" as well as those alleging actual criminal acts. He said he construed Mr. Walsh's silence as a refusal to waive immunity and that this "militates against the presumption of innocence."

Confronted by a somewhat similar obstacle in the refusal of Dr. William F. Doyle to answer certain questions before the Federal grand jury investigating matters having a bearing on the conduct of the Board of Standards and Appeals, United States Attorney Tuttle caused the issuance yesterday of subpoenas for all of Dr. Doyle's 1929 "clients" in whose interests he appeared before the board during that year. Eighty-two such subpoenas were sent out.

The possibility of still another inquiry into the activities of the Board of Standards and Appeals loomed when Mayor Walker, upon his return from Bermuda, said he would "make inquiries" when he reached City Hall and discuss the case when he had acquainted himself with its latest developments.

"I must await developments," said the Mayor. "Billy Walsh is a lifelong friend of mine and I have never known him to do anything to reflect upon our friendship."

Mayor Walker told reporters he would inquire also into that feature of the matter which centres about Dr. Doyle in view of the recent testimony of Mrs. Lottie Cutler that she had paid $5,000 to Dr. Doyle for a permit for a gasoline station in Jamaica, Queens.

Demands Walsh's Removal.

Joseph Clark Baldwin 3d, minority leader of the Board of Aldermen, who has demanded an investigation of the Board of Standards and Appeals by James A. Higgins, Commissioner of Accounts, sent Mayor Walker a telegram yesterday demanding Mr. Walsh's immediate removal as chairman of the board.

Mr. Crain issued his statement about the broadening of his inquiry after he had waited all day for Mr. Walsh to appear or to answer his letter. On Thursday Mr. Crain said he would give Mr. Walsh until 4 P. M. yesterday to answer.

"I construe his silence," said Mr. Crain, "as a refusal to waive immunity. A refusal to waive immunity militates against the presumption of innocence. I shall proceed to broaden the scope of my investigation so as to include all complaints of a substantial nature respecting the action or non-action of any and every member of the Board of Standards and Appeals. The widening of the inquiry permits the entertainment and examination into all complaints involving substantial injustice."

Mrs. Cutler Heard.

The Federal grand jury heard Mrs Cutler yesterday. She was questioned by Assistant United States Attorneys Lowell Wadmond and John A. Wilson. Outside the grand jury room she told Mr. Tuttle, he said, that she had actually paid Dr. Doyle $5,000. She again refused to name any other person who received money from her. She will be questioned further today by Mr. Tuttle in the presence of her attorney, Mayer W. Stein of Paterson, N. J.

In making known that he had subpoenaed Dr. Doyle's "clients," Mr. Tuttle said:

"I think, in view of the attitude of defiance adopted by Dr. Doyle, that I am justified in calling all of his clients for the year 1929 to see what they have to say. As Dr. Doyle pleads that his answers may incriminate him, we shall see what his clients have to say."

SAYS KING WOULD SEE SCULLIN ON GOVERNOR

London Labor Paper Report Stirs Great Interest as Australia Wants Citizen for Post.

LONDON, May 16 (AP).—The Daily Herald, Labor organ, said today that King George desired to confer personally with James H. Scullin, Premier of Australia, regarding the appointment of a Governor General for the Commonwealth to succeed Lord Stonehaven.

The report aroused great interest in political circles, for Australia's desire to appoint one of her own citizens Governor General has been the subject of much discussion here.

It is understood the Australian Cabinet has put up three names for the Governor Generalship. Constitutional authorities agree the Australians have a right to take this step, but regard it, nevertheless, as one of the most significant gestures taken by any Dominion in support of its own right for independence within the empire.

The King's wish has been communicated to Mr. Scullin, it is said, but official circles believe the conference will wait until October, when the Australian Premier will be here for the imperial conference.

The Greeks are paying him homage in gratitude for his services to the pro-Hellenic cause, particularly for his aid to the Greek war refugees.

Hans P. Freece, questioned by Mr. Crain, corroborated some of the testimony of Joseph S. Boyle, his partner in the firm of Vause & Vause after Judge Vause was elevated to the bench in 1923. Former Representative Loring M. Black of Brooklyn, a former associate of the judge in the firm of Vause & Black, told Mr. Crain that he knew nothing about the pier leases or any fees that the judge, who was not his partner, might have received from the United American Lines.

Emil Lederer, an official of the Hamburg-American Line, which took over the United American Lines ships and its leases to Piers 84 and 86 in the North River, and Christian J. Beck, in charge of operations at the pier, held long conferences with Mr. Tuttle at the Federal Building.

When they left Mr. Tuttle said they had promised to seek information relative to the negotiations for the leases and turn it over to the United States Attorney. Mr. Tuttle also let it be known that he wishes to question Joseph E. Sheedy, general manager of the United States Lines, on what he thinks the piers really were worth to the rival steamship company. He pointed out that the Leviathan had docked at Pier 84 apparently for a consideration.

Mayor Praises Vause.

Mayor Walker's expression of confidence in Judge Vause was prompted by questions by reporters as he returned from his vacation in Bermuda. In due time, Mr. Walker said, he would look into irregularities in city departments, if the grand jury investigations now under way indicated that there were any.

"I know Judge Vause to be a fine fellow with splendid standing at the bar," the Mayor said. "I do not know about the present case—not intending to make out a case—but I know if it involves Judge Vause seeking favor for any one or any steamship company, he never spoke to me.

"From my recollection I do not remember Judge Vause appearing before the Sinking Fund Commission or the Board of Estimate at any time in this connection."

The Mayor was told that Judge Vause allegedly began his activities for the company just prior to his appointment to the bench.

"Well," he said, "Vause could have come to me and could have said what he wanted within reason and I have such confidence in him. He has been a good friend and never has taken advantage of that friendship to talk to me about that case."

Freece Gives Few Added Details.

Freece, according to Mr. Crain, was unable to shed any new light upon what became of the large fees Judge Vause received for his services to the United American Lines. He left the firm in January, 1926, to become head of the Bureau of Law and Adjustment in Controller Berry's office.

While in partnership with Boyle, Freece said he opened an account in the Equitable Trust Company in the name of Vause & Vause, as the firm composed of Boyle and himself continued to be known. The earnings of the partnership were deposited in this account. These, however, were small.

"Other money deposited in that account represented sums intended for W. Bernard Vause, and Freece believes the larger part of such money came from the United American Lines," Mr. Crain said. Although Boyle told Mr. Crain that no services were performed for the steamship company, as far as he knew, in spite of the fact that he admitted rendering bills at intervals, Mr. Freece insisted, the prosecutor said, that such services were performed. The work, however, was worth only about $6,000, he told Mr. Crain.

The services to which he referred consisted of appearing at meetings of the Sinking Fund Commission, conferences with Judge Vause, the examination of papers and the writing of letters. Freece knew nothing about the opening of a bank account for William Jerome, the name used by George Vause, a brother of the judge. Nor did Freece know anything about the special account which Boyle said he opened for Judge Vause in Boyle's name. He had heard of a William Baxter, but the Frank Baxter who was alleged to have received $35,000 of what Mr. Tuttle called the "slush fund," Freece said he believed was "a fictitious character."

Counsel Disputes Boyle.

Mr. Perlman, attorney for Judge Vause, said that Boyle must have been mistaken in important parts of his story. It was untrue, the lawyer said, that Judge Vause had instructed Boyle to open dummy bank accounts to cover up his dealings with the United American Lines.

"It cannot be true, because Judge Vause had his own account and the money he received from Boyle went into that account," said Mr. Perlman.

Boyle had mentioned sums totaling about $120,000. Of this, Mr. Perlman said, the judge had received only $30,000, which he included in his 1926 income-tax return. Another $30,000 went to account of William Jerome for George Vause, and "most of the rest" went into investments and small disbursements. Mr. Perlman suggested a reason for the failure of Judge Vause to reply to allegations against him when he said that the latter had been spending all his time preparing a defense to the Federal indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud.

MADRID REPUBLICANS UNITE

Spanish Leaders Sign Accord to Work Together Against Monarchy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, May 16.—Leaders of several divided Republican parties signed an agreement yesterday to work together. A manifesto will probably be published in a few days.

While details of the agreement were refused on the ground that something might occur at the last minute to prevent the other Left post chiefs from signing, in which case the agreement would be voided, the accord is understood to provide for a united front to bring down the monarchy, leaving other differences to be arranged later.

The agreement if completed will affect all the Republicans and Radical Socialists, although not the entire Socialist party.

SMOKERS THE WORLD OVER stick to Chesterfield because of its thorough dependability of quality, its unchanging good taste.

GOOD TASTE!—What smoker would trade it for any number of cigarette claims? No Chesterfield smoker would. For here choice tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to a finer aroma and a richer, milder flavor to give you the utmost a cigarette can offer . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

EVELYN TUTTLE WED TO LIEUT. HORNE JR.

Daughter of U. S. Attorney Is Married by Right Rev. A. S. Lloyd, Suffragan Bishop.

AN ELABORATE CEREMONY

Bride Has Nine Attendants—Eight Naval Officers Form Arch of Swords for Young Couple.

Miss Evelyn Tuttle, eldest daughter of United States Attorney and Mrs. Charles H. Tuttle, was married to Lieutenant Charles Frederick Horne Jr., U. S. N., of Rear Admiral Pratt's communication staff, yesterday afternoon in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Convent Avenue and 141st Street. The Right Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of New York, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. William T. Walsh, the rector.

Dogwood blossoms, white peonies and tulips were massed in the chancel against a background of cybotium ferns and there were vases of white roses and peonies on the altar.

While the guests were assembling there was a musical program by Miss Irene Persival, harpist; Miss Edna Webse, soprano, and Gove Harington, organist, close friends of the bride. As the bridal procession entered the church, the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played on the organ. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an Empire gown of old ivory-colored satin, trimmed with point and duchess lace, the same costume that her mother wore at her marriage in the same church. Her voluminous veil of tulle fell from a cap of old duchess lace and was fastened on each side of the head with a small cluster of orange blossoms. She wore a necklace of braided pearls given to her by a girlhood friend of her grandmother, Mrs. H. Croswell Tuttle. Her bouquet was composed of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Charlotte Tuttle was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a gown of peach-colored moire satin made in Empire style to correspond with the bride's costume, also a poke bonnet and lace mitts. There were six bridesmaids, the Misses Priscilla Crosby of Brookline, Mass.; Emily and Elizabeth Sheets of Montclair, N. J., and Diantha Evans of Rome, N. Y., classmates of the bride at Vassar, from which she was graduated last June; Jean Gledhill of this city and Helen Jasmine Tuttle, sister of the bride. Their costumes were similar to that of the maid of honor except in color, which was green, and all carried bouquets of tulips. There were also two flower girls in the bridal procession, Elizabeth and Dorothy Wheeler, cousins of the bride. They wore Empire frocks of lavender and yellow-flowered taffeta with natural colored straw hats and carried baskets of rose petals, which they scattered in the path of the bride.

Lieutenant Horne, who is the son of Professor and Mrs. Charles F. Horne of this city, was attended by William H. Wheeler as best man. The ushers, fellow officers of the bridegroom, were Lieutenants Thomas A. Huckins, Thomas H. Dyer, Henri de B. Claiborne and Russell J. Bellerby and Ensigns Warren F. Graf, Granville A. Moore, Robert C. Brownlee and Rodney B. Lair. Like the bridegroom, all wore their full dress uniforms, and, as Lieutenant Horne and his bride left the church, crossed sabres, forming an arch of steel under which the bride and bridegroom passed.

There was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 399 Convent Avenue, which was decorated with Spring flowers. It was followed by a dinner and, later, dancing for the bridal party and a few close friends.

Lieutenant Horne and his bride will motor across the continent to San Diego, Cal., where he will join the destroyer Aaron Ward, to which he has been assigned.

ART FEDERATION ASKS DISTRIBUTION OF WORK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Support for artists in the various communities and cities of the United States was urged in resolutions adopted today by the American Federation of Arts, in convention here at the Hotel Mayflower. Laymen interested in artistic endeavor were called upon to oppose the practice of calling outsiders to do work which artists nearer at hand were equally well qualified to perform.

Other resolutions adopted before adjournment included endorsement of the plans of the commission for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington; congratulations on the completion of the regional plan of development of New York City under the guidance of the Russell Sage Foundation; approval of the establishment of the Planning Foundation of America, which is intended to aid community planning, and endorsement of the Vestal bill, protecting by copyright original artistic designs.

The dawn of a greater art consciousness in America and the world was hailed by the honor guests and others who spoke tonight at the dinner which was the closing feature of the convention.

Among those who addressed the delegates were: Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Italian Ambassador; Vincent Massey, the Minister of Canada; Dr. Henry Suzzallo, president-elect of the Carnegie Foundation; Thornton Oakley of Philadelphia, painter; Dr. Augustus Vincent Tack of New York City, mural painter, and Flavel Shurtleff, director of the newly formed Planning Foundation of America.

NEW CITY HOSPITAL TO COST $3,844,600

Low Bids on Four Contracts for Psychopathic Institution Are Announced.

Low bids received yesterday by the Department of Hospitals on four contracts for the new psychopathic hospital to be built near Bellevue aggregated $3,844,600, though departmental engineers had estimated the work at $5,000,000.

The R. E. Smith Company bid $2,943,000 for the general construction of the building including transoms, and was the lowest of ten bidders. The highest bid, $3,299,000 was submitted by the Thomas J. Waters Company. Weber & Hamilton, Inc., had the low bid of $426,700 on the plumbing contract. The W. J. Cornell Company had the highest bid of six on this contract, estimating $555,000. Gillis & Geohegan bid low on the heating contract with $318,000. Of the other seven bidders the highest was $377,000, submitted by the Daniel J. Rice Company. The low bidder on the electrical work was the Rao Engineering Company, Inc., which bid $156,900. There were nine bidders on this contract. The highest bid, $172,500 was sent in by H. Z. Alberg, Inc.

After opening the bids Dr. J. G. William Greeff, commissioner of hospitals, called the low bidders into his office and explained that no contracts would be awarded until he was sure of the financial backing and experience of each bidder. Since the low bidder on the new Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn defaulted, Commissioner Greeff has made specifications for city hospitals much more stringent. He warned the bidders yesterday that if they received contracts the work must be completed in 550 days. If their contracts were broken in any way, he said the Department of Hospitals expected to exact every penalty provided in the contracts.

The hospital will be the largest and best equipped psychopathic hospital in the world, according to Dr. Menas S. Gregory, head of the department's psychiatric division. It will be built on the block bounded by Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets, First Avenue and the East River. Instead of being an insane institution it will be a general hospital of the most modern type with a maximum of privacy for patients. The rooms are designed for one to four patients and the walls will be soundproof. Restful color schemes and quiet decorations are expected to aid in obtaining curative results.

MRS. HOOVER ACTIVE AS HER INJURY MENDS

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP).—Despite the injuries which have confined Mrs. Herbert Hoover to couch and wheel chair for more than a month, she has continued to act the cheerful hostess and dispense hospitality at the White House. Arrayed in a dinner gown, she has trundled her way in her wheel chair, leading her guests from the Blue Room into the dining room.

She has had the Oval Room adjoining her bedroom on the second floor converted into a private sitting room, with furniture brought from her former Washington home in S Street. Close by is the Palm Room, also created by Mrs. Hoover, which supplants the Rose Room Mrs. Coolidge had there.

In this cozy upstairs retreat Mrs. Hoover, reclining on a couch, has received delegations of adult night school pupils from North Carolina, a party of visiting Japanese girls and a group of Girl Scouts.

When not receiving visitors Mrs. Hoover has passed the time knitting, reading, conferring with her secretaries and working out plans for rock gardens, one of which is being constructed at the President's camp on the Rapidan under her instructions. Another, which she planned, has just been completed at the Girl Scouts' little house.

Knitting has always been a favorite pastime with Mrs. Hoover and those invited to her private sitting room usually have found her with a ball of yarn in her lap. There has been much such work to do for her new grandchild, Joan Hoover. Writing letters to California has also helped to pass the time.

HOOVER WILL START EARLY FOR HIS CAMP

Large Party Will Go With the President Today to His Blue Ridge Retreat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Accompanied by a large party of guests, President Hoover will leave Washington at an early hour tomorrow and motor to his camp on the Rapidan River in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, where he will fish all day Saturday and spend half of Sunday in relaxation.

Before their departure the guests will have an early breakfast at the White House. The President is expected to return to the White House for dinner Sunday evening.

The guests with Mr. Hoover will include Secretary Stimson, Attorney General Mitchell, Under-Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Senators Capper and Fess, Governor Roosevelt of Porto Rico, Representatives Ramseyer of Iowa and Blackburn of Kentucky, J. Henry Roraback, Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut; Richard V. Oulahan, chief Washington correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES; Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries and Captain Joel T. Boone, U. S. N., the President's physician.

This will be the third trip of the President to the camp this year. He went early in April, but five weeks intervened before he found himself able to go again last week-end. He intends to go to the camp as many times as possible before he leaves for his trip to the West in July or August.

HOOVER'S BIRTHPLACE SHOWS CENSUS LOSS

Iowa Democrat Guesses 37 Residents Landed Jobs in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, May 16.—The Democrats of West Branch, birthplace of President Hoover, laughed uproariously today when the census announced that the Quaker village had lost thirty-seven in its population in the last ten years.

"Probably all gone to Washington to work for the government," one Democrat said, when he was informed that the ancient Quaker village population had been reduced. The population recorded was 651, as compared to 688 ten years ago.

Those who come to West Branch to live, come as babies and get away from it, one commuter remarked, as soon as they can travel.

Just the same, Cedar County, of which West Branch is a part, has occupied news space in the metropolitan press in the last week. There was not a marriage license issued in April nor a petit or grand jury called for May.

COOLIDGES BEGIN MOVING TO NEW HOME

Engage Truckman Who Provides Slippers for Workmen to Save Polished Floors.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 16.—Former President and Mrs. Coolidge began today moving furnishings into their new home, but they have not yet vacated their tenement in the duplex house in Massasoit Street.

Michael Gleason, a neighbor who conducts a trucking business, was engaged by Mr. Coolidge several days ago. He moved the articles which were brought from Washington by army trucks before the Coolidges left the White House.

The home which Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge rented for nearly twenty-five years will be vacated within a few days.

Mr. Coolidge was at "The Beeches" where he supervised the placing of things. Newspaper photographers sought his permission to make pictures but he asked them to wait until he was settled in his new home.

Mr. Gleason outfitted six workmen assigned to the Coolidge job with new overalls and slippers to prevent marring the polished floors at "The Beeches."

BAPTISTS ATTACK LIQUOR 'REBELLION'

Southern Church Urges Defeat of Candidates Who Do Not Support Prohibition Laws.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16 (AP).—Frowning upon the straw ballot and calling for mobilization of all patriotic citizens to oppose the "armed rebellion" against the national prohibition law, the commission on social service of the Southern Baptist convention today urged the denomination to seek defeat of any candidate for political office, from President down, who does not openly and frankly support the present prohibition laws.

The convention unanimously adopted the commission's report and adopted the $3,000,000 budget to cover next year's activities in Southern and mission work.

"Our people will not be fooled or trapped by 'the national prohibition survey' or any other of the so-called neutral or impartial movements devised by our friends in New York and Chicago 'to find a satisfactory solution of the liquor problem,'" said the report of the commission, submitted by Dr. A. J. Banton of Atlanta, its chairman, who is likewise chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

"There is no neutral ground in this war. It is 'war to the knife and knife to the hilt' between the forces of sobriety and orderly government on the one hand and the forces of liquor and lawlessness on the other.

"A safe rule is to ignore all irresponsible straw ballots and movements and not to be overmuch influenced by what appears to be returns of such ballots or movements, but to do full duty at the polls and see to it that nobody but patriots are on guard."

Denouncing the national referendum movement, the report declared that it was "intended to undermine one of the most fundamental principles of the government of the United States, the sovereignty of States' rights, direct powers in which the voice of the popular majority controls," said the commission.

"It is a government of States. It is a government of derived or delegated powers.

"All of the hue and cry about a national referendum has as its motive the desire to give New York, Chicago and other centres of drink and crime the power to break down States' rights and State sovereignty in determining all questions of constitution and law under our Federal system."

FORMBY, England, May 16.—A 19-year-old girl rose to the greatest heights of golf today and won the women's championship of Great Britain.

Playing in her first open championship, Miss Diana Fishwick of the North Foreland Club defeated Miss Glenna Collett, the American champion, over thirty-six holes by 4 and 3. Thus she turned back the most formidable invasion of women golfers that ever crossed from the United States and incidentally made golfing history.

It would have been a wonderful achievement for her even if only the British had been engaged. But when in winning she managed to defeat a woman golfer who, after Miss Joyce Wethered, probably is the best in the world, her performance becomes outstanding and can safely be described as memorable in the annals of British golf.

At the same time it is only fair to Miss Collett to say that in the first eighteen holes, at any rate, she was out of form. She obviously was very tired. The strain of two such hard matches as she had to play yesterday would have told on any one.

After the first round she could hardly eat any luncheon. That, in spite of this, she recovered her form in the afternoon and in the fifteen holes played was 1 up in the face of some really excellent golf, will always be remembered to her credit and shows what a great golfer she is.

Twice Miss Collett has come over many thousands of miles and twice she has had the cup just escape her.

Unable to Find Touch.

The story of the morning play—it started in beautiful, sunny weather with a steady southwesterly breeze that remained all day—is briefly a tale of putting. With good golfers it is often on greens that fatigue shows itself and this was the case with Miss Collett. She could not find her touch and on five occasions in the eighteen holes she missed putts that she would hole nine times out of ten.

The first was at the second hole, where she failed from four feet to get a half. She missed a very important one of four feet at the tenth hole to get a half.

She missed another of five feet which cost the eleventh, another of four feet to lose the sixteenth and followed that by taking three putts at the eighteenth, which she lost. Miss Fishwick, too, was not altogether guiltless, for she took three putts on the first green, the same number from six yards at the short fifth hole when two putts would have won it, and followed it by missing one of a yard to lose the sixth.

Otherwise there was little difference in the golf played by the two, although Miss Collett was not getting the advantage in distance that was expected.

Miss Collett Takes the First.

Miss Collett won the first hole in 4. Miss Fishwick squared at the second, also with a 4. The third was halved in 6 and Miss Fishwick became 1 up at the fourth, where she played a beautiful high approach and nearly got a birdie 3. The short fifth was halved in 4, Miss Collett having pulled her tee shot off the green, but she squared the match at the sixth, where Miss Fishwick made the third of her putting mistakes.

The seventh and eighth holes were halved in 5 and 4, respectively, and then Miss Fishwick drew ahead at the one-shot ninth with a 3, whereas her rival was short off the tee in a horrid, sandy lie and took a 5. The scores at that point were: Miss Fishwick, 41; Miss Collett, 43.

Then came the tenth and Miss Collett missed her putt and Miss Fishwick drew further ahead. The eleventh was halved in 5 but the English girl won another hole at the twelfth, where she hit two very fine wooden club shots to the entrance of the green and got a 4.

The next two holes were halved in 4 apiece and the fifteenth divided in 5, but at the short sixteenth Miss Collett met with further disaster.

Fine Tee Shots at Sixteenth.

Both hit fine tee shots on to the narrow plateau green. Miss Fishwick putted first and laid her ball dead on the far side of the hole. Miss Collett was left with a difficult problem. Her putt was downhill and curly. If she went for the hole and slipped past, a dead stymie must almost certainly result. She putted a little timidly, the hill took the ball and left her with a putt of five feet for a half, which she missed, and it was 4 up in favor of Miss Fishwick.

The seventeenth was halved in 5, both players just failing at putts for 4s, and then on the last green Miss Collett again took three putts and went to lunchen 5 down. The homeward scores were: Miss Fishwick 39, Miss Collett 43, which made their totals 80 and 86 respectively.

The afternoon was a different story. Miss Collett recovered her form, but Miss Fishwick did not lose hers, and accordingly that start of five holes was too much of a handicap even for the American. To the first hole Miss Collett hit a gorgeous spoon shot right on to the green for her second, whereas Miss Fishwick was forty yards short, but got a half in 4, with a lovely run-up.

MISS DIANA FISHWICK,
Who Won British Golf Final From Miss Glenna Collett, 4 and 3.

Miss Collett hit an exactly similar shot to the twentieth green. This time she was rewarded and won the hole, 4 to 5, the twenty-first and twenty-second holes were halved in 5 and 4 respectively, Miss Fishwick narrowly missing a birdie 3 at the twenty-second after a perfectly played high aproach, but at the short twenty-third Miss Collett again pulled her tee shot off the green. Miss Fishwick was on and got a 3 and became 5 up once more. She also won the twenty-fourth with a very fine 4.

British Sense Victory.

With twelve holes to play, the crowd of at least 4,000 was by now wild with excitement, for it realized Great Britain might retain the cup, which up to this time was much in doubt.

The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth holes were halved in 5 and 4 respectively, and that made it 6 up and 10 to play for Miss Fishwick, an even better position. But at the one-shot twenty-seventh Miss Collett played a perfect little run-up from the left edge of the green and got a 3, while Miss Fishwick took three putts, lost the hole and was 5 up with 9 to play. The score of each to this point was 38.

Miss Collett cheered her friends by winning the twenty-eighth hole also, with a 4, holding a putt of at least three yards. She was then 4 down with 8 to play. Then came the question: would Miss Fishwick crack? She didn't.

The next three holes were halved in 4, 5, 4 respectively, and Miss Fishwick was 4 up with 5 to play. Then Miss Collett got in her last thrust to the dogleg thirty-second.

Both were bunkered in 2, Miss Fishwick short and Miss Collett in the bunker that bites into the left of the green. Miss Fishwick got well out of it and on to the green some twelve yards short and to the right of the hole. What would Miss Collett do?

She studied the problem, went down into the bunker and flicked the ball out to within five feet of the pin—a perfect shot. Then after Miss Fishwick had missed, Miss Collett ran her putt down for a 4 and a victory—a really gallant effort. That was 3 up and 4 to play for Miss Fishwick.

Could Miss Collett keep up the pressure? For a moment it seemed as if she might. She hit a glorious drive and Miss Fishwick cut hers far out into the rough on the right.

Makes Fine Recovery.

From there, however, she hit a really fine spoon shot to just short of the last hill in front of the green. That meant Miss Collett had to go all out for the green. She did and hit a very long shot, but pushed it out a little and it ended in the rough on a difficult down-hanging sandy lie, about thirty yards to the right of the pin.

Miss Fishwick followed her fine second with a good pitch on to the green. Miss Collett found the problem set before her a little too difficult. She didn't quite get down to the ball, failed to reach the green, was past the hole by seven feet and then after Miss Fishwick had laid her putt dead, she failed to get down herself and all was over.

The scores home to that point were: Miss Fishwick 28, Miss Collett 27, which meant that if they had finished in 3, 4, 4, as they quite easily might, the completed rounds would have been 77, 76, respectively.

DARWIN EXTOLS VICTORIOUS TEAM

British Golf Expert Asserts Americans Functioned in Irresistible Fashion.

HIGH PRAISE FOR JONES

London Times in Editorial Sees Sole Glimmer of Hope in Miss Fishwick's Victory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—"They were too good for us," writes Bernard Darwin, describing the Americans' Walker Cup victory in The London Times. "If ever a ball was off the course, it was wholly unnecessary to ask to whom it belonged. That is the story in a nutshell.

"I doubt, however, if any one was prepared for the overwhelming brilliancy they let loose upon us in the singles. Long putts flew in all over the green. There were threes being done on all sides.

"Our men did their share and more astonishing golf than much of that played by Stout probably never has been seen, but the American scintillated all the time and as an entire team they were irresistible. Even those who knew them well were hardly prepared for such an onslaught. At the end of the day there was nothing to do but acknowledge the superiority of the victors and drink to the health of Miss Fishwick."

The most amazing feat of all, in Darwin's opinion, was the golf Bobby Jones uncorked after having finished the first nine all square with Wethered.

"Jones just went on and on like the most perfectly oiled machine. At the home hole Jones actually did put his second in a bunker. He laid the ball nearly dead out of it and then without seeming to try very hard missed the putt. He was around with 7 up, and that certainly was enough."

Discussing the days results editorially, The London Times sees the only gleam of encouragement for England in Miss Fishwick's victory at Formby. The crushing triumph of the United States in the Walker Cup play can mean only one thing in The Times's opinion:

"The figures do not, of course, mean that British golf is decadent. But they do mean that for some reason—partly perhaps because of superior fitness—the standard of amateur golf is and has been for the last few years higher in the United States than in these islands.

"It by no means follows that either our amateur or open championships will be won this Summer by Americans. There is life in the old dog yet. But not until a team chosen to represent our amateur players has carried off the Walker Cup at least once will it be possible to say that the royal and ancient game as played in Great Britain has renewed its youth."

TWO OF THE WINNERS IN WALKER CUP GOLF.

AMERICAN GOLFERS BEAT BRITISH, 10-2

By W. F. LEYSMITH.

pin all the way down an avenue formed by the black massed crowd, to rest within easy pin distance.

Stout, who stood figuratively "at the back door" to keep the match square at the last hole, made a determined effort but the ball overran the green.

After two more shots he removed his cap and walked across the green with extended hand to where the young victor stood.

Commanding Lead at Lunch.

At lunch the United States was standing in a reasonably safe position, with a commanding lead in four games and square in one. Harrison Johnston had got in front of Cyril Tolley, who was none too sure of his game. Jones, running away from Roger Wethered at the ninth by winning six holes in a row, was 7 up on the opposing captain.

George Von Elm had come in all square with young Rex Hartley, who had been hitting home great shots. George Voigt, who was robbed of a certain half on the home green through a spectator stopping the New Yorker's second shot with his neck just as it was falling on the green, was 6 up on Sir Ernest Holderness, and Roland Mackenzie, gaining a steady ascendancy over the Scotsman, William Campbell, from the jump, was 8 up.

On the other side of the ledger, Dr. O. F. Willing was 1 down to John Nelson Smith, who had given the doctor rough passage. Francis Ouimet had more than met his measure in T. A. Torrance, who was around in 70 and in addition had presented Ouimet with a hole at the fifteenth when he obligingly sank the American's ball.

Stout Plays in Great Form.

Young Donald Moe was 4 down to Stout, but that was hardly Moe's fault. He went out in 33 and was 1 down from the third hole. Stout had four 3s running, and the best thing Moe could do with this rocket was to hang onto its tail, waiting in the hope of his opponent's energy expending itself.

After lunch the Americans' supporters were not kept long in suspense. With Wethered put out by Jones, 9 and 8, Holderness out by 10 and 8 to Voigt and Tolley mastered by Johnston to the tune of 5 and 4, the United States required only one more triumph to keep the trophy. And both Mackenzie and Von Elm were well set for it.

Hopes of Von Elm's opponent, Hartley, faded in a bunker at the fifteenth, where a par 4 put Von Elm dormie 3, and with a half at the next hole the Walker Cup remained in America's keeping. About the same time the crowd learned that Mackenzie had knocked out Campbell, 6 and 5.

Francis Ouimet had already disappeared from the contest at the hands of Britain's lone victor, Torrance, in a 7 and 6 match, but with Dr. Willing, dead tired, but fighting off his younger opponent all the way to a 2-to-1 victory, America's job was well done.

In the top match of the morning Johnston played far better golf than Tolley. The United States amateur champion was always going straight for the pin and had Tolley 3 down at the fifth hole. Tolley got the sixth back owing to Johnston lifting his head on his approach, and they halved the seventh in par 4s.

To keep apace Johnston was confronted with a number of long putts which simply had to go down, and to his credit they went.

Tolley Erratic but Gets a Half.

The ninth hole provided another instance of the way Tolley went all around the mulberry bush to get to the green, while Johnston, going all the time straight for the pin and playing all shots like a real golfer, could get nothing better than a half.

Johnston turned 2 up, having had only one putt on five greens and being outdriven by the Englishman some times as much as fifty yards. His lead was reduced to one hole by a missed putt on the tenth—the first putt which Johnston played badly. Tolley then played three bad shots in succession and Johnston was 2 up again.

Tolley at this stage was causing the English critics much concern by putting off the toe of his aluminum putter with his heel cocked in the air. This undoubtedly enabled Johnston to halve the thirteenth which was a truly remarkable hole for him.

The American underclubbed his second shot, then playing a forcing shot with a mashie, rushed the ball out—a long wallop which finished in a deep sand trap guarding the right of the green. It took a hefty hack with a niblick to lift the ball which flew across the green and finished on the reverse sloping bank in long grass. A magnificent chip brought the ball dead to the cup.

But all this time Tolley had been lyin in easy putting distance in 2. The Englishman's first putt was a foot short and his second seemed to slip off the toe of his putter and they called it a half. That just about represented Tolley's style of play all the way in, with the British amateur champion hitting prodigious shots into the rough and making equally prodigious recoveries.

Jones All Square at Turn.

Jones and Wethered turned all square at the ninth in the second match without much blood being spilled on either side, but from then on Bobby Jones became Bobby Jones.

Wethered, who had had several chances of putting a hole or two in his pocket, now had none and when Jones sank a thirty-yard chip shot with the flag still in the cup at the thirteenth hole, the American was 4 up.

Wethered now could not keep out of the crowd. He hit spectators at the thirteenth and fourteenth and at the fifteenth knocked a man unconscious. Jones should get credit for a 4 at the fourteenth for he had so many strokes in hand that he merely rolled the ball up toward the cup and actually took three putts where two ordinarily would have sufficed. That would make his gross score 69 instead of 70.

The English captain was 5 down at the fourteenth and at the sixteenth had lost six holes in a row. He was so erratic at this stage that the stewards found it impossible to control the gallery and the crowd of about 3,000 stood around in groups hoping the ball would fall between them.

A par 3 at the sixteenth stopped the rout for the Englishman but Jones walked off the seventeenth green 7 up in sixty-five shots. The only blemish on his card was a five at the eighteenth, where he put his second shot in a bunker to the right of the green. He got out well but missed a short putt, although the ball lipped the cup.

Wethered could make no impression against his rival captain in the second round and did no more than relieve the pressure on the other matches by drawing away the crowd. The score just about represented the difference between their play and Jones has every reason to be happy about his prospects in the forthcoming British amateur championship which he is so keen to win.

In the third match Von Elm just went out to show that he is not the spent force that some English critics, who have compared his play with that of four years ago, have declared he is. He had the measure of his younger opponent all the way. He was getting his body into his shots with the club meeting the ball in the exact centre and much needed length was the result.

Voigt on Bad Terms With Putter.

Voigt in the fourth match was not at all on good terms with his aluminum putter against Holderness and has decided to change it before competing in the open and amateur championships and other events. It was unquestionably this instrument which saved Holderness from complete extinction in the morning round.

Despite so many slipped putts Voigt was out in 35 and home in 39, but the match up to this stage was so onesided that Voigt really had no occasion to extend himself.

After his victory Voigt said he had found the greens "terribly hard—the most difficult I have ever experienced." He added that he had no fear of not coming back on his short game as soon as he got on another course. "It is purely a mental phase," he declared.

Willing in the fifth match did a good turn to Britain in bringing out the good qualities in Nelson Smith's golf. But there is not much to be added to the game between Ouimet and Torrance except to say that the former hero of St. George's course seems to be getting along.

Ball Goes Into Spectator's Pocket.

But Mackenzie's match against Campbell will long be remembered for an extraordinary incident at the last hole in the morning. The American took a full punching iron for his second shot, but pushed it out among the spectators lining the fairway to the right about 180 yards from where the ball was struck.

"I hope I have not killed anyone," said Mackenzie as he ran forward. "That ball was traveling."

The commotion around that spot, however, was not caused by any injury to a spectator but from the fact that the ball could not be found.

"Where did it hit you?" asked a marker.

There was another search then suddenly the spectator cried:

GARDEN CITY, L. I., May 16.—Two veterans, in experience if not in years, and two members of golf's freshman class remain in the running for the honor of winning the Garden City Golf Club's twenty-fourth invitation tournament.

At the conclusion of the first and second rounds of match play today the survivors are Gardiner W. White of Nassau, who first played in this historic event back in 1909 and won it in 1911; Johnny Riddell of Cherry Valley, an "old stager," as golf goes in this day and age; Mark J. Stuart of Fox Hills and Paul Cavanagh of Southward Ho.

Stuart and Cavanagh are representatives of the more recent crop of golfers harvested in America, neither having been long enough out of college to forget the words of their alma mater songs.

Favored Players Beaten.

Had any one even guessed at the end of yesterday's qualifying round that this would be the quartet surviving tonight, they wolud have been adjudged players of long shots. Not because the four just mentioned are not deserving of being where they are, but because there appeared to be a few others in the field who were more highly fancied.

Among them were E. H. Driggs Jr. of Cherry Valley, winner of the event last year and present Long Island monarch; Paul Haviland of Brooklawn, George Hackl of Lakeville, Tommy Tailer of Cherry Valley and J. M. Robbins of Merion Cricket, yesterday's medalist.

However, one by one, each of these celebrities went down in the great landslide that started with the elimination of Briggs by Stuart and Robbins by G. H. Heilbron of Ardsley in the opening round and wound up with the defeat of Haviland by Stuart, of Hackl by White and of Tailer by Riddell in the subsequent play.

Riddell Wins on 19th.

The best match of the afternoon was the one between Riddell and Tailer, which went nineteen holes before a decision was reached. It might not have gone that far had not Tailer succeeded in pulling some glorious halves out of the fire.

The best performance of the day was Stuart's feat in eliminating both Driggs and Haviland—a man-sized task for anybody, and especially for one who not so long since underwent a major operation—but the honor of playing the best golf of the day went to White, who, against Hackl, was only 2 over 4s for fifteen holes, with a 6 on the par 4 ninth.

In order to beat Tailer, Riddell had to fight an uphill battle right to the end. Two down playing the fourth hole, as a result of a bunkered approach to the first and three putts on the third, Riddell was unable to haul up even.

Tailer Misses Short Putt.

He appeared to have the fifth, eighth and ninth marked down on his side of the ledger, but on each occasion his opponent performed some sort of a miracle to save his half. In the end, however, the sounder game prevailed, and once he did succeed in squaring the match Riddell never wavered. Tailer's last opportunity vanished when he missed a short putt for a win on the fourteenth, and a poor drive to the extra hole finished him.

White, playing the first eight holes in even 4s, had Hackl 4 down at that point. His first and only bad hole was the ninth, where, after taking three shots to reach the green, he took three putts. Par for the next six holes enabled him to finish the match at that juncture.

There was no telling which way the wind was blowing in the Stuart-Haviland match until after the turn. At that point, they were just where they started. Haviland was 1 up at the tenth, which he won with a 4, but Stuart caught him at the eleventh, where he was bunkered. After a half on the twelfth, Stuart won three of the next four holes to take the match 3 up and 2 to go, finishing with a birdie.

Cavanagh had an easy victory in each round, defeating Chris Dunphy, 5 and 4, in the first and then trouncing Heilbron, Robbins's conqueror, 7 and 6.

LONDON, May 16 (Canadian Press)—The cricket match between the Australians and Lancashire at Liverpool today was left drawn. The scores were: Lancashire, 176 and 102; Australia, 115 and 137 for two wickets. The Australians, who failed badly yesterday before Lancashire bowlers, were in better form today, though they never stood a chance of winning the match in the time left for them to bat.

Worcestershire beat Middlesex by six wickets at Lord's, the scores being, Middlesex, 63 and 191; Worcester, 86 and 168 for four wickets (Nicol 54, Gibbons 59, not out).

Yorkshire won from Cambridge University at Cambridge by ten wickets. Cambridge scored 27 and 257 (Killick 68, Makaulay, four wickets for 82 runs); Yorkshire, 258 and 127 for no wickets (Mitchell 56, Oldroyd 52).

Kent won from Somerset by eight wickets at Bath. Somerset's totals were 228 and 76 and Kent's 319 and 119 for two wickets.

Glamorgan got the points for a first-innings lead on Surrey at Swansea. The Welshmen hit 174 and 166 for six wickets, while Surrey made 163.

Leicester and Oxford University drew at Oxford, Leicester hitting up 105 and 310 for nine wickets, declared, and Oxford 109 and 210 for six wickets. George Geary, Leicestershire bowler, scored 12, not out, in the county's second innings.

JONES VOICES PLEASURE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SANDWICH, England, May 16.—Here is what the rival captains had to say about the result of the Walker Cup matches:

Bobby Jones—I cannot speak too highly of Don Moe's performance. He will go a long way, I am sure. After Jess Sweetser had declined the invitation to join the team I wondered how I was going to pair my foursomes. It panned out well, and I am glad the results justified my selections.

Roger Wethered—The better team won, and I was happy to be the first to congratulate Jones on his well-deserved victory.

PRINCETON BEATS YALE'S GOLF TEAM

DARTMOUTH DEFEATS PENN

Red and Blue, However, Scores Against Williams—Georgetown Subdues Brown.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.
Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. Y., May 16.—Princeton's undefeated golf team added another victory to its string by a triumph over Yale, 6 to 3, in an Intercollegiate League combat over the Green Meadow Country Club links today.

Thus far, Princeton, holder of the intercollegiate team championship, has won six dual college matches seponsored by the league and this afternoon's victory was scored over a team that is likely to be Princeton's strongest opponent when the intercollegiate title is decided at Oakmont next month.

In the leading match George T. Dunlap Jr., Princeton's No. 1 player, defeated Forbes Wilson of Yale by 1 up at the twenty-first hole and seldom have these two fought as interesting a struggle in the many years that various competitions have brought them together since they first played each other as youngsters at Pinehurst.

Wilson Out in 33.

Wilson, driving a tremendous ball from the tee, was out in 33, one under par, and led by 3 up. But poor putting at the eleventh and twelfth, after he had overplayed the tenth, cost him three holes in succession and squared the match.

Wilson had the advantage by 1 up once more after the seventeenth, but Dunlap squared the match at the home hole and then took the third extra hole for victory.

Extra-hole honors also went to Morrison Waud of Princeton, who defeated Jack Reese at the twenty-fifth hole in the longest struggle of the day. Princeton added two victories in the foursomes to the four singles won, the Tiger captain, Frank Hersey, scoring a 68 in defeating John Merwin, 3 and 2.

Brodbeck in Fine Form.

In the other college matches, Dartmouth defeated Pennsylvania by 5 to 4, but the Red and Blue squad scored in the afternoon against Williams by the same score, Al Brodbeck, who heads both the basketball and golf teams at Penn, winning both his singles matches and being a member of the winning foursome morning and afternoon.

Georgetown's team scored against Brown by 7 to 2 for a comparatively easy victory, displaying some of the best golf the team has played thus far this season.

16 TO START TODAY IN KENTUCKY DERBY

CROWD OF 80,000 LIKELY

Dry and Fast Track Indicated—Field May Be Reduced to 12 With Mudders Scratched.

LORD DERBY WILL ATTEND

To Present Gold Trophy to Winner and Speak on Radio—Tannery Rules Second Choice.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—The thousands of visitors from the East and North who are here tonight for the fifty-sixth Kentucky Derby can see only one horse in tomorrow's running of the famous Churchill Downs classic and that horse is the Belair Stud's Preakness winner, Gallant Fox.

A field of sixteen has been named to go to the post for the mile and a quarter test, which will have a gross value of $61,750 if none is scratched.

From the railroad yards, where glare lights hastily installed to show the way to private cars and special trains on sidings to the crowded hotel lobbies, where the visitors foregather, the New York horse is prominent. He seems likely to be as short priced a favorite as Morvich was in the Derby of 1922.

But there is a strong undertow the other way, too. The bootblack, the taxi man, the country gentleman from his estate out in the Blue Grass and the ordinary clerk hurrying from his office smile knowingly at report of the prowess of the big horse from the East and then tell you about Tannery, Kentucky bred and Kentucky owned, which is the second choice.

Derby Spirit Strong.

There may be greater races than the Kentucky Derby, but there is no enthusiasm more intense than that generated in this city on the banks of the Ohio. Perhaps 80,000 persons will see tomorrow's race—maybe only 50,000, for there is no doubt that the crowd is smaller than a year ago or two years ago. But the same bubbling effervescence that attends Derby eve was rampant.

Clear weather prevailed today, and indications are for a dry and fast track tomorrow. If this expectation is fulfilled, several mudders seem sure to be scratched from the field of sixteen. The number of starters may be only twelve, and among horsemen this is pleasing, for it enhances the probability of a more truly run race with an absence of bumping and interference.

Lord Derby of England will be the guest of honor and will present to the winner the gold trophy of victory and speak over the radio. He, too, is keen to see the race. The famous classic, first run at Epsom in 1780, and after which all Derby events have been named, was itself named after the house of Derby.

Gallant Fox, overwhelming favorite though he is, is not the only Eastern horse entered, nor is Tannery the only Westerner. Crack Brigade, owned by T. M. Cassidy of New York, which ran second to Gallant Fox in the Wood Memorial and Preakness, is one that has many friends. Cassidy is here and will follow the fortunes of his colt just as closely as will William Woodward, owner of the Belair stud.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler are here. Mr. Ziegler is the owner of Gone Away, a third Eastern horse. A fine two-year-old and the colt that split Harry Payne Whitney's great pair of Whichone and Boojum in the Champagne Stakes, Gone Away has yet to win this year.

Ned O. Is Only Gelding.

Ned O. is regarded as an Easterner but is Maryland bred and Maryland owned. It is a coincidence that he and Gallant Fox both were bred by Mr. Woodward at his Belair stud, which is in Prince Georges County, in Maryland. He is the only gelding in the race.

The only filly entered is H. P. Headley's Alcibiades, a smart juvenile which was second in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes last Fall and a winner here last Wednesday. She is a Kentucky horse.

The E. R. Bradley pair of Breezing Tru and Buckeye Poet, both mediocre juveniles, have advanced in workouts until they are deemed formidable competitors and doubtless will get much support. Bradley has won the Derby twice and no man ever has won it three times. Many Kentucky hunch players believe that this may be another Bradley year as the master of Idle Hour scored one, two on both previous occasions and he has two horses in the present running.

Uncle Luther is a great mudder which seems sure to be scratched if the track is dry. He, too, is a Kentucky horse and was first in the Derby Trial last Tuesday. But no winner of a Derby Trial has ever won the Derby, so Uncle Luther has a jinx as well as track conditions to overcome.

The only other Kentucky horse is Busy, owned by J. B. Respess. A very doubtful starter, Busy has little or nothing to recommend him, and many think he does not belong in the race.

320 Mutuel Booths.

There will be 320 mutuel booths for wagering and 108 of these will open at 10 A. M. The track gates will be unlocked at 7 A. M., as there is always a world's series aspect of waiting for unreserved seats. The 1,600 boxes available at Churchill Downs were taken long ago.

Colonel Matt J. Winn, who has bronze statues of the last eight Derby winners in his private offices, said that Mrs. Kathleen Wheeler of Washington would make a statue of tomorrow's winner. Mrs. Wheeler has made pastels of twenty of the former Derby winners, which have been praised as faithful reproductions.

Nation-Wide Broadcast Set For Kentucky Derby Today

The Kentucky Derby will be broadcast on a coast-to-coast basis by the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System today. More than fifty stations will participate in the N. B. C. hook-up, while approximately seventy will figure in the Columbia network.

The N. B. C. broadcast will start at 6:30 P. M. (New York time), and continue until 8 P. M. with WEAF, the New York station. The Columbia System will go on the air with the Derby at 6:30 P. M. (also New York time) and continue until 7:30 P. M. with WABC, the metropolitan station.

Graham McNamee and Clem McCarthy will be at the microphone for the N. B. C., while Ted Husing will be the announcer for the Columbia circuit. Lord Derby is scheduled to speak over the N. B. C. chain at the conclusion of the Derby.

SOCIETY IS READY FOR DERBY PARTIES

DUE AT TRACK AT NOON

Lord Derby Forced to Cancel Breakfast Engagement Today Due to His Indisposition.

Special to The New York Times

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—Society folk from many sections of the country will be present at the Kentucky Derby tomorrow, with added color being contributed to the occasion by the presence of Lord Derby.

The English Earl, who is visiting this country as a guest of Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, was forced to remain away from a luncheon at the Hartland Farm of Johnson N. Camden, former United States Senator, today, due to an indisposition.

A dinner scheduled in honor of Lord Derby at the Pendennis Club tonight was held, but Lord Derby was absent. He also will be unable to attend a breakfast at the clubhouse at Churchill Downs tomorrow. However, he will leave Lexington in Mr. Widener's private car attached to a special train to arrive at the race track about noon where he will have luncheon. Mr. Widener so informed Colonel M. J. Winn to that effect this afternoon.

Woodward Visits Lord Derby.

William Woodward of New York was a visitor to Lord Derby last night at the Widener home and represented the Earl at Mr. Camden's luncheon which was attended by more than three score guests. Most of them were Kentucky breeders and horsemen in whose farms and stock Lord Derby is interested.

Mr. Widener's report on Lord Derby said that he had a temperature slightly above normal and insisted on being up and about. Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who was personal physician to President Wilson, visited at the Widener home today.

Among those present at the Camden luncheon were Messrs. Widener, Woodward, A. B. Hancock, Phil T. Chinn and Stuyvesant Peabody. All will be hosts to parties at Churchill Downs tomorrow. Governor Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky will be present with a party.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler of New York will have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Page Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Randolph and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy.

H. Teller Archibald, Chicago owner, will be host to a party. John Schanck, president of the Chicago Business Men's Association, also will entertain, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Head will occupy their box with friends.

Cumming to Attend.

A. J. Cumming, president of the Maryland State Fair Association, which races at Laurel, will be present with Mrs. Cumming and party.

Among visitors from New Orleans is Joseph Helm. From the West Herbert M. Woolf, C. J. Bearinger, C. E. Hannold, R. H. Busch and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kenney have arrived.

New Yorkers with reservations for race day include Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tweedy and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy. Many Easterners came by plane. A Philadelphia tri-motored Ford brought F. A. Healy, H. T. Stanton and friends.

B. G. Dahlberg's Sikorsky amphibian had Mrs. Dahlberg and Miss R. D. Davis from Detroit as passengers. Charles Daly Jr. piloted his Curtiss Challenger plane from St. Louis with J. J. Smith as a passenger. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan 3d flew here from Texas in a Watkins plane and are going on to New York after the race.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Dixon Clark of Henderson and William and George Haven of Cincinnati will be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Parsons Kelly. Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Martin will have as their guests Dr. C. F. Rau, Mrs. Rau and Miss Elsie Rau of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lyon of Durham, N. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Royce of Kenilworth, Ill., will visit Mr. and Mrs. Kinnaird Rowe.

Mrs. L. R. Peyton of St. Louis will be the guest of Mrs. Walker H. Bowman Jr. Dr. C. H. Kineman and Mrs. Kineman of Topeka, Kan., are the guests of Mrs. C. H. Kaiser. Mrs. A. B. Letellier of New Orleans and Mrs. C. R. Kerr will be guests in the box of Mrs. L. Datman. Mr. and Mrs. M. Rosenberg of Chicago will be entertained by Mrs. J. Schiff.

Grover Penrod of Chicago will have Mrs. W. C. Hobson of Nashville and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Penrod of Nashville as guests. Arch De Bow of St. Louis arrived yesterday and will be the Derby guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Embry. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mitchell of Pittsburgh are at the Mayflower. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farney of Cincinnati also are at the Mayflower.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Kelterbacher of Cincinnati have taken an apartment. Miss Lillian Warner of Nashville, Tenn., arrived. Miss Warner is the house guest of Mrs. Milam Hamill Varner of Boulevard Napoleon.

ALDERSHOT, 1 TO 2, WINS DEBUT STAKES

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Gifford A. Cochran's colors were carried to victory in the Début Stakes, the featured event at Belmont Park yesterday. His Aldershot, a gelded chestnut son of Man o' War and Coronis, scored the triumph. Xenofol, also carrying the Cochran silks, was third, behind the Rolling Plains Stable's Milkman.

The Début is fashioned after a famous race run in France and is confined to 3-year-olds which have never before gone to the races. It was introduced for the first time in this country in 1928 by Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, in an effort to encourage saving 2-year-olds for their 3-year-old form.

The third running yesterday brought twelve to the post, four of which were fillies. The race was at seven furlongs on the main course and the winner's share of the purse was $3,925. Before the race was run there was a very pronounced trend toward the Cochran entry, with the result that Aldershot and Xenofol went to the post at 1 to 2. And this judgment was perfectly justified as the race developed.

In Front All the Way.

Aldershot was much the best of the field and Jockey Jimmy Burke shot the son of Man o' War to the front at the drop of the barrier and kept him there to the end, to win by five lengths.

Pony McAtee, riding Milkman, made a determined fight for it through the stretch, but, though he cut down some of Aldershot's lead, he never could get close enough to make it interesting, and right at the end Xenofol came so strongly that he just missed making it one, two for Mr. Cochran, losing the place by only a head.

That Bud Broom, the 3-year-old chestnut colt which races for Frank E. Brown, is a good horse again was demonstrated in the Freeport Handicap, a dash of a mile, in which only four started. He withstood a grueling drive to beat Quarter Deck, a son of Man o' War. The victor was the 13-to-10 favorite.

The race was the most stirring of the afternoon and resulted in the disqualification of Quarter Deck. This moved the Rancocas Stable's Kai Feng to second place and Spearhead into third. Jockey J. Eaby was set down for five days as a result of his ride on Quarter Deck. The disqualification came as a result of a jamming at the quarter pole when Quarter Deck crossed over on Kai Feng. The latter made the early pace but was overtaken by Quarter Deck.

Kai Feng Is Taken Up.

With Bud Broom running on the outside and Kai Feng and Quarter Deck nearer the rail, they reached the quarter pole. Jockey E. Steffen started to move up with Kai Feng when Eaby and Quarter Deck crossed over. Steffen had to take up, but he set his charge down again and was coming fast at the finish.

Kelsay brought Bud Broom up with a rush in the last seventy yards to win by a length and a half. Bud Broom ran the mile over the heavy track in 1:42.

Black Castle moved up stoutly in the last furlong. Brandon Dare was running strongly at the end. Intractable tired badly.

MANFIELD of London has an International reputation for making a Lightweight shoe that will W-E-A-R and stand up and take punishment like a Heavyweight.

We wanted to find out his secret of taking the Weight out of the sole, without taking out the Wear,—and just how Manfield kept a light calfskin upper leather from "running over the sole" of a close trimmed edge.

A piece of English Kip leather is sewed in along either side of the shoe between the OUTSIDE Upper Leather and the INSIDE cloth Toe Lining. These invisible side stays act like the outside wing tip of a heavy brogue and preserve the original shape of the Featherweight.

We were given the secret chemical formula that Manfield uses to treat his outersoles, rendering them as flexible as a house slipper, at the same time filling in the pores of the leather and thereby actually increasing wear.

The solid leather heels are hollowed out and wooden pegged to remove weight where there is no wear. We made note of the special flexed solid leather innersoles that will not buckle or chafe the soles of your feet.

And we purchased 44 pairs of Manfield's original Featherweights for 4 Guineas ($20.16) per pair, so that we could show you today, side by side, one of Manfield's $20.16 originals with the $6.60 Regal Reproduction in every Regal store.

In the Regal Reproduction, we have carefully copied every detail of the original English Featherweight. Inside and outside, top and bottom, the two shoes are exactly the same, except that Manfield's $20.16 original is made by Hand in England, while the $6.60 Regal Reproduction is made in our own Factory in America.

Red Sox Beat Yankees in Ninth; Robins Stop Reds and Take Second Place

GOMEZ IN PITCHING DUEL

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 16.—Bill Sweeney's double to right centre with two out in the ninth drove home the run that smashed the Yankees' winning streak of four straight when they exposed it to the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park today. The 5 to 4 score represented the final status of a game played in two sections, a long one and a short one.

Rain, starting in the sixth, grew heavy enough to cause time to be called, with two out in the Yankees' half of the ninth, shortly after Pinch Hitter Bill Dickey tied the score with a home run into the right-field bleachers. The crowd, augmented to 13,000 by 5,000 Ladies' Day guests of the Boston club, clustered under the sheltering roofs of the stands until the sun reappeared fifteen minutes later.

Lary promptly fanned for the Yankees' last out. Due to the pinch hitting of Reese and Dickey, a revised Yankee infield took the field, with Lazzieri at third and Reese at second, while Sherid went to the mound.

Scarritt Forces Durst.

Sherid walked Cedric Durst, recently a team-mate, to start Boston's ninth. Scarritt's bunt forced Durst at second. Regan popped to Gehrig. Then Sweened rifled the ball to right centre and Scarritt skipped all the way home from first without having to slide.

The first and longer division of the game was chiefly a pitching duel between Vernon Gomez and Danny MacFayden. The hits off them stood seven to five, with Gomez holding the advantage, but the slim southpaw left the game on the short end of the score because all but one of Boston's hits figured in run-making.

A pass to Berry, MacFayden's double and Oliver's single scored two for the Sox in the third. Gehrig tied the score with a single to centre which drove home Ruth and Lazerri in the fourth. A pass and a double had given the Babe and Tony their places on the bases.

Retires Side Quickly.

MacFayden became Boston's hero by the way he shut down on the Yanks in the fourth and fifth. The Yankee fourth-inning runs were scored with none out. But after Gehrig's single, MacFayden quickly retired the side. In the fifth singles by Gomez and Combs, with a pass to Lary, filled the bases with none out. MacFayden then won lavish plaudits by striking out Ruth and Lazzeri. Gehrig's lofty fly to Oliver left the bases filled with prospective runs, which never materialized.

In the late innings the wet ball bothered both of the mound duelists. With two out in the Yankee eighth, Gehrig's double and Hargrave's single put the Yanks ahead, 3 to 2. Pinch-hitter Otis Miller led off the home eighth with a low liner, which Combs could not hold. This single was followed by a triple from Charlie Berry's bat, a drive to right centre which scored Narlesky, running for Miller.

Johnson replaced Gomez and Pinch-hitter Webb's sacrifice fly scored Berry. The Sox, with Ed Durham pitching the ninth, held a 4-to-3 lead until Dickey, batting for Johnson, whaled his second homer of the season into the bleachers close to the right-field foul line.

SENATORS DEFEAT ATHLETICS TWICE

Two Triumphs Enable Winners to Take First Place, From Which Losers Are Ousted.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16 (AP).—Bump Hadley and Ad Liska pitched a pair of good games for the Washington Senators today to send them into first place in the American League in place of the Athletics with victories over the Mackmen in both contests of a double-header. The scores were 5 to 3 and 4 to 0.

Liska, young underhand pitcher, turned in the best performance, holding the world's champions to three hits in the second game. A home run by Joe Judge in the eighth inning accounted for three Senator runs in this contest. Washington made only six hits off Earnshaw and Rommel.

In the opening contest Washington nicked George Walberg for two pairs of runs by bunching hits in the second and fourth innings, added one more off Quinn, then held off a Philadelphia rally at the finish. Hadley, giving ten hits, was never in danger except in the eighth when the Ahtletics scored all of their three runs.

By hitting safely in both games, Sam Rice, Washington outfielder, ran his string of consecutive games to 27.

SCHMELING GETS LICENSE.

Commission Grants Permit After Boxer Signs Garden Agreement.

The Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling world's heavyweight championship battle actually was signed and sealed yesterday, ready for delivery in the Yankee Stadium on the night of June 12 on the occasion of the annual Milk Fund charity boxing carnival.

The last obstacle to the signing of this battle, which is to produce a successor to Gene Tunney, was removed yesterday at the meeting of the State Athletic Commission when Commissioners William Muldoon and John J. Phelan acted favorably on the application of Schmeling for a boxing license and the permit was issued.

The way for the issuance of Schmeling's license was paved at Endicott, N. Y., scene of the German's training camp, where Schmeling and his American manager, Joe Jacobs, signed a contract with the Madison Square Garden exclusive call on the services of Schmeling, if he beats Sharkey for the title, in the German's first bout here in defense of the crown.

FREDERICK'S BAT HELPS ROBINS WIN

His Three Doubles and Single Figure in Scoring of Five Runs Against Reds.

VANCE IS MOUND VICTOR

Allows Only One Earned Tally and Fans Six—Brooklyn Advances to Second Place.

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 16.—Behind the excellent pitching of Dazzy Vance, who has allowed only two earned runs in the last eighteen innings he has worked, the Robins today overpowered the Reds by the score of 10 to 3, gaining a clean sweep in the abbreviated series here.

The victory of the Robins, coupled with the triumph of the Cardinals over the Cubs, sent Brooklyn into second place behind the Giants.

Sixteen hits, including four doubles and three triples, rattled off the Robin bats. An early assault on Red Lucas, last season's star Cincinnati pitcher, netted five runs in the first two innings and sent Lucas to the showers to be replaced by Ray Kolp, who finished the game but allowed five more runs.

The Brooklyn assault was opened and chiefly maintained by Johnny Frederick, who figured largely in the scoring of five runs with three doubles and a single in five trips to the plate. His final two-base blow in the eighth brought his total of that brand of extra-base hits for the season to nine, giving him great momentum toward tying or surpassing his least year's record of fifty-three.

Earn Only One Run.

Only one of the Red runs off Vance was earned. That came in the sixth inning on successive singles by Bob Meusel and Harry Heilmann and Stripp's sacrifice fly. Two tallies pushed across in the opening inning were directly chargeable to an error by Captain Glenn Wright, who booted Heilmann's easy grounder with two out and Meusel on base. Stripp hit the scoreboard with a double immediately thereafter to send Meusel and Heilmann home.

Brooklyn registered the first run in the opening frame on Frederick's double and Babe Herman's single, but was halted when Wright grounded into a double play. In the second inning, however, Bissonette and Bressler started the heavy firing on Lucas with a pair of triples and then, after Finn and DeBerry grounded out, Vance himself continued the assault with a clean single to centre. Frederick followed with another single, Gilbert doubled off the distant left-field wall, and Howley waved Lucas off the hill. That ended the scoring for the frame at four runs.

The third inning saw three more Robins cross the plate, a walk to Wright, singles by Bressler and De Berry, and Frederick's second double accounting for the total.

Finn Hits a Single.

Frederick's final double in the eighth, coupled with Gilbert's single, and Bressler's second triple in the ninth, followed by Mickey Finn's single, his first and only hit, gave the Robins their other two runs.

Vance pitched easily and effectively, bearing down in the few pinches he faced. In the sixth, with one run in, two on and one out, he fanned both Kelly and Critz to end the inning. He fanned six, in most cases with men on bases. Vance now has won four games and lost two.

CARDS' 4 IN NINTH CONQUER THE CUBS

Douthit's Single Sends In Tying and Winning Runs—21 Safeties for Victors.

ST. LOUIS, May 16 (AP).—The Cardinals scored four runs in the ninth inning today to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 8, in the first game of the series. Although the Cardinals made twenty-one hits, they trailed until Douthit singled in the ninth, bringing in the tying and winning runs.

Cuyler and Heathcote of the Cubs and Gelbert of the Cards hit for the circuit. Gelbert's home run was one of his five hits for a perfect day at bat. Douthit also had five hits, but he batted once more than Gelbert.

Wild Bill Hallahan, the Cardinals' starting pitcher, retired in favor of a pinch hitter after the Cubs had scored five runs in the sixth. Pat Malone was charged with the defeat and Frankhouse was credited with the victory.

MONTREAL HITTING REPULSES NEWARK

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, May 16.—Herbie Thormahlen, veteran southpaw of the Royals, turned in his fifth straight victory of the season today, and the locals took the second game and evened their series with the Newark Bears. The score was 11 to 4.

The home club hammered Pitchers Edgar Carroll and Eddie Fellenstin from the box in the first inning, when they made seven hits for nine runs. Alfred Jones came in to stop the onslaught and pitched good ball until the seventh, when he retired for a pinch hitter.

Thormahlen kept Newark's thirteen hits well scattered and was never in danger, with an eight-run lead to work on after the initial inning.

WOLGAST IS WINNER AND RETAINS TITLE

LOSER HAS HEART ATTACK

Referee Scores Decision as Knockout in Sixth—Dorfman Defeats Guida in Semi-Final.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Willie La Morte's flyweight championship aspirations ended abruptly last night in Madison Square Garden, where the little Newark Italian went down in defeat before Midget Wolgast, defending champion from Philadelphia, in their scheduled fifteen-round bout. The contest was halted following the close of the fifth round when La Morte, walking falteringly to his corner, suddenly collapsed, falling head foremost to the ring canvas.

A crowd of 5,096 fight fans, which paid $15,127 to view the spectacle, was thrown into an uproar when La Morte collapsed. The going had been lively and Wolgast had subjected his rival to a rather severe body battering at close quarters and had annoyed La Morte no little with left hooks to the head at long range.

Dr. William H. Walker, State Athletic Commission physician, leaped into the ring as soon as the Newark lad collapsed. Dr. Walker, after a preliminary examination, ordered La Morte to his dressing room and after a thorough examination announced La Morte had collapsed from a spasm of the heart.

Boxer Goes to Hospital.

Although he said La Morte appeared in satisfactory condition and the boxer himself said he felt all right, Dr. Walker recommended La Morte's removel to the Polyclinic Hospital as a measure of caution. At the hospital La Morte received emergency treatment and was sent home.

The dramatic finish caused a knockout defeat to be chalked against the record of La Morte, but provoked the time-worn argument as to whether the knockout should be scored in the fifth round or the sitxh. Referee Jim Crowley, before leaving the ring, said the knockout was scored in the sixth session, since the fifth round had been completed.

Judge Charles F. Mathison, whose counsel was engaged in writing the New York State Athletic Commission's boxing rules, insisted the knockout was scored in the fifth round under an understanding which makes the one-minute rest between rounds part of the preceding session. Mathison said that since the bell had not rung for the start of the sixth session, the fifth round was the concluding chapter of the fight.

Halts Wolgast Temporarily.

Wolgast was on the easy road to victory when the dramatic climax came. He had outpunched and outfought and outboxed La Morte through five solid rounds and appeared to be warming to his task when the finish came. Wolgast's double-action left hook to the face was the first development of the battle and proved the champion's chief weapon of attack. It kept La Morte backing away in retreat.

In the first round La Morte twice drove solid right-hand smashes to the jaw and temporarily halted Wolgast. But the punches could not stop the champion and the Philadelphian quickly resumed the offensive in each instance and continued to pound and batter his foe.

Near the end of the fifth session Wolgast ripped home with two solid right-hand blows to the heart which, coupled with the fact that La Morte had difficulty making the weight, are believed to have induced the Newark challenger's collapse.

The outcome paves the way for a battle between Wolgast and Frankie Genaro, National Boxing Association flyweight champion, which is calculated to end the confusion surrounding the 112-pound title. Wolgast is the recognized champion here, and until last night La Morte held an interest in the crown by grace of a victory over Corporal Izzy Schwartz at a time when Schwartz was the titleholder.

Sammy Dorfman, east side lightweight, carried off the decision over rugged Eddie Guida of Harlem in their ten-round bout which served as the semi-final. Dorfman won the decision of Referee Jim Crowley and Judges Ray Farrell and Charles F. Mathison, after a battle that was lively and interesting throughout. The east sider had to survive a volcanic three-round closing rally, however, to insure his victory.

The small crowd did not like it when Judges George Kelly and Ray Farrell and Referee Danny Ridge gave Archie Bell, Brooklyn featherweight, the decision over Domenico Bernasconi, pugnacious Italian, in the first ten-round bout. Judged by the outburst of condemnation, not an observer in the paid assemblage agreed with the verdict. So noisy and sustained was the demonstration, in fact, that announcer Joe Humphries found it impossible to introduce the principals in the semi-final.

Martin Zuniga, California weatherweight, won the award over Sammy Fertell, east side lad, in the opening bout of four rounds.

ANSELM KNOCKS OUT COVELLI IN FIRST

Frankie (Kid) Anselm, 117¾, 369th Infantry, bantamweight champion of the National Guard, knocked out Frankie Covelli, 116¾, Fort Hamilton, in the first round of their scheduled twelve-round bout last night at the 106th Infantry Armory before a crowd of 7,000.

In the eight-round semi-final in which two former bantamweight champions were featured, Benny Tell, 122½, Naval Militia, outpointed Tommy Abobo, 119, 102d Medical Regiment.

Ruby Greenberg, 134½, Twenty-seventh Division Train, knocked out Ralph Eposito, 135½, 212th Anti-Aircraft Regiment, in the third round of a scheduled eight-round bout.

Benny Brostoff, 125, of the home regiment, outslugged Frankie Minerva, 125¾, of the Fourteenth Infantry, to gain the verdict in the first eight.

ENTERPRISE BEATS RESOLUTE AGAIN

WINS BY OVER 11 MINUTES

Bad Weather Delays Start and Two Yachts Return to Port as Dusk Is Falling.

By JAMES ROBBINS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 16.—In a long race on Long Island Sound yesterday, Enterprise, the new America's Cup yacht, again clearly demonstrated her superiority over Resolute, the last cup defender. They covered 34½ miles and Enterprise made 11 minutes and 45 seconds faster time.

Dusk was beginning to cast her shades when the two yachts reached port, and a kindly breeze that held to the end and failed to go down with the setting sun alone saved them from going into a twilight sleep. They had 8 miles of close reaching, 13¼ miles of running before the wind and 13¼ miles of beating against an 18-mile-an-hour breeze.

Enterprise Proves Faster.

On all points of sailing Enterprise proved faster. It was arranged beforehand that Resolute receive a two-minute start. Allowing for that, Enterprise beat her by 9 minutes and 45 seconds.

Enterprise had her new light wooden mast, with a complete set of new stays and blocks, there being a complete rig for each of her three masts. She also had a new mainsail. Resolute appeared with a double set of spreaders on her mast for the first time. She had a single set before. Her mainsail also had been recut and fitted like a glove.

Prospects for Race Poor.

Prospects for the race were anything but bright in the morning and a long wait for a settling of the wind and water conditions caused the late finish.

It has been surprising how Enterprise has been able to slip through the water as fast as she has, as her underbody had a heavy coat of oil put on before she was launched to keep the metal surface from fouling. This is a drag to some extent, and will be cleaned off before the races with the other new cup boats.

THE SUMMARY.

Yacht	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Enterprise	3:40:00	7:19:35	3:39:35
Resolute	3:38:00	7:29:20	3:51:20

. . . the guy they call "Alibi Ike" . . . he always says, "I'm too busy. Let George do it" . . . or, "No foolin', I wasn't the one. It musta been somebody else." But to thousands, "B. P." means "BAYUK PHILLIES"—the cigar men buy because they like the flavor. And like it well enough to pay a dime!
"PHILLIES" are ripe tobacco. And when tobacco is ripe, it's RIGHT! It tastes so good, that on the first puff you tell yourself, "Go slow." Because you want all the joy you can get. And there's plenty of it in "PHILLIES." If you want to be popular, don't pass the buck—pass "BAYUK PHILLIES."

COLUMBIA RALLIES TO BEAT SYRACUSE

Trailing, 2-1, in Sixth, Lions Score Three Runs in 7th and Five in 8th to Win, 9-6.

WILKENS HITS HOME RUN

Columbia returned to its home grounds at Baker Field yesterday after a two weeks' absence and defeated Syracuse, 9 to 6. The setback of the up-Staters avenged a 2-0 victory the Orange scored over Columbia early in the season at Syracuse.

Going into the seventh inning one run behind at 2-1, the Morningside nine got its heavy artillery in working order and three runs were scored in this inning and five more in the eighth. The seventh inning drive was led by Bill Wilkens, sophomore pitcher, who poled the ball over the centre field fence with one man on base.

Syracuse rallied in the ninth and scored three runs, but their hopes were blasted with the advent of Fred Landau to the mound. He retired the visitors in short order.

Wilkens Forced to Retire.

Wilkens, after giving Syracuse three hits in the first, pitched masterful ball until the eighth, when he was forced to retire because of an injured hand, the result of stopping Horowitz's line drive. Bender took his place.

With one out in the first, Beagle, Frank and Horowitz singled, filling the bases. Topal hit to Wilkens, who tossed out Horowitz at second, but Beagle scored on the play, giving Syracuse a 1-0 lead.

Columbia deadlocked the count in the second when Stelljes doubled down the left field foul line and Sweetman's drive to the same place brought him home.

Topal put Syracuse into a 2-1 lead in the sixth when he doubled to the right field fence and scored on Walcov's single over first. This one-run lead loomed large until the Lions pushed across three tallies in the seventh to assume the lead.

Syracuse Rallies in Ninth.

Syracuse filled the bases in the ninth with none out, and Frank's double scored Elliott and Hayman. Landau then replaced Bender and retired the side, though Beagle came home on Topal's out at first.

CITY COLLEGE NINE DEFEATS ST. JOHN'S

Ties Series by Winning, 10 to 3, at Dexter Park, Making Third Game Necessary.

City College routed St. John's College, 10 to 3, at Dexter Park yesterday and avenged a 7-to-5 defeat suffered in the early part of the season. As a result a third game to determine the winner of the series will be staged at Lewisohn Stadium, Monday, May 26.

The Lavender was outhit by the Red and White, 8 to 4, but was superior in the field and played wide-awake baseball and and took advantage of every scoring opportunity that presented itself. C. C. N. Y. made its first six runs with the aid of only one hit, bases on balls off Neary and Manning playing a prominent part.

In the seventh Irving Tenzer shifted positions with Dave Bracker, C. C. N. Y. pitcher, for a few moments and walked three men. Bracker went back into the box and was scored on twice, but held St. John's at bay thereafter.

COLGATE IS BEATEN BY AMHERST'S NINE

Succumbs in Game at Hamilton, Five Runs in Fourth Inning Deciding, 7 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., May 16.—Tommy Barrett, playing his first college baseball game, pitched Amherst to a 7-to-3 victory over Colgate today. Barrett held the usually heavy-hitting Colgate team to three scattered hits until the seventh inning.

In the fourth inning Amherst scored five runs on three hits, two bases on balls and an error. Hemley opened this rally with a single. Reynolds singled, Barrett struck out and both Gottlieb and Trenchard drew passes from Slaght. George Purple replaced Slaght, but Donacker's error and Groskloss's hit scored five runs for Amherst.

In the eighth inning the visitors blasted Purple from the mound. Colgate rallied in this inning, scoring twice on an error, two walks and Callan's hit.

3 FRESHMAN CREWS TO RACE HERE TODAY

The freshman lightweight crew of Columbia, Yale and Princeton will make history this afternoon when they meet in a one-mile race on the Harlem River at 4 o'clock because never before have the freshman 150-pounders of these institutions opposed each other.

The Columbia and Yale lightweights yesterday went over the course, which in this case is upstream and starts just above High Bridge and ends at a point opposite where the Speedway turns west, as their final preparation. The Princeton crew is scheduled to arrive early today and will take a final tuning up on the Harlem this noon.

While the freshman 150-pounders were drilling on the Harlem, the heavyweight squad, under the direction of Coach Richard J. Glendon, was working out on the Hudson River. The crews had hardly pointed their prows upstream when the water became quite rough. The oarsmen pulled over to the west side of the river and under the protection of the Palisades went through their second time trial in two days. The freshman defeated the junior varsity by one length in a two-mile stretch, but trailed the varsity by two lengths.

The official dedication and launching of Columbia's new shell took place yesterday. The boat had been used several times before, but yesterday's ceremonies were the first in an official way. Miss Mary Whalen, daughter of Commissioner Grover Whalen and Mrs. Whalen, took the chief part in the christening of the shell, which is named the Herbert E. Hawkes, after the Dean of Columbia College. The boat was donated by Ferris Booth, 1924. Others present at the ceremonies were Dean Hawkes, Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the Columbia rowing committee; Sydney Waldecker and Graduate Manager Reynolds Benson.

YALE AND PRINCETON ROW CORNELL TODAY

Will Meet in 3-Race Regatta—Varsities to Compete for the Carnegie Cup.

CREWS HOLD FINAL DRILLS

Ithacans, Who Will Open Season, Show Powerful Varsity—Tiger Cubs Are Strong.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16.—Over the flat, artificial surface of Lake Carnegie today the crews of Yale, Cornell and Princeton went through their final workouts and tomorrow at 5 o'clock, Daylight Time, the freshman eights of the three will start the three-race regatta which has for its climax the varsity event for the Carnegie Cup. In between the three junior varsities will row, all three races will be at a mile and three-quarters with the plan now to start them at half-hour intervals.

The Carnegie Cup race, rowed by these three crews since 1921 at Ithaca, has become one of the outstanding events of the Spring season and always produces plenty of interest. But this year the interest runs higher than ever for a big, burly Cornell crew has come down out of the hills of up-State New York, carrying high hopes that the Red and White is once more to climb the rowing heights it held against all comers for so long back in the days before the war.

Both Yale and Princeton have raced before this season and both are known quantities. Yale, two weeks ago, turned back a good Columbia a crew in the two miles at Derby and in doing so proved itself a fine eight. Princeton, on the same day, had a disappointing start when the Massachusetts Institute of Technology turned it back here on the Tiger's own waterway.

For Cornell this is the first racing of the year. All through the Spring, Jim Wray, who started a few years ago to bring Cornell back from rowing depths, has been working with big, seasoned material. All of the men under him were his own men, trained by him in his own methods.

Cornell's navy took about the longest workout of the day today. It paddled to the head of the course and then back over it, now and again raising the beat. The crews were not always good looking, at the paddle or at a fairly high beat, but the shells seemed certainly to be moving along with plenty of run and very little sign of a check. There were spots here and there in all three that showed individual faults and in the varsity, coming back to the float, there was the slap of some washing out as the stroke went up in a finishing spurt.

But over and above these things there was the sense of power apparent in the huge boat that averages 185½ pounds and a fine run all the way through.

Yale remains unchanged from the seatings of the Derby Day regatta. Woody Tappen still sets the pace for the varsity and Art Palmer for the juniors, two seasoned and proved strokes, and behind each man there is a good crew.

Princeton's best chance for victory apparently lies in the race for the freshmen. The Tiger youngsters won their first race over Tech in good time and have been rowing well since.

Yale today drew the university side lane in the varsity race, which may be the favored lane if the wind blows as it did today, with Cornell on the outside and Princeton in the middle.

In tennis, Lawrenceville has won four matches and lost two.

The strong Lawrenceville track team will get into action at 2 o'clock against Montclair, followed at 3:30 by the baseball game between Hill and the local aggregation. At 4 o'clock the Yale freshman and Lawrenceville polo teams will take the field on the 112th Field Artillery grounds in Trenton. The polo team of Lawrenceville is a strong one, having won the national scholastic championship during the indoor season.

In addition, a tablet will be unveiled in the remodeled Kinnan House in memory of Alexander P. W. Kinnan, Lawrenceville '73. After the athletic events, an alumni dinner will be held at Upper House, followed by motion pictures in the gymnasium at 9 o'clock.

13 CREWS WORK OUT FOR HARVARD RACES

M. I. T. DRAWS FIRST LANE

Harvard Will Start From Second in Varsity and J. V. Events, Penn in Third.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 16.—The thirteen crews of Navy, Harvard, Pennsylvania and M. I. T., who are to compete in a quadrangular regatta on the Charles River tomorrow afternoon, took their final workouts over the racing course today.

Both Navy and Penn took advantage of some good weather early in the day and engaged in two workouts. Navy's varsity was very smooth on both of its spins, although it only paddled lightly over the course in the morning. Penn's bows took things easy in the morning, but had a harder time in the afternoon.

M. I. T. drew the first lane for all four races. Harvard will start from the second lane in the varsity and junior varsity races, and from the third in the other two. Penn drew the third lane for the varsity and jayvee events, and the second for the freshman and 150-pound races. Navy's varsity drew the fourth lane for the varsity event.

American Players Clinch Davis Cup Tie by Sweeping the First Three Matches.

VAN RYN CONQUERS WRIGHT

Ends Postponed Match Quickly by Taking Two Points to Win, 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

LOTT IN EASY TRIUMPH

Disposes of Rainville by 6-2, 6-2, 8-6—Van Ryn-Allison Rout Wright-Crocker, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Establishing a Davis Cup record for victories gained in a single day of play on this side of the Atlantic in the international tennis matches, America's youthful protagonists hurdled the first obstacle in their march on Paris today as they captured the first three matches in their opening round tie with Canada to clinch the series and qualify as the opponents of Mexico in the final round of the American zone at the Chevy Chase Club in Washington, May 22, 23 and 24.

Favored by a day of perfect weather, the standard bearers of the United States lost no time in completing the job at which they were interrupted yesterday, when rain forced a cessation of hostilities with John Van Ryn only two points removed from victory over Dr. Jack Wright of Montreal in the inaugural engagement.

Before a considerable number of the 3,000 spectators had taken their places in the gallery at the Philadelphia Country Club, the youth from East Orange, N. J., had exacted those two points forthwith with crisp volleys, to win the match at 6—2, 6—2, 3—6, 6—2, and hardly more than an hour later G. Martin Lott 2d of Chicago had dispatched Marcel Rainville of Montreal at 6—2, 6—2, 8—6 in the second singles contest.

Sweep All Before Them.

That completed what came under the heading of old business and Van Ryn returned to the enclosure later with Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, to let loose an avalanche of volleys and smashes that swept all before them and carried the United States one step nearer to a meeting with France, the holder of the cup.

Wright, who had optimistically warmed up his service before renewing his singles battle with Van Ryn and never had the chance to use it, was again on the other side of the net from the young Orangeman in this doubles match, with Willard Crocker as his partner. They were as completely overpowered by the machine gun fire of the scintillating Wimbledon champions as the Canadian captain and Rainville had been in the singles, and for all the excellence of their lobbing and short court attack in the second set, in which they led at 4—2, they were compelled to yield in straightforward fashion at 6—0, 6—4, 6—2.

Regulations Are Waived.

With the issue settled and nothing at stake, Captain Fitz Eugene Dixon and Chairman Joseph W. Wear desired to make a switch in their line-up in order to give John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., and Allison the opportunity to test their Davis Cup mettle. A conference took place with Captain Wright and Garnett H. Meldrum, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, and once they had readily agreed to waive the regulations and permit the substitutions Captain Dixon named Doeg to replace Lott and Allison to double for Van Ryn.

So tomorrow at 2:30 Doeg, the youngest member of the team, will make his début as a Davis Cup player when he opposes Wright. The series will be concluded with the meeting between Allison and Rainville, and the probability is that it will end in a 5—0 score, as did last year's tie between the two countries at Montreal.

Van Ryn's abbreviated skirmish with Wright calls for little comment. The players were ten minutes in warming up and one minute in finishing their stunt. With the score standing at 5—2 in games in the fourth set and deuce in the eighth game, Van Ryn served, went to the net and rammed home a volley for vantage point. He served again, worked his way forward, forced Wright wide of the court, and another volley ended the match.

Lott Is Master Throughout.

Lott was so completely the master of the situation against Rainville that drastic measures were uncalled for, and so the young Chicagoan did not show to the advantage that he might have had he been challenged more seriously. In the opening set he rushed through the first three games so quickly that he was beguiled into relaxing pressure and Rainville, taking advantage of the opportunity, won the next two games and established a lead of 40—15 in the sixth before the American returned to his knitting.

It was in the second set that the American showed the true calibre of his game as he raked the court with a succession of magnificent drives that had Rainville standing helplessly in his tracks. In the first two games of this set he scored six successive placements, and so absolute was his control of the ball that he seemed to be able to do anything with it that he cared to.

In the final set the storm abated and Rainville, playing steadily and with guile and at times with great brilliancy, stayed on even terms to 5—all. He even came within two points of winning the set in the tenth game at 30—all, but Lott, who was prodigal with his errors in this chapter, tightened when he had to, and after losing his service game in the twelfth, in which he stood at match point, he won the next two games to end the match. How superior the Chicagoan was in his shot-making is indicated by an analysis of the strokes, which shows that he made forty placements to seven for Rainville.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

IN THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 16, 1875, there was a paragraph carrying some brief mention of the fact that there had been a large crowd at the Turf Exchange in Louisville, Ky., the previous day, but that pools were sold only on the Kentucky Derby. It was explained that the Kentucky Derby was a dash of a mile and a half for 3-year-olds, and that "the race is most important in determining the favorite for the great stakes at Jerome Park, Long Branch and Saratoga, where most of the above colts have engagements."

The "above colts" named in the indictment were Searcher, Chesapeake, Ascension, Verdigris, Volcano, Ten Broeck, Steinbock, Bob Woolley and Camargo. They were mentioned because the turf followers were betting on them in the pools. It's a good point to remember in view of the outcome of the race, which was reported as follows in THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 18, 1875, on an inside page and not at any great length:

"Louisville, May 17.—The inaugural meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club opened today under more favorable auspices than was hoped by the most sanguine of its managers. Upward of 12,000 spectators were in attendance. The grand stand was thronged by a brilliant assemblage of ladies and gentlemen. The quarter-stretch stand and the other stands were crowded, and the centre field was filled with hundreds of carriages.

The Winner Finally Exposed.

"The great event of the day was the Kentucky Derby, which was won by Aristides, making the fastest time ever made by a 3-year-old, and is only second to the time made by Tom Bowling as a 4-year-old. The fifteen horses started at the first tap of the drum and got away in beautiful style.

"The mile-heat race won by Fairplay was also made in almost unprecedented time. Altogether today's meeting was extraordinarily successful. The weather was everything that could be expected, the track was in fine order, and there was everything to indicate an eminently satisfactory meeting."

That was all, except for the brief summaries of the four races of the day at Louisville, the most important of which was:

"Second Race—The Kentucky Derby, for 3-year-olds; entrance $50, play or pay; association adds $1,000; second horse to have $200. Dash of one and a half miles. Forty-two nominations, fifteen of which started.

"P. McGrath's ch.c. Aristides, 3-year-old, by Leamington, dam Sarony, 90 pounds."

It will be noticed with possibly a tinge of sadness that all the horses mentioned in the earlier article regarding the wagering in the pools at the Turf Exchange finished in unimportant positions. Aristides was a rank outsider and in the first running of the now historic race set something of a precedent. Many rank outsiders have since led the field in the great race at Churchill Downs.

A Few Changes.

There have been a few changes in conditions since the Kentucky Derby was first run. It is still a race for 3-year-olds, but the weight is up and the distance has been cut down. To qualify at the 90-pound impost carried by Aristides, Earle Sande would have to cut off an arm or a leg before being hoisted up on Gallant Fox. The weight is now 126 pounds for colts and 121 for fillies, and the distance is a mile and a quarter.

If the distance has been cut down, the crowds and the purse have been increased. There were 12,000 at the first running of the Derby, and the total value of the race was $3,100. In recent years the crowds have exceeded 50,000, and the value of the race last year was approximately $54,000.

There have been still other changes. The "centre field" is no longer "filled with carriages," but autos are parked all over the place and on all side roads near the track. Four or five airplanes left Long Island yesterday carrying passengers who were headed for the Derby.

Just how much wagering was done on the race won by Aristides is not known, but it can be taken for granted that it was something less than the $1,500,000, more or less, that went through the mutuel machines at Churchill Downs on the last Derby Day, with most of the money wagered on the big race of the afternoon.

Old Times.

While browsing through the files in search of information on the first running of the Derby, other odd bits of ancient sporting history were discovered.

For instance, the name "Athletics" was affixed to a Philadelphia ball club as far back as 1875. Just a week or so before Aristides shocked the regulars along the rail at Churchill Downs by beating the popular favorites, the "Philadelphia Athletics" defeated the "Brooklyn Atlantics" 5—0 in a baseball game on the Brooklyn home field. The attendance was 300.

There was also a Boston Red Stocking team at that time and a Cincinnati Red Stocking team. In one case the name has been shortened to Red Sox and in the other has been shortened even further. The Cincinnati team is now simply the Reds.

Formal Notice.

In the same paper that carried the report on the Derby wagering at the Turf Exchange and the trial of Henry Ward Beecher, there was a dignified and formal notice of an important decision at Harvard University. It ran as follows:

"To the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES—At a meeting of the students of Harvard University, held on Thursday, May 6, the college color, formerly magenta, was declared to be crimson. You will confer a favor by noticing the above change in your columns. Respectfully, A. M. Sherwood, Secretary, Harvard University Boat Club."

The change seems to have been duly "noticed." Probably, it was a change for the better, too. Magenta doesn't seem to fit college songs and cheers.

But that's ancient history, and the story of the day lies in Louisville, where Gallant Fox will try to repeat the feat of Sir Barton of winning the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness in the same year, and Handy Sande, the boy from Idaho, will make an attempt to equal the riding record of one Isaac Murphy by piloting home a third Derby winner. There will be much popular rejoicing if the cry goes up at Churchill Downs: "Sande wins on the bay!"

TARANGIOLI GAINS AT NORTH SIDE NET

Defeats Kurzrok With Steady Attack, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, to Reach Semi-Final Round.

LANG TURNS BACK BONNEAU

Former Columbia Ace Ties Score in First Set and Takes Lead, Winning at 6-4, 6-2.

A steady attack that wore down the battering drives of Dr. Lawrence Kurzrok, recently crowned Greater New York tennis champion, gave Ed Tarangioli, former New York University star, a triumph over the second seeded player in their quarter-final match in the north side championships at the University Heights Tennis Club yesterday. Tarangioli, unrecognized in the draw, upset his adversary, 6—4, 2—6, 7—5, and will face Percy Kynaston today in a semi-final encounter.

In the other semi-final brackets Jerry Lang, former Columbia ace and nineteenth in the national ranking, will meet Casper Nannes. Lang reached the penultimate round by justifying his rating as first seeded player in easily disposing of Frank Bonneau, 6—4, 6—2. By an odd coincidence both of yesterday's losers are left-handed players.

Kurzrok played erratically against Tarangioli, reaching great heights at times and then slumping down with drives that either went short or carried over the baseline. The ex-Violet star could not match the power of Kurzrok's forehand and backhand smashes, and his service had not as much sting as the Greater New York titleholder's. But he was far steadier and more accurate and this aided immeasurably in bringing about the downfall of Kurzrok.

For the first two sets both players resorted mostly to playing from the baseline, but in the last chapter they became more venturesome and went up to the net oftener. In this, however, Tarangioli's greater steadiness stood him in good stead and he passed Kurzrok at the net time and time again. The former New York University player was fighting hard for every point and his wild dashes across court frequently turned a lost point into a winning one.

COLGATE SETS PACE IN OUTBOARD MEET

Rolls Up 3,620 Points on Opening Day of First Eastern College Regatta.

CRAWFORD TAKES 4 RACES

5,000 See Events on Skaneateles Lake—Syracuse Drivers in Second Place.

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS.

Special to The New York Times.

SKANEATELES, May 16.—Colgate University made a fine start in the first Eastern intercollegiate outboard motorboat regatta today when it emerged from the first of the two-day program with a total of 3,620 points, holding first place against eleven other institutions entered in the competition, which got under way on Skaneateles Lake today.

Led by the daring William G. Crawford, who took part in six races and who captured four first places, the Hamilton (N. Y.) institution rolled up a lead of more than 1,000 points over Syracuse, which ranks second.

Although forbidding skies went a long way toward keeping the attendance below expectations, nevertheless, a crowd of 5,000 turned out to see college drivers pit their speed, skill and courage against one another.

Entrants in the events represented Dartmouth, St. Lawrence, Toledo, Cornell, Brown, Rensselaer Poly, St. John's of Brooklyn, Hobart, New York University and Princeton, besides Colgate and Syracuse.

The meet is being sponsored by the Outing Club of Colgate University and it was only fitting that the Maroon team should go into the van as the program got under way.

Aided by the 1,963 points rolled up by Crawford, who scored the greater number of his tallies in the earlier part of the competition, the Colgate representatives secured a strong lead and ably fought off the threats made by the onrushing Syracuse pilots.

The Syracusians will have their chance to draw up on the leaders tomorrow, when the final heats will be conducted.

Nunnelly, representing Syracuse in the novice division, turned in the feature individual performance of the day when in the Class D event, which was run over the regular quadrangular five-mile course, he splashed through in 7 minutes and 11 seconds to break the American record. He averaged 41.78 miles per hour, bettering the former mark by 1.72 miles per hour.

THE PARLIAMENTARY COILS.

If one may believe the Washington dispatches, the tariff bill has got itself tied up into a knot by rules of procedure. To cut it is said to be beyond the parliamentary skill of the Senate leaders or of the House Committee on Rules. Senator WATSON says, in a despairing voice, that there may be some way out of the deadlock, but that he does not know what it is. Senator SMOOT, in charge of the bill in the Senate, and head of the committee in conference with the House, decided yesterday that the motion he expected to make, and of which he had given notice, would not extricate the tariff bill from the tangles of red tape into which it has fallen, and so announced that he could do nothing at present, but might think of something by next Monday or Tuesday. If the situation is as thus presented, it seems to call for a new Laocoön sculpture, with Senators and Representatives striving in anguish to free themselves from the coils of their own rules.

In such cases we are warned that things are not always what they seem. It cannot be that both Senate and House are prepared to confess that they are reduced to impotency by a mere technicality of procedure. If they want to get the tariff bill out on the floor so that the disputed clauses can be voted upon directly, there surely can be devised a method of doing it. As the matter stands, one a little suspects an insincere flourish. The Senate would like to make the House act first. But the House leaders are too polite to anticipate the Senate Alphonse. On the other hand, if Congress has at last become as disgusted with the tariff bill as the rest of the country is, and would like to kill it by administering slow parliamentary poison, there is doubtless a way to do that also.

PARTITION OF TEXAS.

Should the State of Texas avail itself of what Representative GARNER says is its right to split into five Commonwealths, a procession would instantly move on Washington to invoke Federal interference. The parade would attract such sections as these:

1. Surviving G. A. R. veterans of the sort who protest paying any honor to General LEE.
2. Senator GRUNDY of Pennsylvania and members of the manufacturers' association of that State.
3. The Governors of Rhode Island and Vermont with their staffs.
4. Weeping Federal taxpayers from all other Commonwealths.
5. New England chambers of commerce.

However, were Texans in the mood which Mr. GARNER seems to be in, and were the reserved right of Texas to make little ones out of a big one fully sustained, this pageant, despite its mournfulness, would not be able to accomplish anything. The five States would range themselves from the Louisiana to the New Mexican boundary. There would appear on the maps the new divisions of West Texas and East Texas. Perhaps the central portion would be permitted to retain the name "Texas" for itself. That would leave two Commonwealths to be named, probably by a referendum conducted through the newspapers. "Houston" might emerge upon the starry field of the Union. The nation would not have known so much excitement since Fort Sumter. Politicians, architects and builders would tumble over one another erecting four new capitols. From Texarkana to El Paso new troops of Rangers would be forming. How to compose the rival claims of Dallas and Fort Worth would probably be solved only by putting them in separate States and making each a capital. JIM FERGUSON and "Ma" would emerge from their retirement at Temple. From San Marcos ALBERT BURLESON would hurl the draft of a liberal Constitution for the State which surrounded him. Dallas would ring again with the thunderous voice of JOSEPH W. BAILEY, and at Waco ROBERT L. HENRY would immediately demand to be made Senator. Meadowland and mesa would bloom instantly with office-seekers while what is now the empire of Texas made ready to create a million new jobs.

With eight new Southern, low-tariff Senators in making to debouch upon Washington, there would be mass meetings and torchlight processions in Philadelphia, Boston, Brockton, Newark and Trenton. WILLIAM M. BUTLER and The American Economist would predict the destruction of America, and SAMUEL M. VAUCLAIN would emigrate to Canada. At the Union League clubs in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago many black-bordered cards would appear on the bulletin boards. An expletive from the lips of CALVIN COOLIDGE would rock Massachusetts like a temblor. No, Mr. GARNER must not foster this calamitous thing. Contrasted with his proposed revenge on New England, SHERMAN'S march would seem pastoral.

A CIVILIAN COMMISSIONER.

As Mayor WALKER returned to New York, happily restored to health and vigor, he renewed the expression of his hope that Commissioner WHALEN would not resign. Yet he made it evident that he looks for a resignation, since he intimated to reporters that he expected soon to have to fill the vacancy, and has several men in mind as possible successors to Mr. WHALEN. Nothing was said about a question which the Mayor was reported to be carefully studying before he went away. This is whether he should select a Police Commissioner from civil life or call upon a uniformed officer to take charge of the department.

There ought to be no hesitation in preferring a civilian, according to the judgment of impartial students of the whole matter of the management of the police force in this city. It is believed that the records of recent years will alone be sufficient to establish the fact that police work is best done when the head of the department is a civilian. Certainly we have had experience of several commissioners who were uniformed officers, and under whom the police morale and efficiency fell lower. The reasons seem plain to any one who will look closely into the nature of the police organization and study the possibilities of favoritism and the forming of little cliques or groups when one uniformed officer is advanced to command of all the others. Mr. WHALEN himself furnishes a fine example of the value of bringing a fresh and alert mind to the study of police administration. It is much to be hoped that the Mayor will profit by the lessons of experience in this matter, and not be too hasty in concluding that a policeman is best satisfied to be under another policeman. No one doubts that there are many capable captains and inspectors, but there is serious doubt whether any one of them, however deep in the confidence of the Mayor, could best superintend and direct the work of the Police Department.

THE READERS.

The public library has two groups of readers, though some persons belong to both. Nearly two millions of them (1,915,415) went to the Central Library at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street during the last year and consulted over four million volumes. But the other group took home for reading over eleven million volumes (11,103,718). If the Brooklyn and Queens Borough systems and the loans from the Board of Education libraries were included, the city total would be raised to well toward thirty millions. That the number continues to grow is an indication that the printed word advances in spite of, or perhaps because of, the spread of the pictured and the spoken word.

Dr. JOHN COTTON DANA, to whose memory a tablet erected by the school children of Newark was yesterday unveiled, said in the last year of his life that gifts of money should be spent not on "strengthening the habits and conventions of 'fifty years ago,'" but in tracing clear roads through the ever increasing mass of information. One such effort has been experimentally begun by the New York Public Library during the last sixteen months in providing a "Readers' Adviser" to guide the general reader and to assist the specializing reader. Dr. HAMILTON W. MABIE used to speak of himself as merely a signboard showing the road to the best books. The "Readers' Adviser" has a like office.

One of the challenging problems of the public library system in this city—one that is shared by the school system—is that of meeting the needs of an ever changing population. One instance—perhaps an extreme one—illustrates the difficulty. A library that a year ago served a Jewish community with eager readers is now surrounded by a Spanish-speaking people new in the country and with but little background. Another is of a library that has been the intellectual centre of a Czech culture but is now remote from the new homes which many of the old neighborhood have found. Sub-libraries and branch libraries in newly developed sections have queues, and their shelves are daily swept of their books.

There still are neighborhoods within the Bronx and Richmond so remote from library facilities that book wagons have to be used to supply their needs. Then there are readers shut away by blindness who are served by increasing volumes in braille, and each volume, as HELEN KELLER has said, is as a treasure island. So varied is the service that the system is always strained to meet the growing demands, which are, after all, welcome as being significant of cultural progress. In the New York Public Library public funds and private gifts unite in a function which neither could perform alone with such wide benefit.

CALIFORNIA—THERE SHE GOES!

If California justifies the forecast of a gain of 2,000,000 population since the last census, she will have established a proud record. And if the scientists are right in their predictions about birth-rates and population increase in the future, it is a record which will never again be approached. She will have added in ten years a greater block of population than stands to the credit of any State in any decade since the heads of the American people have been officially counted. The nearest approach is the progress registered by New York State in the census of 1910, which showed a gain of 1,845,000 inhabitants over the 1900 census.

The New York figures are, indeed, so close to the California estimate that only the official count in the latter State can decide. But what is already decided is that proportionately California's showing is unrivaled. New York State had more than seven million people to which to add another near-two millions. California in 1920 had less than three and a half millions. She will have gained something like 55 per cent for New York's 26 per cent in the latter's best decade. But it will be no novelty to California, as she can with all propriety and with a quiet smile point out. The 1920 census registered a gain of 1,550,000 people over the year 1910, and that again is a figure only surpassed in the New York instance already mentioned. Even Pennsylvania in the decade of extraordinary growth preceding 1910 failed by nearly 200,000 people to do as well as California was to do in the next ten-year period. In the history of the expansion of the American people it is a rate of increase surpassed only in the ten years preceding the Civil War, when the Middle West was filling up, when Illinois more than doubled her population, Michigan and Missouri nearly doubled, and Iowa increased nearly fourfold.

As these last figures suggest, California's growth, while in bulk unsurpassed, is obviously not unprecedented. It is one more step in the American nation's occupation of a continent. But there does enter into the rise of California during the last twenty years a new element. The rapid increase of the State's population is attributed to manufacturing, development of Pacific trade, the movie industry and the Climate. It is this climate, fertile cause of so much justified domestic glorification and good-natured foreign banter, that for the first time in our history confronts us with the pursuit of pleasure or of leisure as a motive for migration and settlement. The population that flooded from the Atlantic seaboard into the country beyond the Alleghanies, and the populations from Europe that flooded into the United States, were people in quest of a living. They came to labor, to suffer and to conquer. But hundreds of thousands of California's immigrants today are elderly American men and women who have done their share of work elsewhere and have gone to the Coast to make holiday of the rest of their days. California is thus in a double sense our latest frontier. To the extent that her prosperity is based on material achievement — the movie industry and Asiatic trade—she has grown like our earlier frontiers through economic forces. To the extent that Americans are learning to rest as well as to work—and here it is only just to mention Florida—we have in these climate-blessed States what may be called a spiritual frontier in the story of the American people.

GOVERNOR KOHLER ACQUITTED

Politics cools slowly, if it ever cools, in Wisconsin. The campaign of 1928 is still unfinished. The Lafollettians couldn't forgive Governor KOHLER for his election. Four of them, including young PHILIP, who seeks to be Governor himself, charged Mr. KOHLER with violating the State corrupt practices act in his primary campaign. That forbids the expenditure of more than $4,000. For more than three weeks the trial has been going on in Sheboygan County Circuit Court. The State asserted that it could prove that Mr. KOHLER'S industrial plant in the county was used as political headquarters; that the company furnished aids for political purposes; that the Kohler Band went about the State with the candidate on his political progress, tooting for its namesake and patron; that the money spent by the company was repaid subsequently by members of the Kohler family or by political groups. The State also tried to connect the Governor with the authorization of sums spent by the State Republican Central Committee and the county Republican committee.

The prosecution had full access to the records. The Governor waived his constitutional right and was called as an adverse witness by the State. There was a long procession of tedious, trivial and sometimes comical testimony. Eleemosynary matches were described as tools of corruption. "Vote for Kohler" signs on automobile tires figured as "tire-covers." On the corrupting meals given by the Kohler company to multitudinous visitors the evidence proved that it had made profit. Early in the trial the presiding judge ruled that the Governor didn't break the law unless personally or by direct order to his agents he went beyond the legal limit of expense. The State set up the doctrine of "implied agency." The court held that a contractual relation must be proved to prove agency. Counsel for the State were handicapped. They could not examine their own witnesses adversely unless they could show that ultimately the acts of the agents were directed by the Governor—that is, unless they could prove agency.

Directed by the court to bring in a special verdict, the jury answered in the negative all the questions submitted to it. These answers may be taken as a verdict of not guilty by the court, though it is not bound so to take it. The attitude of the judge during the whole trial, however, has seemed to indicate that he wishes to have the whole situation under the corrupt practices act cleared up definitely and finally by the State Supreme Court. An appeal by the State is certain if the verdict is sustained by the lower court. The regular Republicans, who have brought against three or four State officials the same sort of charge as was made against the Governor by the Lafollettians, are equally desirous to know just what the act permits and forbids.

The hours apparently wasted in the trial on the time of stenographers and the price of cigars were well employed if they lead to an illuminating explanation of an obscure law.

DEVELOPING QUEENS PLAZA.

Valuable as are the detailed suggestions in the Regional Plan's proposal for the development of the Queens Plaza at the Long Island end of the Queensboro Bridge, its chief service is in directing thought again to the problems of that area and to their potential solutions. Emphasis is laid on the development of a great transportation centre, where the subways, railroads, elevated lines, surface cars and highways will meet. It is pointed out that by covering over the Sunnyside yards of the Long Island and Pennsylvania systems it will be possible at the same time to transform the neighborhood and to increase traffic facilities.

To the general public the latter remains most important. As at the Manhattan end of the Fifty-ninth Street bridge, the automobile congestion due to the bottlenecks is increasingly bad. During rush hours it sometimes takes as much as an hour to cross the bridge by motor. The Regional Plan would widen and multiply the approaches so that, with the building of the upper level of the bridge, it will be possible to speed up traffic and to reroute it. This would avoid the present congestion due to the lack of suitable roads, the presence of the elevated and street car lines, the juxtaposition of the Sunnyside yards and the necessity of outlets to the north and south which require left turns that delay through traffic.

Whatever the final building plans above the Sunnyside yards—the Park Avenue development north of the Grand Central Station should show the skeptics what can be done—the possibility of improving the approaches to the bridge by new roadways should not be neglected. To facilitate this the Regional Plan suggests carrying two new roadways parallel to Diagonal Street across Jackson Boulevard to a widened Queens Plaza. Since the routing of traffic over the upper level of the bridge will have to be considered as soon as the work on the bridge is finished, it is clear that the opportunities should be taken advantage of as soon as possible.

In time the large commuter centre which the Regional Plan has envisaged may be desirable. But Queens Plaza is in danger of becoming a centre where too many traffic lines converge. This may be a distinct disadvantage to future commuters. Incidentally, in this region there seems to be a chance to develop under private or municipal management a large parking garage. Many who at present use the Queensboro Bridge would not do so if they could park their cars conveniently near one of the subways and so avoid the delays and struggles of crossing the bridge and fighting the traffic in Manhattan. The difficulty would be to make such a motor parking hotel large enough to house the countless cars that would wish to use it.

NOT UNMIXED REALISM.

In the midst of realism we are surrounded by romance. The death of WILLIAM J. LOCKE is a reminder that a period which seems wholly given over to the drab and the sordid, curiously called naturalistic or realistic, has a misty fringe of romanticism. LOCKE'S novels were all out of tune with the harsh, thumping rhythm of the new school. Hard-boiled heroines and heroes eaten by strange, egotistic desires might figure in the staccato plots of the coming successes. His heroines were soft-spoken and gently described. His heroes were gentlemen at a time when the word was a signal for skeptical laughter. They did all sorts of odd, unconventional things, but their motives were noble and their hearts filled with sentiment. His vagabonds were lovable, their adventures were joyous, and gladness was the final note of their stories. "Main Street" might encircle the world, but it could not draw thousands of stragglers who preferred the green, thickety paths of whimsy running right beside it.

The sternest realists themselves cannot avoid traces of softness in their work. Sentimentality will not down, even in the pages of the most rigorous disciples of realism. Consider the schoolgirl tearfulness of Mr. SHERWOOD ANDERSON in his review of D. H. LAWRENCE'S "Assorted Articles" in The New Republic. It concludes:

> In clambering up the rocks to the road I have hurt my hand. It bleeds. There is a persistent little bleeding.
>
> It has besmeared with my own blood some of the pages on which I write these words of LAWRENCE dead, to bleed no more.
>
> Little red blotches of my blood covering the sheets on which I try to write of D. H. LAWRENCE, dead.
>
> Spoiling the sheets.
>
> Blood spoiling clean white sheets of paper.
> Not quite. Blood is nice on white sheets on which a man speaks, even falteringly, of a man's man like D. H. LAWRENCE.

Often enough Mr. ANDERSON has been bold, direct, effectively crude. But when his heart is touched he runs away from his own kind of truth to the most shameless and maudlin sobs. In a season of blatant realism there is still abundance of the romantic to be found, not only in persons working side by side, but in a single individual.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Glorious Uncertainties of Golf. Peculiar sympathy will go out to Miss COLLETT, not because she lost the ladies' golf championship in England, but because she lost it when she apparently had it at her mercy. Playing through the harder half of the draw, she had met and conquered one formidable opponent after another. Then when she encountered in the finals a player regarded by everybody as inferior to her, she went completely off her game and was hopelessly beaten.

Such things will occur even to seasoned golfers. Great performers of the male sex sometimes fall victims to these unaccountable attacks of nerves on the links. All through the week the play of Miss COLLETT had been almost mechanically perfect, but suddenly something snapped and the machine broke down. Of such is the kingdom of golf. Otherwise its votaries would not be so mad about it.

In winning the Walker Cup again, the American team triumphed far more overwhelmingly than had been expected. The British summoned their best, but our men were too strong for them. Perhaps an element of luck entered into this contest also, for it was "American weather" at Sandwich. BERNARD DARWIN had predicted that the British would lose unless the weather was a fine mixture of cold wind and rain with a sprinkling of hail. It is doubtful, in view of the result, if even that could have won the Walker Cup for England. When the sun shone and there was only a breeze instead of a gale, the victory of the Americans was foregone.

Which Altereth Not. Every now and then a collegiate modern arises and declares that KIPLING and LONGFELLOW are less than mediocre writers. Yet the public in great numbers goes on reading them. Occasionally a producer puts on a play of SHAKESPEARE in modern dress. The public continues to attend the more formal presentations. At regular intervals a new world language is transcribed, and simplified spelling breaks out like a rash in some publication. Nationals continue to speak their own tongues; few try out the proposed phonetics. And it seems that at least once a year some one puts parts of the Bible "in colloquial speech."

The latest is a professor of Rawdon College, at Leeds, in Yorkshire. Of ISAIAH'S "thy princes are rebellious and the companions of thieves" he makes "your rulers are unruly and chummy with thieves." The newspapers publish a squib about it. That is the end of it. Millions go on reading the Bible in the stately speech of the seventeenth century translators.

Jaywalking in Bathtubs. Ride in taxicabs, up on the elevated, down in the subway, or even walk on the crowded streets, if you want to be safe from accidents, but do not expect to escape with a whole skin from your home. The Visiting Nurse Associations have just reported that more non-fatal injuries are sustained by people at home than anywhere else.

Perhaps the trouble is that there is no taximeter attached to you as you stroll about the house. Some local authorities are saying that there will be more street accidents if the present rate for taxicabs is lowered. Pursuing this theory more or less logically leads to the conclusion that no charge at all means a high accident rate.

Pedestrians out of doors are to be protected against their own careless natures next week by an ordinance forbidding them to cross the streets except at certain times and places. Yet they are not so much in need of a blue-clad arm to stay their straying as is the stay-at-home in his tub. He needs a reminder, as he stoops to pick up the soap, that the tub is slippery and his footing uncertain. It may not be practical to station officers at strategic points in the home, but radio alarms might be arranged morning and evening to catch most of the death-defying bathers.

The Train of Happiness. The president of the Trieste Afterwork Association is supposed to have originated the idea, but MUSSOLINI is thought to have taken it up. At any rate it was made known to the people of Trieste that couples married on April 21, the national festival day, would be offered a three days' trip to Rome. Not only engaged pairs but young men and women who had not thought seriously of matrimony presented themselves for the ceremony at the Cathedral of San Giusto on the morning of April 21. Among the men were carpenters, shoemakers, chauffeurs, postoffice clerks, factory workers and dock laborers. The city authorities were on hand, bells pealed and Trieste flew the national flag.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the "train of happiness" left for Rome amid great jubilations. At Rome a committee met the newly-weds and escorted them to hotels. Not only did they see the sights of Rome, monuments, fountains, gardens, the Coliseum, but they were received by MUSSOLINI and blessed by the Pope.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

Rule of the Road Should Be Observed by Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Police Commissioner Whalen's new regulations regarding pedestrians crossing streets, which are to go into effect on May 19, will be wholly incomplete—and in fact will tend to increase the confusion at crossings by increasing the number of persons using the crossings—unless accompanied by another new regulation requiring persons in crossing to turn to the right and to use only the right side of the crossing.

The present confusion and delay at street crossings is largely due to the custom of each of the two opposite moving crowds spreading out over the whole width of the crossing and coming together in conflict and producing obstruction somewhere between the curbs.

If an order to turn to the right at crossings were promulgated, the most effective method for impressing it on the pedestrian public would doubtless be by marking the boundaries of the crossing area by two white lines, with a middle white line separating the right from the left area, with white arrows in each area pointing along the proper direction for pedestrian traffic.

The two outer white lines would also serve as boundaries which should not be crossed by wheel traffic while pedestrians have the right of way.

Such marked crossings at prominent corners, scattered throughout the city, would have an educating effect, which would spread to other unmarked crossings.

Although the Police Department thus far disclaims supervision over pedestrian traffic on sidewalks, the same custom of pedestrians turning to the right on sidewalks, hallways, stairways and all other public passages, if generally observed—by whatever authority promulgated—would greatly facilitate pedestrian transit, and would greatly conserve pedestrian nervous energy.

Helping Mr. Whalen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May we offer additional paragraphs "D" and "E" to Commissioner Whalen's latest decree?

"Pedestrians desiring to proceed east or west for more than two blocks may equip themselves with luncheon boxes, if not larger than 5¾ by 7 by 4 inches. Neat pink or blue boxes of approved type (value 50c) may be had at any police station upon payment of $1."

"Crowding of gutters and of halls, doorways and other parts of buildings more than 300 feet from crossings while awaiting change of longitudinal traffic lights is expressly forbidden. Public Library grounds may be used at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, however."

THE WONDER OF IT.

Through all my sentient fibers creep
The hormones, cunning messengers,
To make my pulses lag or leap.
At their behest within me stirs
A world of chemic interplay,
Obscure, unwilled, and sure as fate—
A complicated flow and sway
Immeasurably intricate.
Oh, marvelous machinery
That rules my heart and lungs and lips!
What wonders move and live in me
While I sit reading comic strips.

Beneath the threshold of my mind,
Like monsters in a sunless deep,
The ancient needs of humankind
Control my will to laugh or weep.
From unimagined ancientry
These primal lusts and habitudes
Have lurked to clutch the conscious me,
To mold my unsuspecting moods.
A thousand million years have gone
To form within my deep-lined brain
The crowding thoughts . . . I sit and yawn
And wonder if it's going to rain.

MENTAL HYGIENE.

Progress in Care of the Mentally Sick Began Some Years Ago.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to THE TIMES editorial "Progress in Mental Hygiene," may I say a word of critical comment on its opening sentence?

"It will appear almost incredible to many people that only fifteen years ago mentally sick men and women were generally cared for by untrained 'keepers,' restrained by strait-jackets and housed in damp, miserable quarters."

For it seems to me, a veteran identified enthusiastically with the work of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene from its inception, twenty-two years ago, that your chronology does injustice to the practical and officially placed psychiatrists of the State of New York who helped to launch, and who have always supported, that remarkable and beneficent organization. Officers of the National Committee would be the last to claim merit above dessert in any of their multiform accomplishments. My own connection as medical officer in the State hospital service goes back to Utica half a century ago. At that distant period attendants and nurses were not known as "keepers," and but a few years later the humane movement for the abolition of every form of mechanical restraint was well under way in all the State institutions. Neither did the State house its wards in "damp, miserable quarters." Indeed, about that time began the so-called "cathedral era" in asylum construction. Training schools for mental nurses began in a small way in the '80s. As to restraint, the superintendent of the Utica institution had this to say in his report to the board of managers covering the year 1887:

"You are all aware that since the beginning of the current year it has been found not only practicable but decidedly advantageous to dispense with all forms of mechanical restraint, such as muffs, camisoles, wristlets, belts, &c. The transition was not a violent one, for there had been for years an appreciable diminution in the amount used in this hospital. We had yielded with others to the conviction of personal experience and the influence of example elsewhere. The conception of what constituted the minimum amount of restraint had become less and less elastic, and we had tacitly, if not unconsciously, fallen into line with other advanced hospitals of this character. I repeat, therefore, that the situation, when viewed from this standpoint, affords little occasion for boastful self-satisfaction. The new departure is but one more chapter in the history of our evolution."

A like evolution was occurring in the other hospitals, and it may be claimed for the oldest of them (Utica) that its reforms began in 1843 under the administration of its first superintendent, Dr. Amariah Brigham, whose pioneer exploits are mentioned in the issue of Mental Hygiene upon which you base your editorial.

Far be it from me to withhold from the National Committee its full meed of praise and honor. The recent International Congress on Mental Hygiene in Washington, at which were present three thousand persons, including representatives of over fifty countries, furnished conspicuous evidence of achievement, at home and abroad, in a mighty cause, in so much that now, as you justly say, "its concepts touch almost every field of human striving for improvement." I write not as laudator temporis acti, but merely in pious remembrance of the humane enterprise of men now dead, and of a few that still live, who set the stage for the instant and progressive success of that valiant adventurer for God and humanity who wrote "A Mind That Found Itself," created the National Committee for Mental Hygiene and, thanks to his crusading initiative, brought recently to Washington a vast throng of men and women from all corners of the earth.

May it never be forgotten by the wealthy of our land that peace needs its sinews no less than war.

MERELY HUMAN BEINGS

But Soldiers in Wartime Were Given to Doing Unworthy Acts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I sincerely thank THE TIMES for its editorial "Slandering the Armies in France." Soldiers who fought in the World War never thought back in those days that they would need defend themselves against future vilification. THE TIMES has sensed that need, as Sir Philip Gibbs sensed it in London, and has come to their rescue with noble words: "Why the chapels, the monuments, the statues to the 'heroic dead,' if the soldiers whose valor and sacrifice they are supposed to commemorate were unworthy and base men? * * * It was not an army of plaster saints, but the ordinary stuff of humanity uplifted by ideals of duty and steadied by discipline. At the front there was a pride in obeying orders, whatever the danger, and determination not to show the white feather. What is called character was very common among the rank and file, and men who had not expected much of themselves won decorations for bravery."

Any veteran of the United States, and any real soldier that fought under other flags abroad, whether on the one side or the other, will trust that this sober statement will contribute greatly to the correction of the influence wrought on the excitable human nature around us by such distorting fiction as Remarque's, for instance, a writing that purports to describe our soldiers' actions and minds in the wartime, but completely fails to do so.

Speaking with the experience of active service, may I say that our officers were not of the type that turned dog-tired men about for an hour's drill as punishment for not singing on the way home from the trenches; that we did not glut over increased rations through the suffering of heavy casualties; that, if we resolved on giving a hiding to a ruffian non-com, we did not attack him from behind and under cover of darkness; and that in visiting comrades in hospital we had other than covetous thoughts.

All this kind of thing in the war books is slander, because it portrays precisely just what real soldiers did not do.

CHARGES MANY WIN PENSIONS UNFAIRLY

Civil Service Executive Says Politics Rules Reinstatement of Police and Firemen Here.

FINDS CREDITS UNEARNED

Retirements Are Often Based on Time Never Served, Kaplan Tells Conference.

All reinstatements of policemen and firemen here under the Walsh law are made for political reasons and, in nearly all cases, are made to give pension credit for time never served, H. Eliot Kaplan, executive secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League and counsel for the New York Civil Service Reform Association, charged yesterday at the regional conference of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada at the Pennsylvania.

"If enough pressure is brought to bear on the Mayor to give a case a rehearing, it is done," he said, "and if enough pressure is brought on the Police or Fire Commissioner to reinstate a man, that is done.

"Only a few weeks ago a fireman named Bodenmeyer, who resigned from the department twelve years ago, was reinstated," he continued. "The reason was clearly political, and I understand he will be pensioned in a few weeks, as he is 62 years old, over the retirement age and subject to retirement at his own request at any time."

Retirement now, Mr. Kaplan explained, will give Bodenmeyer pension credit for twelve years he never served.

Discussing the Bodenmeyer case after the meeting, Mr. Kaplan said:

"This is only one case of many that have been approved by the Police and Fire Departments since the enactment of the law. In the cases of many policemen and firemen who were dismissed many years ago the records are inadequate and it is impossible for the commissioner to tell if the dismissal was warranted or not when first made. These policemen and firemen had already had an opportunity for a formal trial and opportunity to have their cases heard in the courts, and in spite of this these reinstatements are permitted."

Attempts, he asserted, are now being made in the Municipal Assembly to extend the provisions of the Walsh law to apply to policemen and firemen who resigned or were dismissed since 1925 and who may resign or be dismissed at any time in the future.

At the luncheon of the conference Mr. Kaplan charged that, while comparatively few State and city positions are not under the civil service, these few are the "key positions." The placing of any more positions under civil service is "opposed tooth and nail by both political parties," he asserted, and contended that this situation is destroying the morale of the workers, who see all the better places filled by persons exempt from the provisions of civil service.

PLEA FOR RIVERSIDE PARK.

League Wants Dock Bureau to Give Up 79th St. and 96th St. Areas.

The Women's League for the Protection of Riverside Park sent a resolution to Mayor Walker and the Board of Estimate yesterday urging that the areas at Seventy-ninth and Ninety-sixth Streets and the Hudson be turned over to the Park Department by the Department of Docks for use as park spaces.

The league's resolution said there were persistent reports that the river front from Seventy-second to 129th Street would be devoted to commercial docks, which would interfere with the Riverside Park improvement approved last July by the Board of Estimate. The league contended that the action of Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove in granting a permit for a carnival now operating at the foot of Seventy-ninth Street was a violation of the charter provision excluding such activities within 300 feet of a public park. The resolution was signed by Mrs. John Clapperton Kerr, president of the league; Stasia V. Yates and Louise D. Van Anda.

BACKS RYAN PROPOSALS.

Linville for School Program to Deal With "Problem Children."

The recent proposals of George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, for a more comprehensive program for dealing with "problem children," truancy and delinquency were commended yesterday in a letter to him by Dr. Henry R. Linville, head of the Teachers' Union.

"For two years the Teachers' Union and the Teachers' Union Auxiliary have been urging upon teachers and others the importance of the study of mental hygiene in its application to work in child guidance or behavior clinics," Dr. Linville said. "As you suggest, the study of the cases of problem children should aid greatly in the solution of the vexed problems of delinquency, truancy and crime."

Both will assist in the excavation of the Athenian agora, which will be undertaken shortly under the auspices of the school, of which they are both former fellows.

The American School was founded at Athens in 1879 to provide for graduate classical students. Rhys Carpenter is permanent resident director.

INSTALL MISS BLUNT AS COLLEGE HEAD

SHE SURVEYS NEW WOMAN

Broader College Training to Fit Women for Fresh Fields Is Needed, She Says.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 16 (AP).—Dr. Katherine Blunt, who was called from the University of Chicago a year ago to become president of Connecticut College for Women, was formally inducted into office today in ceremonies on the college campus after a brilliant scholastic procession.

Dr. Blunt became the third president of this college and has the distinction of being the first woman to head such an institution of learning in Connecticut. More than 100 foundations, universities and colleges in the East sent their delegates, many of these latter being presidents or deans, and all participating in the procession.

The induction of the president was by George S. Palmer of New London, chairman of the board of trustees. Dr. Blunt in her response recommended that the curriculum of women's colleges be broadened to meet woman's changing position in life.

Women have definitely won over earlier prejudices the right to a higher education and have emerged into fields of political and social work hitherto denied them, the new president pointed out in urging that their studies be adapted to these new interests.

Surveying the activity of women since their suffrage, Dr. Blunt saw need of teaching women as possible future participants in politics and not merely observers.

"The college," she said, "need not urge direct running for office as the only method of approach, but can interest its students, for example, in the effective work in political education of the League of Women Voters.

"Courses in economics and sociology with both theoretical and practical emphasis can do much to free the future boards managing the United Charities and the Child Welfare Society from an amateur viewpoint. One can see the public schools gaining smaller classes, better trained teachers, more effective teaching when the educated women of the community demand these things."

Revision of economic text books to treat the subject from the point of view of the individual, the women as managers of their homes, and additional research to get the woman's slant are urgently needed, she said.

Discussing the teaching of home economics, Dr. Blunt predicted that this subject will be given an important position in the education of women both because of its extent and because of its demonstration that education for home making can be at once desirable and intellectual.

N. Y. U. CADETS VIE IN MILITARY DISPLAY

Army Officers Honor Sergeant Major Hauck at Field Day Marking His Farewell.

Amid the rat-tat-tat of machine guns and the roar of an airplane motor, more than 500 cadets of the New York University Reserve Officers' Training Corps vied yesterday for company and individual honors at the twelfth annual military field day at Ohio Field on the University Heights campus.

More than 1,500 saw the cadets pay tribute to Master Sergeant John H. Hauck, United States Army, retired, and for the past nine years Sergeant Major of the R. O. T. C. at the university, who was the reviewing officer and guest of honor. It was Sergeant Major Hauck's farewell appearance at the university and just after the program was opened, he received a gold wrist watch from the regular army officers at the university.

Company A of the infantry unit captured most of the prizes, winning the platoon competitive drill and displaying the best machine gun and drill squads. Cadet Corporal Robert B. Hobart of the Second Squadron Air Corps won the Henry Cook Hathaway silver cup in the individual competitive drill among cadet non-commissioned officers, while Cadet Private Thomas M. Dunn won the Lieut. Col. Staley A. Campbell silver cup for a similar drill in the cadet private class.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS VERDICT FOR AMTORG

Bars Contention in Damage Action That Agency, as Soviet Subsidiary, Cannot Sue.

Over the contention that the Amtorg Trading Corporation is a subsidiary of the Soviet Government and as such has no right to prosecute a claim in the courts of this country, the Appellate Division upheld yesterday a judgment for that company for $22,700 against the New York Indemnity Company for a burglary loss on Nov. 5, 1924, when 1,235 skins, many of which were white foxes, were taken from the Amtorg store at 255 West Twenty-eighth Street.

When the suit was tried before Supreme Court Justice Ford the insurance company contended that the burglary, according to the plaintiff's testimony, must have happened within three minutes, because operatives of the Holmes Agency arrived within that period after the alarm sounded, and found the Amtorg store looted. The defendant also raised the defense that the Amtorg company was merely a Soviet trading agency in this country, but was unable to submit evidence as to ownership. Justice Ford struck out this defense.

Former Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah A. Mahoney, who argued the appeal for the insurance company, asserted that the judgment should be set aside on the ground that it would have been "physically impossible" for burglars to have taken so many skins through the front door of the store in three minutes. He also asked a reversal because of the trial judge's refusal to permit the Soviet defense to stand.

Among the questions unanswered at the trial was one relating to a shipment of gold from the Soviet Government to the Amtorg company which the Chase National Bank tried to have the United States Government coin, and which the government declined to do.

MINERS' INTERNATIONAL ASKS SEVEN-HOUR DAY

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CRACOW, Poland, May 16.—The Mine Workers' International Federation Conference, sitting here all week, voted a resolution today opposing the draft convention on miners' working hours prepared by the Geneva International Labor Office for the June annual international labor conference.

The draft fixes the working day at seven and a half hours under ground, with seven and three-quarters for a transition period of three years. The resolution opposes the clauses relative to the method of calculation of hours, the organization of work distribution, of the hours of presence and overtime, which it says violate the principle of limitation of the working day.

The conferenec advocates calculation of labor hours by the day, and expresses a determination to see the working day fixed internationally at seven hours from bank to bank—that is, from entering to leaving the mine.

Another resolution calls attention to the world's coal crisis, regrets that international agreements have made no progress, asks the League of Nations to give the problem serious attention and insists on the necessity of internationally organizing coal production and the coal market.

The conference also submitted to the International Trade Union Federation a proposal to call a one-day general demonstration strike as a protest against continuing armaments, which it sees as a war danger.

BUSINESS MEN HONOR RACKETEERS' VICTIM

Chicago Detective's Body Lies in State—Prominent Citizens Are Honorary Pallbearers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Joseph E. Altmeier, special investigator for the State's Attorney's office, who was slain in an attempt to break up a North Side racketeering gang, was buried this afternoon with honors paid by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

His body lay in state in the Chicago Temple for an hour. At the funeral, eulogies were delivered by Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Sinai Temple, Dr. John R. Thompson, minister of the Chicago Temple, and Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago Chapel.

The active pallbearers were the four policemen who accompanied Altmeier to the flat at 3,258 North Clark Street, where, in a police trap, Jack Hayes, the proprietor, as well as Altmeier, was slain by one of four bandits, two of whom also were killed. The policemen were Louis C. Parelli, Leo M. Anderson, William Nihill and Louis Furst.

Clifford W. Barnes, vice president of the Association of Commerce, presided at the services. The honorary pallbearers included many men prominent in the city's business and civic life.

TWO HELD IN BAIL FOR CENSUS DELAY

Face $100 Fine or 60 Days in Jail—12 Others Subpoenaed Are Freed With Reprimand.

RETURNS STILL COMING IN

While census supervisors here were working yesterday to get in the returns from the "stragglers" in the hope of completing the enumeration by June 1, two recalcitrants were held in $100 bail each to appear before United States Commissioner Cotter for a hearing on May 28. The possible punishment is $100 fine or sixty days in jail or both.

Warrants had been issued for four recalcitrants for failure to answer grand jury subpoenas. The four summoned were included among sixteen residents of the apartments of the City and Suburban Homes Development Company at 511 East Seventy-eighth Street who failed to furnish the required information. Grand jury subpoenas were issued for the sixteen and all appeared and were reprimanded except the four.

George N. Jesse, supervisor of the Twenty-fourth District, including the territory from Harlem to Spuyten Duyvil, said that he was conducting a "clean-up campaign" by sending letters to those whom the enumerators had not found at home and who had failed to send in the returns, and by sending out three special agents to check up on the district and secure any other returns the enumerators might have missed. The regular enumerators have practically completed their work.

Returns are still coming in at the rate of 500 to 1,000 a day, most of them by mail, he said. Checking up on the stragglers was also reported in the offices of Bruno B. Saloschin, twenty-second district supervisor, and Lester Friedman, supervisor of the twenty-first district, as well as from the Bronx supervisors.

As a preliminary to the final "clean-up drive" in the city, Edward F. Corsi, supervisor of the twenty-third census district, announced the final revised figures for the Sixteenth Assembly District, showing its population to be 74,964, a decrease of 33,153 since 1920.

HOOVER LAUDS WORK OF SALVATION ARMY

3,000 APPEAR IN TABLEAUX

A message of greeting from President Hoover was read last night as the Salvation Army ushered in with the music of its massed bands the Golden Jubilee Pageant in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The pageant was the first official event in the Congress, which will continue until May 23.

"The fiftieth anniversary of the work of the Salvation Army in the United States and the twenty-fifth anniversary of your command," President Hoover said in the message addressed to Commander Evangeline Booth, and read by Senator Royal S. Copeland, the chairman of the evening, "is not only an occasion for congratulations to you, which I cordially extend, but to the country as a whole, which has so largely benefited by the humanitarian activities and high ideals which you and the Army have consistently advanced. I am sure the heart of the country goes out to you in spontaneous gratitude and good wishes."

Senator Copeland, in opening the meeting, called it "one of the most remarkable gatherings I have ever seen." Commander Booth, terming the Army "an organization of service to humanity greater than any in the history of Christianity," urged her followers "onward to conquer the world with fire and with blood." The speaking followed the opening procession led by Uncle Sam, Miss Columbia, Father Knickerbocker, Miss New York and representatives of the forty-eight States in appropriate costumes.

The congress is attended by more than 4,000 delegates from all parts of the United States, and representatives of the Army in other countries, marks the twenty-fifth year of Miss Booth's leadership of the movement in the United States, as well as the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Army.

The pageant, with a cast numbering more than 3,000, represented not only the history of the Army in the United States, but the significant events in the history of the country itself, and the work of the Salvation Army in the mission fields. The first scene re-enacted the landing in 1880 at Castle Garden of the eight pioneers who founded the organization in the United States. Field Major Emma Westbrook, one of the pioneer group, is still living.

One of the principal features was entitled, "Music Then and Now." First a band of fourteen played in the style used by the first Army band of the same number. As they finished, a massed band of 100 picked musicians entered, playing a special composition, "The Salvation Army March," written by John Philip Sousa for the occasion.

Commander Booth issued yesterday a statement thanking the press and the nation generally for the assistance given to the Army during her twenty-five years of leadership.

INDICTED FOR PERJURY.

City Employe Accused on Testimony in Civil Action Against Him.

An indictment charging perjury was returned yesterday against Morris M. Herman of 31-10 Eighty-first Street, Jackson Heights, Queens, an employe in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts, in connection with testimony recently given by him before Justice Callahan and a jury in the Supreme Court in a civil action against him.

Herman was arrested last March 5 by order of Justice Callahan as he left the witness stand, and was held in $2,000 bail for the grand jury. It was charged that in testifying in the suit against him by Mark Avramo of 316 Riverside Drive, a public accountant who was an official of the Protective Finance Corporation, a loan organization at 13 Astor Place, Herman denied that he had admitted taking $2,500 from the funds of the corporation while temporarily employed there in 1925 in Avramo's absence, and promised to make restitution to a surety company.

Assistant District Attorney Kane, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, was said to have brought out that Herman and Avramo had been old friends, and alleged that Herman had transferred the money to his own bank account after he had received it from customers of the finance corporation. He will be arraigned for pleading next Monday.

"There is One Good Wife in the Country" and happy is the man who knows he has her. But he should tell her so for encouragement in her work to make the home a little heaven on earth for the family and their friends. One travels the world around and comes back invariably to say, there is no place like home. Do you remember that you were tearfully homesick the first time you went to Europe among strangers and had to work your way with unknown languages? The undoing of men and women, who come to large cities from the country, is mainly because they left their homes behind them and nobody seemed to care.

WADSWORTH IS OUT OF CONVENTION RACE

Ex-Senator Seeks Free Hand to Lead Wet Republicans in Fight to Win Party.

BOLT FEARED BY LEADERS

DRY MAJORITY IN PERIL

Plan to Cut Number of Delegates Also Hampers Chiefs in Efforts to Restore Harmony.

Not a little to their surprise, Republican leaders have learned this week that James W. Wadsworth Jr., former United States Senator, will not be a candidate for delegate to the Republican State Convention at the primaries in September. His decision to that effect will break a precedent of twenty-five years or more, during which Mr. Wadsworth has been an influential cog in the machinery of every Republican State Convention. During two terms he served in the United States Senate Mr. Wadsworth by virtue of his office was one of the four delegates at large.

Mr. Wadsworth, however, will head a large unofficial delegation representing the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment at the convention. It was learned yesterday that the association plans to take one or two floors at the principal hotel in whatever city the convention is held, and its spokesmen will come prepared to make an aggressive fight for a wet plank in the State platform. The association also is expected to demand the nomination of a wet candidate for Governor as a condition of supporting the ticket.

Wants Freedom of Action.

Friends of Mr. Wadsworth lay his decision to a desire not to be bound by any action of the convention. They say that since he has assumed his present position as head of the association forces in this State Mr. Wadsworth has abandoned all thought for the present of seeking office and has broken party ties to an extent leaders had scarcely thought possible.

It has already been announced that the New York State Committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment of which the former United States Senator is chairman will make a fight this Autumn wherever they deem it strategically profitable against dry candidates for Congress and for the State Senate and Assembly.

Mr. Wadsworth's aloofness has led Republican leaders to believe that if the convention should be compelled to name a dry for Governor, as now seems probable, and straddle the wet and dry issue in the platform, the party will face an active fight by wets in their own party led by Mr. Wadsworth.

Dry Majority Threatened.

In view of the ascendency of wet sentiment in sections of the State which heretofore have been regarded as dry the Republican leaders are not facing the prospect with any degree of pleasure. A casual survey of the outlook has convinced them that on the basis of representation that was obtained in the 1928 Republican State Convention the dry majority will come close to being wiped out in the convention this year.

It has been openly declared by a Republican leader familiar with the situation that the dry majority in this year's Republican State Convention would be reduced to a handful of delegates.

With the wet and dry question bound to be strongly to the fore in the convention, party heads, while they are said to feel reasonably assured that some of the wet organizations from the cities might be held in line for a party program dictated by political expediency, are unwilling to take any chances, particularly in view of the probability that the basis of representation will be changed.

The representation in Republican State conventions is based on the vote cast for Governor at the next preceding State election. In 1928 when the representation was based on the vote cast for Ogden L. Mills as Governor there were 1,147 delegates and an equal number of alternates. The vote cast for Albert Ottinger as Republican candidate for Governor in 1928, which will serve as basis of representation for the next Republican State convention next Autumn, was 2,104,629. With the same unit of representation applied this would allow approximately 1,800 delegates. The leaders have reached the conclusion that this would make for an unwieldy convention.

It was reported yesterday that in order to meet this situation it was probable that a larger bloc of votes would be fixed in determining the number of delegates to be allotted to each of the 150 Assembly districts in the State. More than one-half of the Assembly districts are in the large cities of the State and the vote Mr. Ottinger received in this city in the 1928 election was out of proportion to the vote he received up-State, where he did not run well.

The question will be submitted to the Republican State Committee to pass upon at a meeting here about the middle of next month. The date will be fixed upon the return next week of William J. Maier, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the call will probably go out before the week is ended.

Besides passing on the schedules of representation, the State committee will fix the time and place for the State convention. Three up-State cities, Albany, Buffalo and Rochester, have invited the Republicans. It was said yesterday that in all probability Albany will be selected.

Drops Charge Policeman Hit Her.

Miss Celia Brannecke, a telephone operator in the Federal Building, told the police yesterday that she will not press charges against Police Lieutenant Richard Reynolds of Traffic B, who was accused of having struck her while dispersing a crowd that had gathered following the collision of a surface car and a motor truck on Wednesday afternoon at Park Row and Mail Street. The complaint against the lieutenant was made to Police Commissioner Whalen in a letter written by an employe in the Federal Building.

MacDonald Declared Liquor On Arrival Home From Here

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—Premier MacDonald revealed today that when he returned from the United States he told the customs officer here he had two bottles of champagne, three bottles of brandy and one bottle of Scotch whisky to declare.

The officer took his statement as a Scotch joke, said Mr. MacDonald, who, on opening the new $3,500,000 landing stage at the Tilbury Docks, remarked: "There is no greater calamity that can befall a Scotsman than to be taken as joking when he is serious or as serious when he is joking."

PHILADELPHIA WETS CHEER WADSWORTH

Former Senator Hails Morrow as New Leader at Campaign Mass Meeting.

DAVIS MEN DEPRESSED

Ambassador's Speech Hurt Cause, They Fear—Grundy and Pinchot on the Radio.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—One of the most complex and sensational primary campaigns in Pennsylvania's history nearer its close tonight with every major candidate for Republican nomination next Tuesday invading Philadelphia to make a bid for this city's vote.

Some employed the radio and others appeared at public meetings in last-hour attempts to win local support.

The wets, with a parade followed by a mass meeting in the Academy of Music, made their biggest single efforts of the campaign. Former Senator Wadsworth of New York appeared as a speaker with Professor Francis H. Bohlen of the University of Pennsylvania, Senatorial candidate; Thomas W. Phillips, Gubernatorial aspirant, and Charles Dorrance, candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Mr. Wadsworth declared that the wet cause had another great leader in Dwight W. Morrow, who, in announcing his candidacy for the Senate in New Jersey last night, had declared for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and control of the liquor question by the States.

The declaration of Mr. Morrow has tended to accelerate the wet movement in Pennsylvania and is casting gloom in the organization camp, which is supporting Secretary of Labor Davis for the Senate and Francis Shunk Brown for Governor on a platform which is for law enforcement but declares in favor of repealing the State prohibition law if the people favor it in a referendum.

Morrow Is Praised.

"How refreshing is the statesmanship and courage of Dwight Morrow," Mr. Wadsworth said.

"Like Mr. Bohlen and Mr. Phillips, he tells the people of his State exactly where he stands on the question of prohibition. He grasps the fundamentals of the issue and presents them clearly and dispassionately.

"Our cause has another great leader in him. His action must bring encouragement to thousands upon thousands of Pennsylvanians who rejoice in the similar action of Mr. Bohlen, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Dorrance.

"This is not merely a question as to whether some or all of us may have a glass of beer. It is something far more important. It is a question of government.

"Let us examine for a moment the spectacle before our eyes. Our great national political parties meet in national conventions. The convention halls, the lobbies and corridors of the hotels resound with discussions of prohibition, pro and con. It absorbs the interest of the delegates. It pushes aside decent consideration of traditional party policies. It cuts across party lines and divides those who should be working in unison.

"Almost invariably an evasive compromise is reached. Resolutions phrased in resounding language and pledging the party to the enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition law, are adopted. Nothing is said as to the merits of prohibition.

Deplores "Hypocrisy."

"The real attitude of most of the delegates is apparent when we see them returning to their hotels and ordering cracked ice sent to their rooms. Some, at first thought, may regard this as amusing, but it is not. It is hypocrisy. It is demoralizing. It is disgraceful, and remember that the great national political parties are essential factors in our Federal system of government."

The meeting in the Academy of Music was one of the largest of the evening. Senator Wadsworth's speech was loudly applauded.

In South Philadelphia the Davis-Brown ticket brought its campaign to a climax with a meeting at the Broadway Athletic Club, presided over by William S. Vare, who declared earlier in the day that "there is nothing to this fight," and predicted a victory for the entire ticket.

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, candidate for the Senatorial nomination, made an appeal over a State-wide radio hook-up, discussing several campaign issues and stressing the tariff.

Gifford Pinchot, free lance bone dry candidate for Governor, spoke over the radio, appeared at several widely separated meetings and then boarded a train for Pittsburgh to close his campaign tomorrow in Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Pinchot, who was deserted last week by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, who went over to the Davis-Brown ticket, was accused today of "betraying labor in order to aid Joseph R. Grundy."

The charge was made by William F. Kelly, international vice president of the United Textile Workers, who recently assailed Senator Grundy in a radio address, and it preceded a mass meeting of workers held in McPherson Square, at which "Grundyism" was denounced, and which Mr. Pinchot refused to address.

Plans Zoning Law Drive in Bronx.

Following complaints of zoning law violations in the Bronx, Tenement House Commissioner William F. Deegan said yesterday that he had ordered fifty additional inspectors to that borough, beginning Monday, to eliminate illegal occupancies in residence districts by tailor shops, dressmaking shops and other business establishments. Because the offenses constitute fire hazards, Commissioner Deegan said, summonses would be issued for the offenders.

REPEAL RANKS WIN TWO MORE STATES

Nevada and Louisiana Added to Three Already Voting Against Amendment.

DRYS FAIL TO GAIN

Enforcement Has 1,386,216 Votes, Modification 1,340,441 and Repeal 1,836,104 as Poll Nears End.

With a total of 4,562,761 ballots cast The Literary Digest presents in today's issue semi-final tabulations in its prohibition poll, giving the combined repeal and modification sentiment a majority of 1,790,329. The figures will show 1,386,216 for enforcement, 1,340,441 for modification and 1,836,104 for repeal. Twenty million ballots were distributed. The poll will close next week.

Two more States give an outright majority for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. These States are Louisiana and Nevada, which join Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, all of which also showed a substantial vote for modification. No States other than the five previously reported, Arkansas, Kansas, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee, registered a majority vote for strict enforcement.

Nevada Wettest State.

Nevada, with a 57 per cent vote for the annulment of the dry laws, takes first place in the list of wet States in the straw referendum, while Kansas, with nearly 58 per cent of its ballots registered for enforcement, continues to hold the lead in the dry column.

The percentages in the semi-finals are 30.38 per cent for enforcement, 29.34 per cent for modification and 40.24 per cent for repeal. Twenty-one States show a plurality for enforcement, while two more evidence pluralities for modification and twenty-five States have pluralities for repeal.

The Nevada vote stands 897 for enforcement, 1,272 for modification and 2,880 for repeal, while the Louisiana vote is 8,281 for enforcement, 9,292 for modification and 18,439 for repeal.

Wets Capture Five More Cities.

Wet majorities were registered in five new cities reported yesterday in The Literary Digest prohibition poll, but two of the five gave pluralties to enforcement. These were Provo, Utah, and Lakeland, Fla. In Freeport, Ill., and Piqua, Ohio, modification received a plurality, while Waukesha, Wis., polled a plurality for repeal.

Passaic, N. J., tabulated in a second report, gave a large majority to repeal, with a vote of more than 8 to 1 against enforcement. Bismarck, N. D., and New Britain, Conn., showed pluralities for repeal, and Roanoke, Va., cast a plurality for enforcement. The tabulation follows:

LEGION CASE UP ON JUNE 7.

State Committee to Act on Charges Against S. Rankin Drew Post.

Official notice of suspension of its charter was received by S. Rankin Drew Post 340 yesterday at its headquarters in the office of Sydney G. Gumpertz, commander, at 101 West Forty-second Street. Mr. Gumpertz regretted that the matter had received publicity, but declined to reply to charges of improperly conducting a ticket sale for a boxing bout until after the members of the post had met on Monday and decided upon a course of action.

John J. Bennett Jr., State commander of the legion, said the State committee would decide upon the S. Rankin Drew Post's case on June 7 at the quarterly meeting at Tupper Lake. The usual procedure in such cases is suspension of the charter, followed by investigation, and then a decision to reinstate or to revoke, depending on the investigation. The suspended post may defend its conduct at the meeting of the State committee.

Will Confer on Wilson Memorial.

Hamilton Fish Armstrong, who is a trustee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, will sail for Geneva on the Paris next Friday. He will discuss with members of the Council of the League of Nations plans for the use of the $25,000 prize awarded to the League last Fall by the foundation. Tentative plans for a memorial to Woodrow Wilson at Geneva were announced by the League upon its acceptance of the prize.

500 Jaywalkers Killed, 14,251 Hurt in 1929, Says Whalen, Pointing to Need for New Rules

How the anti-jaywalking regulations which will go into effect Monday will save human life was indicated by Police Commissioner Whalen in a statement he issued yesterday giving figures on casualties to pedestrians who cross streets against the traffic lights or at other than the usual crossings.

Of jaywalkers who would not follow the designated crosswalks, 412 were killed in 1929 and 11,091 injured, a 20 per cent increase in both categories over the 1928 figures.

"It is conceded," Mr. Whalen said, "that the majority of people cross streets at the designated crosswalks and the number who cross away from the designated crosswalk is small in comparison. Still there were less killed and injured at the designated crosswalks in 1929."

There were 93 fewer persons killed and 774 fewer injured at the designated crossing in 1929 than at other points, he said.

Last year 88 persons were killed crossing against traffic lights and 3,160 were injured. "This shows the lack of cooperation," Mr. Whalen said, "on the part of pedestrians in crossing streets on which traffic is controlled by lights. Pedestrians do not realize that primarily traffic control lights were installed to safeguard them at street intersections."

There is also danger, he said, for the jaywalker in coming out from behind parked autos. Fifteen were killed and 399 injured in this way in 1929, according to his figures.

"It is generally conceded," the Police Commissioner concluded, "that operators of automobiles have a greater sense of responsibility and exercise greater care in operation of the auto when approaching a street intersection for two reasons: first, they are on the lookout for other vehicles approaching from the right or left, and, secondly, they expect to find a greater number of pedestrians crossing the streets there."

TWO SENT TO PRISON IN $140,000 THEFT

GIRL DISCOVERED FRAUD

Teller Who Honored Bad Paper Gets Suspended Sentence—Official Had 27 Years' Service.

Two of three men involved in the theft of about $140,000 in 1928 from the branch of the Colonial Bank at Columbus Avenue and 104th Street, before it was merged with the Bank of United States, received prison terms from Judge Nott in General Sessions yesterday on pleas of guilty. The third escaped with a suspended sentence.

Samuel J. Saur, 41 years old, a real estate operator, of 179 Mount Eden Avenue, the Bronx, the principal figure in the conspiracy, was sentenced to Sing Sing for from two to four years. Joseph B. Price, 43 years old, of 505 West 183d Street, manager of the branch, through whom Saur obtained the money on forged checks, was sentenced to an indeterminate term of not more than three years, and August O. Siegman, 41 years old, of 41 Coakley Avenue, Harrison, N. Y., a teller in the branch, who honored Saur's checks by direction of Price, was freed on a suspended sentence.

Price and Siegman had pleaded guilty to forgery charges when Saur was arraigned for trial on a grand larceny indictment last week. A jury had been drawn for the trial when Saur, learning they were to testify against him, admitted his guilt.

Price had been employed in the bank twenty-seven years and Siegman twenty-four years when the theft plot was discovered in April, 1929. A girl bookkeeper had discovered the fraud and reported it to her superiors. It was found that Saur had opened an account at the branch in the preceding November, and began issuing checks against it. Siegman called the attention of Price to the fact there were insufficient funds to meet these checks, but Price told him: "That's all right; pay out the money."

Price then is alleged to have charged the withdrawals to the accounts of other patrons, but eliminated these withdrawals from the monthly statements of the latter. In Price's absence on vacation, statements were sent to some of the patrons, including the withdrawals which had been falsely credited to their accounts, and it was through their complaints to the girl bookkeeper that the thefts were uncovered.

OREGON VOTE IS LIGHT IN PRIMARY BALLOTING

Scattered Returns Indicate Only 40 Per Cent of Electorate Participated.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 16 (AP).—Oregon's electorate today selected candidates for Congress and State offices in the biennial State-wide primary.

Reports from scattered sections received here indicated that less than 40 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls, the smallest per cent on record. Lack of outstanding issues and inclement weather in some sections caused the light balloting.

Grants Pass reported a heavy vote because a circus brought the residents out. Due to the complex Gubernatorial situation, no predictions on the outcome of the contests in the primary were being made. Six Republicans and four Democrats sought the nominations for Governor.

CANNON GIVES UP CONFERENCE GAVEL

PRESS AGAIN ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, May 16.—Bishop James Cannon Jr., storm centre of the quadrennial session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who was to have presided over the session today by rank of seniority, relinquished the gavel to Bishop William N. Ainsworth, who had presided on the previous day.

Bishop Cannon received an ovation from the delegates as he stepped on the platform.

"I want to make a personal statement," he said. "In view of certain conditions known to the conference I want to ask that my good friend and colleague, Bishop Beauchamp, come forward and preside."

There was a renewal of applause for Bishop Cannon as he limped back to his chair in the rear of the platform and Bishop Beauchamp took up the gavel.

Newspaper reports of the conference were brought under fire again when Bishop Horace M. Dubose, with a copy of a Dallas morning paper in his hand, assailed its account of deliberations of the committee on episcopacy which is hearing the charge against Bishop Cannon of stock market gambling.

Bishops Edwin D. Mouzon, John M. Moore and Cannon joined in the protest.

"I want to protest against the story of the episcopacy committee's transactions of Wednesday night as it appeared in this morning's newspaper," Bishop Dubose said, "and state that I resent the declaration that I or any of my friends have sought to withhold me from the judgment of my brethren. I do not live in a glass house and if any one has any protest, of any nature, to make against me, I welcome it. I have never written or said anything that I will not stand back of personally."

Dr. James A. Anderson of Arkansas, a veteran presiding elder, sought to present another resolution condemning the press.

"We are exploited outrageously by the newspapers after Dallas has invited us here to be guests," he said, "and we resent the false impressions they give about us when they speak of factions compounding and of moves being made."

The conference refused to give Dr. Anderson permission to introduce his resolution and there were shouts of "That's just feeding the press. That's what they want us to do." A resolution by Dr. George C. French on the same subject was also voted down.

By one of the largest votes yet recorded, the General Conference authorized the setting of a maximum age limit of 72 years for Bishops.

TRIES GLIDER AT MONTAUK.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTAUK POINT, L. I., May 16.—Hawley Bowlus, who instructed the Lindberghs in gliding near Los Angeles and is now in the East organizing glider clubs came to Montauk Point this morning bringing his glider with him on a trailer. He made several flights of about a minute each from the crest of Fischer's Hill, which rises 154 feet above the sea.

The wind today, he said, was rather stiff for gliding and after his experimental flights he left for New York. Bowlus was the guest of the Aero Club of Long Island. He expects to study other sections of Long Island and to make flight tests in Westchester and in Northern New Jersey. He will also make further flight tests here.

TUTTLE TO REVEAL CANNON STOCK DATA

Telegram From Caraway Asks Him to Aid Inquiry of Senate Committee.

BOOKS TO BE EXAMINED

Federal Attorney Is Said to Have Records Not Heretofore Divulged —Bishop Remains Silent.

United States Attorney Tuttle, who is said to have records not heretofore divulged concerning the stock market activities of Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was called yesterday into the inquiry being conducted by the Senate Lobby Committee, of which Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas is chairman.

The Federal Attorney, in reply to a request sent by Senator Caraway from Washington, wired his permission for investigators of the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to examine all records, books, letters and other documents here relating to Bishop Cannon's transactions with the defunct brokerage house of Kable & Co., and with Harry L. Goldhurst, his friend and financial mentor, who was sentenced last October to five years in Atlanta Penitentiary for mail fraud.

Senator Caraway indicated last Tuesday that the Senate inquiry, which at first was centred on the Bishop's fight against the candidacy of former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the last Presidential campaign, would be broadened to include an investigation of the Bishop's activities in the stock market.

These activities also may be the centre of an investigation before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South now in session in Dallas, Texas, where Bishop Cannon is in attendance.

The telegram Mr. Tuttle received from Senator Caraway read:

"Please permit our investigators to examine all records, books, papers, and other documents relating to transactions of Bishop Cannon Jr., with Goldhurst, Kable & Co. This is important. Please wire your assent."

Mr. Tuttle conferred immediately with officials of the Department of Justice and after obtaining their permission to hold the records for examination, issued the following statement:

"I have referred this matter to the Department of Justice and inasmuch as the papers in question were in the files of Goldhurst and Kable & Co., which files were lawfully seized by the government for its prosecution of Goldhurst and Kable & Co., the Department of Justice and myself are willing that these papers should be examined and I am telegraphing Senator Caraway accordingly."

Mr. Tuttle added that he would give his full cooperation to the Senate committee.

The Bishop's dealing with Kable & Co. was first aired before Robert P. Stephenson, referee in bankrutpcy, who attempted to find out what had become of $444,095.85, which Goldhurst, according to investigators, had collected from "investors." It was at that hearing that Goldhurst testified that he was a social as well as a business friend of Bishop Cannon and that he had handled his market accounts before Kable & Co. came into being. He also testified that a mistake in bookkeeping had caused an impression among auditors that the clergyman had been able to buy $10,000 worth of stock without putting up a deposit.

Cannon Declines to Comment.

DALLAS, Texas, May 16 (AP).—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of Washington, D. C., today declined to comment on the action of Senator Caraway in requesting the Federal Attorney at New York to supply all records concerning Bishop Cannon's stock market transactions.

"I do not want to be placed in the position of appearing to fail to cooperate with the press," Bishop Cannon said, "but I feel that it would not be seemly for me to comment on any of these personal matters."

Investigator Coming Here Today.

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP).—The way was opened today for the Senate Lobby Committee to examine all records concerning transactions of Bishop James Cannon Jr., with two New York brokerage companies. Permission was requested by Chairman Caraway of the committee. Federal Attorney Tuttle of New York, who has possession of the records, replied that after conferring with the Department of Justice he would assent to the examination.

Mr. Caraway said he expected to send John Holland, committee investigator, to New York tomorrow to make an investigation. He will examine the records of the brokerage houses of Charles Goldhurst and Kable & Co.

Bishop Cannon's finances came before the committee in testimony by Representative Tinkham, Republican, of Massachusetts, who charged that the Bishop had received $65,300 from E. C. Jameson of New York for use in the 1928 Virginia anti-Smith campaign but had reported receipts of only $17,000.

COOLEY INQUIRY GOES ON.

Grand Jury Presentment Expected Late Next Week.

The April grand jury, which several weeks ago conducted a general investigation of the General Sessions Probate Bureau, is not expected to hand up a presentment on its findings to Judge Donnellan in General Sessions until the latter part of next week. Assistant District Attorney Hastings and a committee of the grand jurors, it was learned yesterday, still are at work on preparation of the presentment.

It was through evidence developed in this investigation that the regular May grand jury later returned two indictments against Edwin J. Cooley, who resigned as chief of the bureau, charging him with falsification of the bureau payrolls for September and October of last year, when, it is charged, Cooley's sister, Mrs. Marguerite F. Lawler, received pay as temporary chief clerk when she was employed at the same time as a public school teacher in Buffalo.

Cooley pleaded not guilty to these indictments and is awaiting trial in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, which is not expected to begin before Justice Cohn for three weeks. A criminal libel charge made against Cooley recently by Abe Klein and his wife, Belle Fein Klein, former employes of the bureau, was withdrawn by them last Wednesday before Magistrate Simpson in the Tombs Court in a summons proceeding.

Rogers Would Prefer Grundy To Those Ten Texas Senators

To the Editor of The New York Times:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 16.—Democratic leader of the House, John Garner of Texas, and ordinarily a mighty smart man, wants to divide Texas into five States giving it ten Senators, so it would get us folks in the South a little more equal representation.

Instead of getting eight more for the South, I would trade all I did have for Senator Joe Grundy. Uncle Joe would fix us up a tariff down below that Montgomery Ward line that would soon have us so well off we would all turn Republicans.

Numbers don't get you nothing. It's individuals that get you something. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

CAGLE CASE INQUIRY DEMANDED IN HOUSE

BRITTEN JOINS IN ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The case of Cadet Christian Cagle was brought to the floor of the House today with an intimation by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York that some military authorities might have been implicated in keeping the football star at West Point after he had married in violation of the rules of the academy.

Mr. Fish, Representative from the West Point district and a star on one of Harvard's elevens, declared that the very basis of amateur sportsmanship was being undermined by practices at West Point.

His speech, made during consideration of the Navy Department appropriation bill, created quite a discussion on sports in the government academies. Chairman Britten of the Naval Affairs Committee deplored the Army's attitude of wanting to play games with other colleges "under their own rules."

"It's the old army high hat," Mr. Britten said, "and I don't like it."

Attacks West Point Policy.

Mr. Fish asserted that the time had come to see if any of the officers at West Point knew of the cadet's marriage two years ago and had helped him to conceal it in order to keep him on the football team.

"The War Department should make the investigation at once," said Mr. Fish, "and if they find there was any connivance on the part of officers at West Point they should be transferred immediately. This Cagle affair has struck at the very foundation of amateur sportsmanship at West Point."

Mr. Fish asserted there were a "number of things" that should be cleared up regarding the West Point athletic situation and made an attack on West Point authorities for alleged refusal to comply with intercollegiate rules.

Britten Questions Sportsmanship.

Mr. Fish said that under the present practices at West Point the academy was threatening to abandon its primary purpose of "training the best young army officers in the world" and going in for developing professional football players.

He said that boys had gone there only to continue football careers started in other colleges and had then resigned without any service to the army. He named recent stars, Garbisch, Sprague, McEwan and Cagle, who had resigned.

"Those men, with several years' training in football, and older than the average cadet, shut out other boys who are legitimate candidates for the football team," declared Mr. Fish.

Representative Britten said that he had inquired of officers why West Point would not adopt intercollegiate rules.

"They said it was because they could not win any games under those rules," declared Mr. Britten. "If that is so, then the object is victory and not fair, honest-to-God sportsmanship."

Says Officers Did Not Know.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 16.—An investigation by officials of the United States Military Academy has shown that none of the officers here knew of the marriage, two years ago, of Christian Cagle, army football star, until it was brought out this week, according to a statement issued tonight by Captain W. H. Wells, West Point intelligence officer.

Captain Wells said:

"I am positive that no officer on duty at West Point had any suspicion that Mr. Cagle was married, prior to the press notices received this week. The matter was investigated and that fact definitely established."

WALTER HAGEN FILES SUIT.

He Asks Ex-Owners of Rochester Ball Club to Return $8,500.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 16 (AP).—An action to recover $8,500 he asserts he invested in the Rochester Baseball Club in September, 1927, was instituted here today by the attorney for Walter Hagen, professional golfer.

Hagen is suing two former owners of the club, John L. Hicks, automobile dealer, and William G. Gilbert. The Rochester Red Wings Baseball Club, Inc., also is named a defendant in the suit, slated for trial in the Supreme Court.

The suit is the aftermath of Hagen's unsuccessful venture with John H. Ganzel and Robert E. Harlow into baseball before the purchase of the club by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hagen alleges that the defendants received $8,500 from him, and, although he has made demands for its return, he has been refused.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16.—Word has reached here that the Rev. Walter Lowrie, rector of the American Episcopal Church at Rome, has resigned and will return to the United States soon. Mr. Lowrie, who is an author and has held the rectorship of the Italian church for some years, is a graduate of Princeton University, class of '90.

HUSTON RESIGNATION NOW EXPECTED SOON

Understanding Is That Chairman Will Bow to Wish of Republican National Committee.

TO AWAIT LOBBY REPORT

Committee Will Give Findings on His Muscle Shoals Activities in Two Weeks.

SUCCESSOR IS DISCUSSED

Secretary Hyde Is Foremost Among Those Reported as Under Consideration.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—As a result of exchanges of views among members of the Republican National Committee which developed that a large majority favored the retirement of Claudius H. Huston from the chairmanship, his resignation is expected in the near future, according to the understanding in party circles.

Although Mr. Huston has been urged by some close political associates to resign at once, he is credited with having indicated that he will not do so until after the Senate lobby committee has presented its report concerning his alleged activities in behalf of having Muscle Shoals leased to private interests instead of being operated by the government.

Mr. Huston was in Washington today and visited the headquarters of the Republican National Committee. When the report of his impending retirement was brought to the attention of officials the statement was made that it was "wholly unauthorized."

Selection of a new chairman is already under consideration. The name of Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, Secretary of Agriculture and former Governor of his State, is foremost in the discussion among National Committeemen and prominent Republicans, but it is understood that he is averse to accepting the place. If he should be chosen and accept he would retire from the Cabinet, according to the general view in informed quarters.

Others whose names are being mentioned are David Mulvane, committeeman for Kansas; Dr. E. B. Clements, committeeman for Missouri; Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, banker, lawyer and close friend of President Hoover, and who was a member of the Dawes Reparations Commission, and J. R. Nutt of Cleveland, treasurer of the national committee.

There has been a long and unexpected delay in presenting the lobby committee's report on Mr. Huston. The belief prevails that the postponement has been due to two reasons. One is that the committee's majority of Democrats and independent Republicans desires to hold back the report until just before the final adjournment of Congress so as to have its critical references to Mr. Huston given prominence at the outset of the Congress campaign.

Information obtained tonight, however, indicated that the report will be laid before the Senate in two weeks or thereabouts, and that Congress will not adjourn for another month at the earliest.

The other reported reason is that Senator Robinson of Indiana, the only regular Republican member of the committee, has indicated that if the majority censures Mr. Huston he will submit a minority report concerning the connection of Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National Committee with the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and will call for action against Senator King of Utah, a Democratic member of the Finance Committee, which handled the tariff revision measure, for his alleged employment of a representative of private chemical interests to help him in connection with the chemical schedule of the bill.

TWO MORE VETOES ASSAILED BY WARD

Attorney General Criticizes Action on Garnishee and Veterans' Bureau Bills.

Attorney General Hamilton Ward criticized last night two recent vetoes by Governor Roosevelt during the last session of the Legislature, in an address before the Republican Club of the Twenty-third Assembly District, 1,108 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn.

One bill which Mr. Ward said was not seriously opposed concerned the amount of wage upon which a garnishment would be applicable. This measure which met with the Governor's disapproval proposed to amend the existing law so that the minimum wage to be garnished was $18 instead of $12 a week, Mr. Ward said. The bill also provided that the judgment debtor might not have his wages garnisheed without notice and further stipulated that it applied only in cases where the debt had been incurred wholly for necessaries or for services, he said.

"The Governor vetoed this humane measure, saying he did not think the Legislature understood it. The Governor gives a further reason that it would make the poor man who has to buy on credit subject to the bill while the rich man who pays cash would not be subject. In other words, the relation of debtor and creditor is not established where payment is made."

Mr. Ward said the garnishee law is harsh, and to his knowledge has never operated successfully. "It seems to me that the just action of the Legislature should not have been thwarted in the interest of any class," he asserted. "In discussing the conduct of public utilities we have been given to understand that the interests of the poor were paramount. This bill which intended to relieve the poorest of the poor from a vexatious law has failed."

Mr. Ward also took exception to the Governor's veto of the bill that would have established legal aid bureaus for war veterans in the Attorney General's office.

ONE-MINUTE HOLD-UP NETS $10,000 LOOT

DIAMOND BROKER ROBBED

Three young men who operated with clock-like precision stole $10,000 in a minute's work yesterday morning. They held up a Queens bank's special officer and janitor, who were acting as messengers, seized a small black bag containing the money and escaped in an automobile.

The officer was Pantalone Farace and his companion was Pasquale Parisi. Both are employed by the Queens County Bank, on the northeast corner of 103d Street and Thirty-eighth Avenue. Early yesterday they were sent to a branch of the Bank of Manhattan Company, which is on the northwest corner of the same intersection. Farace had a black bag. When they started back across the street the money, in $50 and $100 bills, was in it.

The street is a narrow one, and the regulations allow only one-way traffic. As the two messengers were about to turn from the sidewalk into their own bank a dark blue sedan pulled up alongside the curb. One of the men remained behind the wheel. Two others jumped out. They ran across the narrow sidewalk.

Janitor Felled by Pistol.

One robber hit Parisi on the head with a pistol butt and the janitor fell. The other placed his weapon against Farace's back, at the same time seizing the black bag. Farace had his hand on his own pistol, but it was in his pocket and he did not have time to draw it. After taking the bag, the second thug jostled the watchman and made him lose his balance. In another moment the robbers jumped into the car and were lost in the traffic by the time Farace had fired two shots to sound the alarm.

Queens detectives, under Inspector John J. Gallagher, rounded up about a score of persons who said they saw the men or the car. The police would not say whether they had been able to learn the license number of the automobile, nor would they tell whether the two victims had been able to pick familiar faces from the Rogues' Gallery at Manhattan headquarters. They announced, however, that they had good descriptions.

Two hold-up men, who apparently had received an accurate "tip-off" of the conditions they would meet, entered the apartment house at 440 Riverside Drive by a delivery entrance on West 116th Street yesterday, and in the superintendent's office at the end of a narrow, winding hallway took $500, the bulk of a payroll being checked.

Henry Gleitz, the superintendent, of Bellaire, L. I., was at his desk counting out the money when the men entered, one carrying a pistol. When James Crowley, a porter, appeared at the doorway, the robbers shoved him into a corner of the office, seized the money and locked the office door behind them. They had escaped by the time Gleitz and Crowley were freed by another employe.

Broker Robbed of $7,000 Gems.

While in the washroom of the Third Avenue Elevated station at 116th Street yesterday, Samuel W. Halper, 48 years old, of 2,750 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, a diamond broker, was robbed by three men of uncut stones valued at $7,000. They had followed him into the washroom, he told police.

Mr. Halper had obtained the stones on memorandum from Whitelaw Brothers, diamond dealers, of 68 Nassau Street, and had gone to A. Silberman, a jeweler, at 2,116 Third Avenue. Unable to make a sale, he was returning to the Whitelaw offices.

As he entered the washroom, he said the three robbers followed him, and told him to face the wall. They took the stones, which were in seven packages of white paper, from his pocket, and with Mr. Halper's handkerchief, gagged him. Warning Mr. Halper not to move, the robbers fled through the turnstile and down the north stairs of the station. Halper pulled off the gag and followed, shouting for help.

Thomas Baxter, ticket agent, blew a police whistle and ran after the robbers. At the foot of the stairs they separated, he told the police, one running west on 116th Street, and the other going to the east. He was unable to see their faces, he said, as they held their hands over them as they ran. They wore dark suits and appeared to be about 30 years old, Mr. Baxter said.

Mr. Halper was unable to identify the men after examining pictures in the rogues' gallery.

TEXAS MOB OF 3,000 BURNS BODY OF NEGRO

HONEYGROVE, Texas, May 16 (AP).—The body of a Negro who killed E. F. Fortenberry, a 50-year-old land owner, this afternoon was burned in the Negro section of Honeygrove late today after a crowd estimated at 3,000 persons had dragged it through the streets on the rear of an automobile from a cabin near here where the Negro barricaded himself and exchanged shots with a Sheriff's posse.

The Negro, George Johnson, 30 years old, was believed to have been killed by bullets fired into the cabin by officers. After he had ceased firing the crowd made a rush on the cabin, overpowered the two officers surrounding it and seized the body. The mob seemed intent only upon [illegible] the Negro section and the officers believed that no attempt would be made to destroy any property.

After dragging the body about the streets of the business section for a few minutes, the mob headed for the Negro section where it was burned in front of a church. Then a heavy rain started falling and the crowd began dispersing.

Honeygrove is about fifty miles east of Sherman, where a week ago today a mob burned the Grayson County Court House, causing the death of George Hughes, a Negro, 41 years old, charged with attacking a white woman. The rioting in Sherman resulted in a proclamation by Governor Moody placing the city under martial law.

BIG BAND CONCERT ON AIR.

Sousa to Conduct Salvation Army Jubilee Music Tonight.

When John Philip Sousa leads more than 700 musicians tonight at the Golden Jubilee Congress of the Salvation Army in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory for the playing of his composition, "The Salvation Army March," the program is to be broadcast to radio listeners over WNYC. The program will be on the air from 8 to 9:30 and from 10 to 10:30 o'clock over the municipal station.

In addition to the number played under the direction of Mr. Sousa, the individual bands will be heard in individual selections and a chorus of 1,000 will sing.

Mr. Sousa's composition is dedicated to Commander-in-Chief Evangeline Booth, who is to speak at the opening of the congress. Other speakers include Commanders James Hay of Canada, Henry W. Mapp, R. E. Holz, F. McMillan and A. Gifford.

Announcement will be made of the prize winners in the Salvation Army's national music competition, which was recently completed.

HOUSE DRYS BALK ON 'MINOR OFFENSE'

MEMBERS CLASH ON POLL

La Guardia and Tarver Are Called to Order in Sharp Exchange on Magazine Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Stobbs bill to amend the Jones maximum penalty law for violation of the Volstead act is meeting opposition in the House Judiciary Committee from an element which will not concede that the making, selling or transporting of a gallon of liquor is a minor offense.

This was revealed today when Representative Stobbs of Massachusetts offered a substitute making the minimum quantity "one quart." This, it is thought will let certain members of the judiciary group vote for a modification of the Jones law with easier conscience.

The original Stobbs bill provided for a definition of minor or casual violations of the dry law, and fixed maximum penalties at $500 fine and jail sentence of six months.

Under the definitions in the measure any single sale, manufacture or transportation of liquor, not in excess of one gallon, by a person not an habitual violator, would be constituted a minor offense. Under the Jones law, all are major offenses and the maximum penalties run up to $10,000 fine and five years' imprisonment.

Changing of the minimum amount to one quart was considered today a move in favor of a larger part of the enforcement program recommended by the Wickersham commission. Upon the definition of minor or casual violations rests another bill providing, in part, for their disposal by United States Commissioners, one of the major recommendations of the commission.

Prohibition showed itself to be still a fighting word in the House today when wets and drys, in a tilt over results of the Literary Digest poll, had to be called to order by Speaker Longworth as the members hurled invectives and charged insults.

The principal wrangle was between Representatives Tarver of Georgia and La Guardia of New York. Mr. Tarver, attacking the poll as a "fraud," cited instances which he said showed that it was conducted fraudulently among the Protestant ministers of the District of Columbia.

Mr. La Guardia challenged the Georgian's statement with the reply that he did not "believe that the gentleman from Georgia is even on speaking terms with the reputable members of the Protestant ministry in the District of Columbia."

"I want to know on what basis the gentleman from New York makes the insulting statement," said Mr. Tarver.

At this juncture Representative Johnson of Washington made a point of order that the men were addressing each other personally. Speaker Longworth sustained the point and broke the tension between the two.

START DRIVE TO BEAT MRS. M'CORMICK

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Organization of the wet forces of Illinois against Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, a dry, in favor of James Hamilton Lewis, a wet, as a candidate for Senator this Fall, and a trend of support for dry candidates for other offices in the State, appeared today in the drive now under way by the Anti-Prohibition party of Illinois.

Under the leadership of Harold W. Jirka, president and general counsel of the Anti-Prohibition party of Illinois, which has been incorporated under the laws of this State, said its aim was to procure 500,000 signers to the following pledge in the next 90 days:

"I hereby pledge my vote to such candidates at all elections who are in favor of a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law, and hereby agree to be guided by the recommendations of the Anti-Prohibition party of Illinois, Inc."

In the three weeks since the drive started 150 volunteer field workers have turned into the party's headquarters here 80,000 signed pledge cards with the address of each signer, Mr. Jirka declared. Within the next 30 days it is planned to add 200 field workers throughout the State, he said.

"We are a non-partisan body," Mr. Jirka explained. "When the campaign gets under headway, we intend to send to every office seeker and candidate for whatever office a questionnaire asking if he is in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act. Each pledger will then be advised of the stand of the candidates and will be expected to vote accordingly."

To each person signing the pledge the organization sends a copy of the Constitution and a pamphlet on the life of Thomas Jefferson. As soon as Illinois is thoroughly organized, charters will be taken out in Michigan and Ohio.

PLAN SUMMER THEATRE.

Sponsors to Give Repertory Season of 12 Plays at Woodstock.

A "permanent repertory and experimental theatre," it is announced, will be started next month in the Maverick colony at Woodstock, N. Y. There will be four performances weekly, beginning with Wednesday nights.

The theatres will be operated under the name of Beckhard & Macfarlane, Inc., and the operating personnel will consist of Arthur J. Beckhard, Robert Bell, Curtis Cooksey, Ruth Putnam Mason, Milton V. O'Connell and Theodore Viehman. The scenic department will be headed by A. Feder and Thomas Fisher.

Margaret Anglin will appear in Ibsen's "Lady Inger" and Margaret Wycherly will be seen in a new play by Mr. Viehman. Among the other plays scheduled are "Flora," by Arnold Bennett (its American premiere), Pirandello's "Signora Morli, Una e Due," and "Key Largo," by Katharine Clugston.

WORLD PATENT TRUCE ON TALKIES LIKELY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 16.—The conversations in Berlin during the last week between Adolph Zukor, president of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation, and representatives of the world patent groups controlling sound-recording and movie projecting apparatus have developed a situation which presages an early truce between the warring factions. As a result it is predicted that the German market soon will be available for unfettered exploitation of American talking and sound productions.

The final conversations will be held in Switzerland in the middle of June between representatives of the German and American patent groups.

"I am very happy that my mission to Berlin has met with success," Mr. Zukor said tonight before he went to Paris. "I have met the directors of Siemens & Halske, who also represented A. E. G. and Klangfilm in this matter, as well as an accredited representative of the Tobis concern.

"I explained to these gentlemen that the motion picture industry was very much handicapped through the fact that the electrical instruments are controlled through patents held by various organizations, and that a unification of these respective rights could be brought about it would very materially enhance the prosperity of picture producers and theatre owners."

He said he believed that when the conversations were resumed in Switzerland next month a complete understanding would be reached on the question of the interchangeability of pictures and machines throughout the world in a definite international patent truce.

It was learned today that an executive representative of the Western Electric Company would participate in the meeting in Switzerland.

Attache Will Return to France.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Robert Lacour-Gayet, Financial Attaché of the French Embassy, will sail for France early in June to become director of the Service des Etudes Economiques of the Bank of France for financial studies. He has taken a large part in the financial arrangements between this country and France, particularly in connection with the Berenger-Mellon settlement.

CLOSE MEXICAN TIES URGED BY MORROW

Ambassador Asks for Better Understanding With Our Nearest Neighbors.

STRESSES THEIR IDEALS

Tells New Jersey Bankers We Must Recognize the Dignity of Southern Republic.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 16.—Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico and candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, made a plea tonight for a better understanding between the people of this country and Mexico in addressing the convention dinner of the New Jersey Bankers' Association at the Hotel Chelsea.

"It would be improper for me in a non-partisan organization like this to discuss politics," said Mr. Morrow. "I dislike to talk about the London conference while its results are being considered by the proper authorities, but I would like to say something about Mexico.

"It is very important that the people of the United States and Mexico should understand each other better, and the time is coming when we are going to be closer to Mexico, for each of us is growing. It is about time the people realized that Mexico is our nearest neighbor.

"When people go into another country to live as many of our best people go into Mexico, they have obligations to live under the laws of the country in which they live. I have tried to recognize in Mexico that my place there was no more important than the place of the English Ambassador to the United States is in Washington. We are too prone to judge ourselves by our ideals and other people by their acts. All of us are entitled to be judged by both. We must recognize the dignity of our neighbors, and before we act we must place ourselves in the place of our neighbor and judge our acts through his eyes."

The inauguration of a service charge in all New Jersey banks was urged at the convention session today by William N. Nash of Haddon Heights. Asserting that the banks are carrying too many accounts without profit, Mr. Nash argued that while the banks are making good returns that does not justify their carrying a large proportion of their business at a loss, and he predicted that account analysis and special service charges soon would be as much a part of the banking business as the ledger.

John J. Driscoll of Philadelphia criticized the tendency toward unsound banking competition and said there was an utter lack of standardization as to earning power, basis of operation, and policies in the banking business.

Craig B. Hazelwood, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, asserted that the future holds little hope for banks that disregard good organization and cost control.

TEN CANTATAS GIVEN AT BACH FESTIVAL

MORAVIANS OPEN CONCERT

Trombone Chorus From Lofty Tower at Lehigh Gives Five Chorales in Afternoon and Evening.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 16.—Bethlehem today was once more the objective of music lovers from many States and several foreign countries. Works of Johann Sebastian Bach were to be interpreted by the Bethlehem Bach Choir under the direction of the founder and leader, Dr. Fred Wolle. The two sessions at 4 and 8 o'clock in the Packer Memorial Church at Lehigh University were thronged with notable visitors, many of whom have been coming to Bethlehem to hear the Bach Choir for years.

Ten chorales written by Bach, which he produced at various church services in Leipzig, were given, five at each session. The texts had been translated from German and written in the score in the period of rehearsals since October. More than 3,000 pages of music were involved.

The Bach festival has a setting worthy of its high character and great fame. The spacious hillside campus, with ornamental trees and flowers in full bloom and foliage out, prepared a receptive mood in the audience on the way to the concert.

Singers Grouped in Chancel.

The choir was grouped in the chancel. There were nearly 250 singers. Seventy-seven first and second sopranos were seated in the left section and sixty-nine altos in the extreme right section. T. Edgar Shields, organist of the choir, presided at the university pipe organ. About forty players from the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra were seated in front of the singers.

As has been customary at all Bach festivals, the Moravian Trombone Choir of sixteen players opened the festival from the lofty ivy-clad tower of the Memorial Church by playing "Author of the Whole Creation," "O World, I E'en Must Leave Thee," "O Sacred Head, Now Wounded." "O Praise Jehovah" and "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The choir's first offerings of the festival included the cantatas, "There Uprose a Great Strife," "Lord, My Weeping Tears and Sighing," "O Lord, Relent, I Pray Thee," "Come, Thine Hour, Kind Death, Is Striking" and "O Praise Jehovah, Who Reigneth on Earth and in Heaven." The latter is a composition of great beauty and strength.

James C. Brown's Memory Honored.

At the evening session the Moravian Trombone Choir introduced the program with five quaint chorales. Five more chorals were sung by the choir and soloists as follows: "Then Our Mouth Filled With Laughter," "Lord Christ of Old to Jordan Came," "Who Believeth and Obeyeth Will Be Blest Forever," "Ah How Weary, Ah How Fleeting" and "Praise Thou the Lord, Oh My Spirit."

Dr. Wolle, who played much of the score on the piano, had so thoroughly trained his choir that it was left most of the time to its own devices without faltering in tempo or rhythm. The Philadelphia Symphony players gave splendid support to the chorus and solists.

The soloists were Mrs. Ernestine Hohl-Eberhard, soprano, of Allentown, who is the soloist in the church where Dr. Walle is the organist; Miss Mabel Beddoe, alto, of New York; Arthur Kraft, tenor, of New York, and Charles Trowbridge Tittman, basso, of Washington.

Before the rendition of the last cantata at the evening session the chorale, "World, Farewell," was sung in memory of James Crosby Brown, one of the Pennsylvania guarantors and member of the executive committee of the board of managers.

The twenty-second rendition of Bach's great Mass in B Minor will be sung tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 and 4 o'clock.

CAPACITY HOUSE HAILS TOSCANINI IN MUNICH

New York Musicians Applauded in Program of Haydn, Strauss and Mendelssohn.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUNICH, May 16.—The New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra was most cordially greeted by a capacity audience at the Tonhalle tonight on the occasion of its first concert in Germany. Toscanini and his group of artists were heartily welcomed on their arrival here from Florence earlier in the day. The appearance of the New York organization had been awaited with an eager curiosity worthy of Munich's musical tradition.

Arturo Toscanini, whose conduting from memory is considered an unusual feat, scored a conspicuous success with the orchestra's presentation of Haydn's "Clock Symphony" and "Death and Transfiguration," by Strauss. Both compositions evoked a storm of applause, to which Toscanini responded with selections from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Critical estimates of the calibre of the orchestra designate it as outranking any similar European body of artists, a verdict which was amply reflected in the interminable recalls which came at the conclusion of the program.

Among the audience were the heads of the municipality, the Premier, Dr. Heinrich Held; the general intendant of the Bavarian State theatres and members of the former Bavarian royal family. A laurel wreath bearing the official colors of the city of Munich was hanging from the conductor's desk.

The orchestra will leave for Vienna tomorrow. It will appear in Leipzig on Sunday, in Dresden on Monday and in Berlin on Wednesday and Thursday.

Little Theatre Opera's Plan.

The Little Theatre Opera Company of 113 West Fifty-seventh Street announced that its repertory of next season's operas will include "The Beggar Student," "Orpheus in the Underworld," "Marriage of Figaro," "Pheobus and Pan," "Don Pasquale," "Bartered Bride" and "Waltz Dream." The performances, which will be in English, will be given at the Heckscher Theatre, Fifth Avenue at 104th Street.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

"A Double-Dyed Deceiver."

THE TEXAN, with Gary Cooper, Fay Wray, Emma Dunn, Oscar Apfel, James Marcus, Donald Reed, Soledad Jimenez, Veda Buckland, Cesar Vanoni, Edwin J. Brady, Enrique Acosta and Romualdo Tirado, an adaptation of O. Henry's story, "The Double-Dyed Deceiver," directed by John Cromwell; Rudy Vallee and his band in the stage contribution "The Blue Mill;" Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, organists. At the Paramount Theatre.

An expertly touched-up audible pictorial adaptation of O. Henry's story, "The Double-Dyed Deceiver," is on view at the Paramount. It is entitled "The Texan," and Gary Cooper, who did capital acting in the film version of "The Virginian," again scores as the errant cowpuncher, who, after putting bullets through dusky culprits, makes the error of shooting a blue-blooded young man of his own age from Buenas Tierras and then commits the more heinous offense of stealing a long-legged horse with an arched neck.

Most of the credit for the filming of this piece of irony goes to John Cromwell, the director, and Oliver H. P. Garrett, who was responsible for the script.

The Llano Kid (Mr. Cooper) steps aboard a schooner for South America with one Thacker, who in the original O. Henry story was an American consul in Buenas Tierras, but who, in the film, is a scoundrel characterizing himself as the agent of Señora Ibarra. He is searching for the Señora's son Enrique, who ran away from home fifteen years before, and on encountering the Llano Kid on a train it occurs to Thacker that the young man could possibly pose as Enrique. The Kid can talk a little Spanish. He is dark and cultivates "sideburns."

The sequences throughout this production are both suspenseful and amusing. Before sailing for the South the Kid stands in imminent danger of being apprehended by a highly religious blacksmith, whose avocation is being a Sheriff. But the Kid, having a great deal of love for his own life, shows Sheriff Brown a close-up of the big bore of his pistol and as the youngster leaps into the saddle he hears the blacksmith-Sheriff saying, "God will deliver you into my hands."

Down in the South American port, after having had his hand tattooed with a design similar to that known to have been on the hand of Enrique, the Kid not only finds favor in the eyes of the señora, who firmly believes he is her son, but also with her niece, the charming Consuelo, impersonated by Fay Wray.

It had been agreed upon between Thacker and the Kid that the latter is to rob the señora of her treasure and money received for selling cattle and that they are to share in the loot. The Kid, however, is softened by the affection of the woman and the girl and he refuses to carry out the project, with the consequence that Thacker threatens to revenge himself on the imposter.

Soon Sheriff Brown appears in Buenas Tierras to take back with him the Llano Kid, who has been "delivered into his hands." Brown, however, has a heart and eventually the Kid's courage counts in his favor, with the result that even after the final fade-out he continues to pose as Enrique.

The O. Henry twist, which is not told in this review, has been preserved, but here and there one observes characteristic pictorial exaggerations. The love interest is adroitly introduced without hindering the dénouement.

The lean, lanky Mr. Cooper elicits a great deal of sympathy as the double-dyed deceiver, so much so that one is quite relieved at the final decision of Sheriff Brown. Oscar Apfel serves the part of Thacker well. James Marcus is splendid as Sheriff Brown. Miss Wray has never been more captivating than she is as Consuelo, a rôle which is agreeably unobtrusive. Emma Dunn is also pleasing as Señora Ibarra.

The Cisco Kid Returns.

THE ARIZONA KID, with Warner Baxter, Mona Maris, Carol Lombard, Mrs. Jiminez, Theodore von Eltz, Arthur Stone, Walter P. Lewis, Jack Herrick, Wilfred Lucas, Hank Mann, De Sacia Mooers, Larry McGrath and Jim Gibson, directed by Alfred Santell; overture, "Gems From Franz Liszt's Works"; The Roxyettes, "The Carillon," "The Garden of Dreams," with Patricia Bowman; Movietone news subjects. At the Roxy Theatre.

Another O. Henry story serves as the inspiration for "The Arizona Kid," the current talking film at the Roxy and at the Fox Theatre, in Brooklyn. It dilates upon the further adventures of that intrepid rascal, the Cisco Kid, who was first seen in the screen ofering, "In Old Arizona," an adaptation of "A Caballero's Way." Warner Baxter again impersonates this delightful desperado, who wears his heart on his sleeve, and this actor does so with the same relish and good-nature he gave to his previous impersonation.

The present production is not as compact as its predecessor, for the fine hand of the author is lacking, but it has several neat incidents and, like "In Old Arizona," it ends up in a blaze of firearms with the Cisco Kid still in the land of the living.

It all happens about fifty years ago, when creaking stage coaches rumbled over some Western roads, when women wore long skirts and long hair and when long bars with long and short alcoholic drinks greeted thirsty and exhausted men at the end of the long trail.

There is a killing by Chico, as the Cisco Kid is known in Rockville, Ariz., a minute or so after the picture begins. A bandit holds up the stage coach and thunders to everybody to get out, but when he is about to search his victims a pistol pops from within the vehicle and the desperado falls dead. The driver at once suggests that the slain man is the Cisco Kind, but Chico, with a broad smile, declares the bandit was but an amateur, because he did not take the trouble to count the passengers. Chico says that he understands that the Cisco Kid, or the Arizona Kid, as he is sometimes called, is not unlike himself. Somebody who claims to have seen the Kid, asserts that although Chico bears a resemblance to the Kid, the desperado is bigger.

Sheriff Andrews of Rockville, is a wily person, who suspects that Chico knows a great deal about the Kid, on whose head there is an offer of $5,000.

One of the excellent episodes in this film is where Chico perceives Nick Hoyt, whom he takes to be the brother of the flaxen-haired Virginia, stick an ace in his pocket while engaged in a round of poker. The Kid insists on taking a hand and playing with the ignoble Nick's chips. Eventually he succeeds in losing the pile. On leaving, the Kid tells Nick how sorry he is and shakes the cheat's hand. As the Kid's figure passes out of the door of the bar Nick is beheld looking at the card, the ace of spades, Chico has left in his hand.

The Kid is loved by the fiery Lorita, but when Virginia and Nick come to Rockville, the smiling desperado becomes enamored of the blonde, who is really Nick's wife. She looks sweet and lovely, but soon reveals that blue-eyed blondes can be as hot-tempered and as treacherous as any Mexican señorita.

It is Nick who is the undoing of the Kid. This sly Easterner shadows the Kid on his way to his gold mine, from wihch Chico obtains his nuggets to pay for his drinks and groceries. But Lorita helps to save the Kid, who, however, is unwilling to make a dash for liberty until he has settled matters with Nick. So there is a chance for still further adventure of the ingratiating Cisco Kid.

Mr. Baxter delivers a markedly competent portrayal, speaking, as he did "In Old Arizona," in broken English. Carol Lombard is a beautiful girl, but it is doubtful whether she is suited to the rôle of Virginia. Mona Maris is splendid as Lorita. Theodore von Eltz is highly satisfactory as Nick, and Walter P. Lewis does well as the Sheriff.

Mr. Rothafel's stage offerings are delightful. There is the "Garden of Dreams," with Patricia Bowman; effective work by the Roxyettes and a most interesting contribution called "The Carillon."

'SUNNY SKIES' A BURLESQUE

SUNNY SKIES, with Benny Rubin, Marceline Day, Rex Lease, Marjorie Kane, Harry Lee, Greta Granstedt, Wesley Barry and others; directed by Norman Taurog from a story by A. P. Younger; program of sound short films and news reel. At the Colony.

If all the earlier carbon copies of popular college stories have not succeeded in making a film public tired of rah-rah films, then "Sunny Skies," single-handed, may turn the trick. This film at the Colony is so lacking in the elements of even a burlesque of college life that the sum of its efforts is little more than a blank.

The old, old story, almost a novelty after it had seemed that all films along such trite lines had been done away with, concerns a football hero who drinks while in training, keeps the star out of the game by breaking his arm and subsequently makes a "come back" for the love of the girl. He runs the length of the field with the pigskin to win the game for dear old Stantech.

Benny Rubin enters into matters with alleged humor. He also plays the rôle of "true chum" to the despised hero. This part, incidentally, is not very palatable, being a mixture of pathos and tawdry comedy.

There are several players in this film who enact supposedly collegiate rôles. They include Marceline Day, Marjorie Kane and Wesley Ruggles, who try hard.

'RUNAWAY BRIDE' IN FILM.

RUNAWAY BRIDE, with Mary Astor, Lloyd Hughes, David Newell, Natalie Moorhead, Maurice Black, Paul Hurst, Edgar Norton, Francis McDonald, Harry Tenbrook, directed by Donald Crisp from the play by Lolita Ann Westman and H. H. Van Loan; sound shorts and news reel. At the Globe.

"Runaway Bride," at the Globe, possesses all the elements of melodrama. These range from murder, kidnapping and blackmail to gun fights, fake hospitals, in which crooks have their headquarters, and auto chases. Much metal flies between gangster and policeman but to no avail, for the girl who has run away from her fiancé on the eve of her wedding to seek refuge with a rich young bachelor is rescued by him. And she discovers happiness forever after in his arms.

That is the substance of a poorly directed film which runs its breathless course acrsos the screen, jumping illogically from sequence to sequence for the sake of suspense and employing old tricks of the serial thrillers.

Mary Astor does moderately well as the girl who breaks her engagement because she discovers her fiancé is a cad. Lloyd Hughes, as the rich man, is acceptable, as is Natalie Moorhead as a girl conspirator.

HOLD FORUM ON MOVIES.

Six Debaters at Community Church Attack or Defend Films.

Six persons from various walks of life discussed the culture of the "Talkies, the Theatre and Music" last night at the Community Church. One of them, John Haynes Holmes, the chairman, remained neutral, and the rest objected to or defended the movies. It seemed to be a draw.

Of the speakers, William L. Mayer, vice president of the American Federation of Musicians, found that the mechanization of music "is a menace"; Herman Shumlin, a theatrical producer, explained that the movies are not designed for the cultured; Herbert J. Biberman of the Theatre Guild objected that the talkies lack art for art's sake; Terry Ramsaye of Pathé Films said that they are doing pretty well and should be given a chance, and Arthur H. DeBra of Will Hays's office also spoke.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS WIN STAGE TOURNEY

Morningside Group, With "The New Freedom," Win Honors for Full-Length Play.

MARJORIE PARADIS AUTHOR

"The New Freedom," written by Marjorie Bartholomew Paradis and presented by the Morningside Players of Columbia University, emerged victorious in the first full-length play tournament to be held in this city, the announcement being made last evening.

The competition had been in progress for the last five nights at the Waldorf Theatre, "The New Freedom" having been acted on Wednesday night. Because it had the prize-winning play the Morningside group will receive the Samuel French award of $1,000 and the Theatre Arts Monthly Cup, and will give two additional performances today.

Special honorable mention for its acting was accorded the cast of "The Twelfth Disciple," performed last night by the Little Theatre of St. Louis.

Mrs. Paradis, author of "The New Freedom," is the mother of two children and resides at 758 Westminster Road, Brooklyn. Her play specifically deals with the crisis in the life of a young married couple making their home in the suburbs. According to Mrs. Paradis, it took her more than a year to write the play, which was first presented by the Morningside Players last month in Earl Hall of the university.

"The New Freedom" is not Mrs. Paradis's first play. Her first, entitled "Just as Good," was also done by the Morningside Players about two years ago. Mrs. Paradis, besides writing plays, has found time to write two novels, "The Caddis" and "A Dinner of Herbs," both published by the Century Company.

For the last three years the novelist-playwrite has been pursuing extension courses at Columbia, principally in playwriting.

The Morningside Players are a group organized in 1915 by Hatcher Hughes and Elmer Rice, who have already received the Pulitzer prize for plays. Its personnel is recruited from students attending the university. During the war the players ceased acting, but resumed in 1927.

The players who are appearing in "The New Freedom" are John Cocks, May Wolmark, Eileen Meyerson, Florence Pegram, Elizabeth van Nardroff, Clayton J. Heermance Jr., J. F. Foster, Ruth Yates, J. C. Lotterhand, Margaret Smith, Marjorie Patterson, Gerry Raph and Joseph Davidson.

The play was staged by Milton Smith and Miss Van Nardroff, and the settings were designed by Mr. Smith. Members of English e6e and Education 162K aided in the building and painting of the scenery.

The judges for the tournament were Lee Foster Hartman, representing Harper's Magazine; Carl Carmer, the Theatre Arts Monthly Magazine; J. Kenyon Nicholson for Samuel French & Co., Edith H. Walton, The Forum, and William G. King, The Evening Post.

A HIGHLY ORIGINAL PLAY.

"The Twelfth Disciple," by Mrs. Sachs, Artistically Done.

THE TWELFTH DISCIPLE, a play in three acts, by Mary Parmly Koues Sachs. Staged by Frederick Kitson Cowley; settings by F. Ray Leimkuehler; costumes designed by Mrs. Ernest Sachs and Mrs. George C. Smith; presented by the Little Theatre of St. Louis, as the fifth and last bill in the first annual National Long Play Tournament. At the Waldorf Theatre.

Receiving the unanimous vote of the judges for honorable mention because of the excellence of the acting, "The Twelfth Disciple," by Mary Parmly Koues Sachs, performed by The Little Theatre of St. Louis last night, closed the actual competition in the Little Theatre tournament for full-length pieces at the Waldorf Theatre. This afternoon and evening the stage will be given over to performances of the prize-winning play, "The New Freedom."

It is a novel conception, and a daring one, that lies behind the drama "The Twelfth Disciple." Mrs. Sachs, in common with more than one other modern writer, has sought to offer a milder and more generous interpretation of the rôle of Judas than appears on the surface of the Gospel narratives, and usually accepted, from Dante down. Mrs. Sachs's theme is that Judas, because of his high idealism, is so carried away by the desire to exalt his Galilean Master that he falls a prey to the deceits of Caiaphas, and becomes unwittingly the high priest's tool. The interpretation is plausible, and, being plausible, is susceptible of considerable dramatization. Mrs. Sachs did well to adopt blank verse rather than prose as her medium, as the requisite dignity for such a piece is more readily maintained in verse. There were lapses, especially in the lines for minor characters, but in the lines given Judas, and to the Rabbi Hillel, the author showed herself to be a poet of considerable power.

The fact that the play received honorable mention certifies the acting of the St. Louis group as a whole. Especially to be commended were Gordon Sommers, playing the part of Hillel, and Charles Dillon as Judas Iscariot. Marion Epstein as Rachel, a young woman supposedly in love with Judas, failed to exhibit much warmth; but it must be admitted that the playwright left her very little scope for passion. Perhaps, when the romantic possibilities of the interpretation actually confronted the author, Mrs. Sachs drew back. But it was a really beautiful piece done by the St. Louis people—one highly original.

Yale to Have Galsworthy Premiere.

The Yale University Dramatic Association will give the first American performances of Galsworthy's "The Roof" in the Yale Theatre on June 13, 14 and 17. The play will have a professional production next season by Charles Hopkins, and the Yale production is being given by permission of Mr. Hopkins.

ADLER FAMILY UNITED IN 'THE WILD MAN'

The Late Jacob Adler's Favorite Play Is Brilliantly Presented at Second Avenue Theatre.

THE WILD MAN, a melodrama in four acts, by Jacob Gordin. Staged by Joseph Schoengold; revived in Yiddish by Edwin A. Relkin and Sigmund Weintraub. At the Second Avenue Theatre for five performances.

Shifre	Julia Adler
Lemach	Luther Adler
Shimon	Charles Adler
Alexander	Adolph Adler
Lisa	Stella Adler
Vladimir Warabeitchik	Irving Adler
Zelde	Frances Adler
Shmiel Laiblich	Joseph Schoengold

The Adler family held a reunion last night. As befits a famous theatrical family, this reunion took place in public at the Second Avenue Theatre in the shape of a performance of a favorite vehicle of the late Jacob Adler, "The Wild Man," by Jacob Gordin, and a brilliant performance it was. The cast was all-Adler, Joseph Shoengold, who directed the play and was cast in the leading rôle, being the husband of one of the Adler daughters. Their ensemble work on a stage was harmonious to the last degree, even in the most quarrelsome moments of this generally quarrelsome drama.

"The Wild Man" concerns an elderly gentleman who marries a young wife, thereby alienating all his children, and who, in addition, is deceived and robbed by his new spouse. The action proceeds on very broad lines, with a great deal of hokum, but the admixture of accurate realistic detail is so adroitly handled and the piece so cunningly devised in a purely theatrical sense that it makes solidly effective entertainment even today, thirty years after it was written for an audience who no doubt regarded it as truth itself.

It was played by the Adlers last night, according to a program note, strictly in accord with the traditional performance of Jacob Adler. Every effort was made "to recapture the elemental vigorous mood and sweep of this genre play." They played it as if they believed every word of it, until it was difficult for the spectator to keep his critical faculty alert and he accepted it all as faithfully as the actors themselves. Theoretically, the director might have given a "modern" version, with a burlesque touch—theoretically, because the contemporary popular Yiddish theatre has not progressed far enough to be superior to its older generation of playwrights—but in any case it was wiser to have followed the tradition, which made a rollicking, if sometimes noisy, evening's entertainment.

First honors belong to the troupe as a whole, which means perhaps Mr. Shoengold for his excellent direction. Luther Adler as the idiot son exacted the full measure of pathos from his rôle without becoming sloppy as he so easily might have done. Julia Adler made an amusing crude and outspoken servant. Frances Adler was a fetching young wife who showed to advantage all that the old dotard spent on her. Charles, Adolph, Stella and Irving were four more indispensables.

Mrs. Sarah Adler, the mother of them all, had no place in the cast of "The Wild Man." She appeared after its conclusion in a scene from Gordin's "The Homeless."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Sketch Book," at Chanin's Forty-sixth Street Theatre, and "Mendel, Inc.," at the Cohan, are additions to tonight's list of closings. Previously announced are "Journey's End," "Berkeley Square," "A Month in the Country," "The International Revue," "Subway Express," and "The Plutocrat."

Katharine Cornell, who will end her run in "Dishonored Lady" next week, will spend the Summer in California. She will reopen the play on the Coast about Aug. 1, and will tour eastward.

A benefit performance in aid of the Hebrew Convalescent Home will take place at the Selwyn Theatre tomorrow night.

Contrary to announcements, the bill at the Civic Repertory Theatre will be "Peter Pan" this afternoon and "The Inheritors" tonight.

A play tentatively called "A Jumping Jack," by Reath B. Lackey, is scheduled to open at the Little Theatre within three or four weeks.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Move Irregularly, Total Business Still Smaller—Money and Sterling Unchanged.

On the Stock Exchange, business decreased yesterday to 2,086,800 shares; the smallest full-day transactions since the first week of January. Only six five-hour days in that month's dull period fell below yesterday's total. As was to be expected under such circumstances, prices changed little. Advances and declines, mostly of small dimensions, fairly balanced one another numerically, and the day's bond market was as dull as the market for stocks.

There was no change in the money market. Rates both for call and time loans are still higher than those reached in recent years of trade reaction such as 1924, but at London the open discount market went a fraction lower. That happened along with the very large withdrawal of $8,700,000 gold from the Bank of England for shipment to Paris; showing that for the present this outflow from London is increasing rather than relaxing.

The government's report on the country's foreign trade in April again reflects both the decline of prices and the shrinkage in quantity of exports and imports, but the figures seem on their face to indicate that decrease in quantity was the more potent influence. The statement shows that exports decreased in April 21½ per cent in total value as compared with the same month in 1929, and imports 25 per cent; the decrease in the two combined being 23 per cent. But average prices, by the latest monthly estimates, were only a little more than 7 per cent lower than a year ago. The remarkable fact about the resultant shrinkage in the value of our foreign trade, as in that of Great Britain, is the unusual uniformity of decrease in exports and imports.

Business reactions in America has usually been marked by reduction of the import trade wholly out of proportion to the decline of exports, if indeed the outward trade was not actually increased through the lowering of prices and the unfavorable home market. In April of 1924, for instance, when the home business situation was similar to that which now exists, imports were reduced $40,000,000 from the year before but exports were larger by $21,000,000. The present uniformity of reduction results apparently from the fact that trade reaction and suddenly reduced demand for goods have on this occasion been world-wide. Equally noteworthy, in yesterday's trade return, is the import of $65,535,000 gold in April, offset by hardly any export. This is the largest importation of any month since 1921, and was exceeded only in four months of that year and one in the Autumn of 1920.

No evidence of a change for better or worse in the general business situation is indicated by the week-end mercantile reviews. Dun reports the course of trade "highly uneven and without really decisive trend"; Bradstreet cites as the distinctive features of its own reports "a further slight easing-off in factory operations" and "a slight slowing-up in retail buying." Both draw some encouragement from the fractional recovery in the price of copper, but Dun finds that the market for thirty-three separate commodities, out of forty-eight whose price changed at all last week, went lower.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES MAKE MANY PRICE CUTS

Sears, Roebuck Shows 10% Average Drop—2,000 Items Lower in Montgomery Ward List.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Reflecting the steady decline in commodity prices, keen competition among manufacturers for large-scale orders and a desire to keep inventories in a liquid condition, the midsummer bargain catalogue of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. reveal many price reductions on tires and other articles.

The Sears, Roebuck bargain list, it was announced, makes an average reduction in excess of 10 per cent, and is based on the lowest commodity prices in 1930. Approximately 10,000,000 copies of the catalogue are being mailed out. The Montgomery Ward catalogue shows price reductions on about 2,000 items and several special offerings. The number of items in the special list is about 10 per cent of the company's complete line.

Cuts in automobile tire prices announced by the two companies range from 4.1 to 6 per cent. Freight is discontinued on bargain items requiring this method of shipment, but, it was stated, in both lists freight prepayment items listed in the regular Spring and Summer catalogue will be continued until the Fall issues are placed in the mails.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday ran only slightly above 2,000,000 shares, the turnover being the smallest since Jan. 20. The movement of prices was correspondingly sluggish. So far as the market leaders were concerned, the trend was upward, but there were few wide advances. The general list seemed sadly in need of motive power. Brokers complained that there was not enough business to cover overhead. Some were inclined to complain, in the circumstances, that the advice to customers to "travel light" may have been taken too seriously. The speculative element appeared unwilling to take chances on either side of the market. The market was one of the narrowest of the year, with dealings confined to 691 issues.

One Brief Interlude.

The slow, lazy drift of the market was interrupted for a short time early yesterday afternoon when Celotex, whose recent market action is under investigation, began another series of gyrations. Announcement on the financial news tickers that the petition of a Celotex stockholder for a receivership for the company had been dismissed startled the shorts and caused a hurried covering movement that quickly sent the stock up more than 7 points. As the news tickers completed their statement it was found that the question of a permanent receivership was still pending and that it was the petition for a temporary receivership which had been dismissed. The stock had another sinking spell, only to rally again soon thereafter. The Stock Exchange has made no announcement as to the results of its recent investigation into Celotex's wild fluctuations.

The D. & H. Dismissal.

The action of the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday in dismissing the Delaware & Hudson Company's petition for a merger with sixteen other lines to form a seaboard belt system did not put the commission on record against the proposal. The D. & H.'s scheme would dismember both the tentative and final consolidation plans of the commission and, of course, the merger plans of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio. However, the dismissal of the petition was in conformity with the policy formulated by the commission and was not ordered on the merits of the plan. The D. & H. had agreed previously to the dismissal of its proposal without prejudice to its later resubmission.

The International Bank Shares.

Reports from London yesterday indicating that the British portion of the stock in the Bank for International Settlements would be placed privately caused considerable comment in banking circles here. It had been assumed generally that the block of stock in the bank allotted to Great Britain would be offered publicly by the Bank of England, just as the central banks on the Continent are expected to distribute their respective portions. Because of the unofficial nature of America's participation in the affairs of the bank, the stock that will come here will be taken up by private subscription, with 25 per cent to be paid at the outset.

Foreign Trade Slumps.

The announcement yesterday that commodity exports from this country during April amounted to $334,000,000, the smallest total for any month in the last five years, came as a surprise to Wall Street. It had been expected, however, that a decrease would be shown, owing to the low prices for commodities which are prevailing. The fact that such a substantial decline occurred was taken as evidence of the severity of the recession in world business activity. During April, 1929, exports amounted to $425,264,000, while imports were $410,666,000, leaving a favorable trade balance of $14,598,000. The one bright spot in the report was the fact that the balance was larger last month, amounting to $26,000,000, since imports declined to $308,000,000.

Foresee Big Merger Movement.

The comparative inactivity of public utility stocks yesterday came as a surprise to those who usually expect selling "on the news." If there was such selling, it apparently was easily absorbed. In utility circles, the United-Columbia deal is viewed as a beginning of merger developments which are to reach important proportions, both within and outside of the so-called United group.

Railroads Aid Prosperity.

It was pointed out with some satisfaction in railroad circles yesterday that the $223,772,000 capital expenditures made by the railroads in the first three months of 1930 exceeded by $11,772,000 the estimate made last November at the request of President Hoover. The disbursements in the first quarter were also up $96,653,000 from the same period in 1929 and $95,344,000 from the same period in 1928. The figures were cited with emphasis to show that as a whole the railroads had more than lived up to the assurances that they gave to the President at the time when it appeared that a period of inactivity was in progress.

China Halts Gold Shipments.

About the only comment forthcoming in banking circles yesterday following the receipt of advices that the Chinese Nationalist Government had placed an embargo on the export of gold, and by the same token a ban on the importation of silver coin, was that it was a wonder that it had not been done sooner. About $7,000,000 in gold has come from China to San Francisco this year, although the figure is small compared with the shipments to the United States from Japan since the last country lifted its gold embargo in January, these exports being already in excess of $100,000,000. So far as the embargo on imports of silver coin is concerned, it is evidently to shut off shipments from Indo-China, which recently adopted the gold standard.

MONEY.

Friday, May 16, 1930.

Money market failed to stir from the dull state in which it has rested for the past week, rates remaining unchanged for a volume of business that continues small. On the Stock Exchange 3 per cent was the prevailing charge, but 2½ was the street rate. Funds were in good supply but demand was light. Time money, a little July money loaned at 3¼, August at 3½, and September at 3½@3¾. Later dates traded 3¾@4 per cent. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

LAMONT, BACK, SEES GERMAN OFFER SOON

Subscriptions for Stock of International Bank Likely to Be Taken Privately.

Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., who returned yesterday to his desk after an absence of seven weeks in Paris, London and Italy, with a brief stay in Brussels, to confer on the plans for the offering of the $300,000,000 German annuities loan in the principal money centres of the world, refrained from commenting at this time on the price at which the issue will be offered. He indicated, however, that public offering of the American portion by a nation-wide syndicate headed by Morgan & Co. might be expected between May 28 and June 6.

Mr. Lamont said that, as many details in connection with the offering are to be ironed out, a statement concerning definite plans could not be made until a later date. It is understood that Mr. Lamont will be asked to deliver soon an address outlining the salient features of the loan before a gathering of bankers.

The latest advices received from abroad indicated that the American part of the $300,000,000 loan, amounting to $80,000,000, would carry a 5½ per cent coupon and will be priced at about 90 to 92. The German Government 7s of 1949, issued under the Dawes plan, closed on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 108⅜, indicating a yield of about 6.20 per cent. For the new loan to yield 6.20 per cent, it would have to be priced at 90.

Mr. Lamont pointed out yesterday, however, that as the German 7s were callable at 105 for the account of the sinking fund, the upward movement of the price of the issue was necessarily retarded, so that an exact comparison with the price of the new loan could not be made.

He indicated that a statement might be made Monday concerning the subscription for the stock for the Bank for International Settlements. The American portion will be placed privately, and the allotments to other countries will be marketed through their respective central banks. Reports from London yesterday, however, indicated that the British portion might also be placed privately, although it has been understood that public offering of the shares would be made by the Bank of England.

BRITISH BALK AT LOAN EXCEEDING REPARATION

Bank of England Governor Also Refuses to Release Official to World Bank.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—Advices from Basle tonight indicate that the council of bankers and treasury agents has made small progress in solving the difficulties facing the directors of the Bank for International Settlements.

The British representatives, it is understood, maintained the position today that the bank's activities for the present must be confined to handling reparations. They flatly refused to consider any transaction by which a greater amount of Young plan bonds should be floated on the London market than Britain receives in reparations annuities. As there was opposition to allowing them a greater share than the $26,000,000 out of the $300,000,000 of the first bond issue, which was Britain's allotment under The Hague protocol, the British resisted all attempts to induce them to float a loan of $40,000,000 or $60,000,000.

Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, served notice today that Mr. Siepman, the Bank of England man whom the world bank board selected as liaison officer between it and the central banks, could not accept this post. Mr. Norman said Mr. Siepman was fully occupied by his duties in England.

Germany, too, remained obdurate and won her point with regard to the guarantees demanded for the extra $100,000,000 in bonds which have been added to the first slice of bonds for the benefit of the Reich railways and postal services. The Germans contend that as this portion of bonds for German usage, the Reich's word was sufficient guaranty. The bankers finally accepted this view and abandoned efforts to obtain more tangible security.

The $2,000,000 bonds, which go for mobilization payments to the Allies, however, it is recognized, will have the security of the Reich Railways covering all unconditional reparations payments.

The conversations will be continued tomorrow, but serious difficulties still pertain that may impede the steps to put the Young plan into operation.

REICH CABINET AGREES TO FARM RELIEF PLAN

Program Calls for $124,800,000 in Five Years—Provides for Bank to Ease Loans.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 16.—After several weeks of deliberation, the Cabinet, following a joint meeting with the Prussian State Ministry and representatives of the Prussian State Bank, the Reichsbank and the credit institution, has agreed to an agrarian relief program for which 520,000,000 marks (about $124,800,000) will be raised within five years.

The new bill, which will be submitted to the Reichstag as soon as possible, provides for the establishing of a special bank for converting short-term into long-term loans. In this the Prussian State will play an important part and Prussia will also participate in investigating the conditions of agrarian estates. A Prussian Minister will probably be entrusted with the execution of the entire program.

A sum of 116,000,000 marks has already been secured for relief in the current year.

The Federation of German Industries has issued a treatise containing detailed propositions for agrarian relief. First, it suggests reductions in the cost of production and an improvement in the quality of the German products, which are described as being greatly inferior to foreign products. The former plan calls for less wasteful working methods and complete rationalization.

To improve quality, the treatise says, a bill should be passed by the Reichstag prescribing the standardization of all agrarian products. It adds the law should also provide for the compulsory classificaiton of all products by both producers and dealers.

Premiums are proposed for those who turn rye areas into wheat areas and vegetable auction halls are advocated, at which prices should be fixed. The treatise says a public subvention should be granted for dairy cooperatives and adds the principal aim must be to produce what is demanded by the public, instead of what the agrarians' forefathers produced.

INVESTMENT TRUST.

Granger Trading Corporation.

For the three months ended on April 30, the Granger Trading Corporation reports net profits of $42,358, before taxes and the contingent management fee, but after other charges. This is equivalent to $1.66 a share. Securities held were valued at closing prices of the market on April 30. The earned surplus of the corporation was $110,000 on April 30 after writing off organization expenses and writing furniture and fixtures down to $1, the report states.

CRUDE OIL PRICE CUT 25C BY SOUTH PENN

Third Reduction in 1930 Laid to Excessive Production in the Bradford Fields.

DEMAND GREATER YEAR AGO

New Competition From Oklahoma and Hydrogenation Process Seen as Factor.

Excessive production of crude oil in the Bradford fields of Pennsylvania was accepted in New York oil circles as the reason for the reduction of 25 cents a barrel in the posted price of the South Penn Oil Company yesterday. The cut made yesterday is the third one this year, each of the same amount, and reports from Oil City, Pa., said operators in the Bradford district had already taken action toward arranging for a curtailment in production. Production in the Pennsylvania fields, according to the latest statistics, is at the rate of about 140,000 barrels daily, compared with 113,000 barrels a year ago.

It was also pointed out that the demand for Pennsylvania crude oil was not as great as it was a year ago, when it was regarded as the best crude for the manufacture of high-grade lubricating oils. Crude oil from the Oklahoma City field is said to have a valuable lubricating content and in some respects rivals the Pennsylvania product. With the prevailing posted price in the Oklahoma field $1.10 a barrel less than that ruling in Pennsylvania, it is said the demand for the Oklahoma crude would increase at the expense of the Pennsylvania product.

Hydrogenation Process a Factor.

Another factor which enters into the case, according to oil men, is the possibility of manufacture of high-grade lubricating oils from comparatively poor crude by use of the hydrogenation process which has been developed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in the past three years and which has just been thrown open to the use of any oil company. It was said yesterday that the process had been tested on South American crude with the result that lubricants superior to that obtained with ordinary processes from the Pennsylvania crude had been produced. Whether the cost of the hydrogenation process for making the high-grade lubricants is low enough to make it a competitor of the Pennsylvania crude could not be learned, but it is regarded as significant that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey already has three commercial hydrogenation plants under construction, and that the Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., has recently taken out a license for the use of the same process in England.

The South Penn Oil Company has sought to discourage the heavy production in the Bradford district. It announced the first cut in price on Feb. 17 and the second on May 1. Neither of these cuts, it was reported, had much effect on curtailing the production, but after the third one, announced yesterday, it was reported that twenty-seven members of a special committee of operators in the Bradford district had agreed upon a thirty-six-hour a week shut-down on all production of oil and all water pressure in the field.

New Price List.

The new price list posted yesterday by the South Penn Oil Company is $2.30 a barrel for oil run through National Transit lines on and after July 1, 1929, and $2.25 a barrel for oil run through the same lines prior to that date. Oil run through the Buckeye Pipe Line was posted at $1.95 a barrel. Other grades purchased by the company remained unchanged.

No prices were posted for oils run through the New York Transit lines from the New York side of the Pennsylvania oil fields, or for oil from the Bradford field run through the National Transit lines. It was explained that there was so little oil available from these two sources that the posting of a price was regarded as unnecessary, but that the company would continue to buy the available supply, paying as high as $2.50 a barrel.

To Vote on Profit-Sharing Plan.

An amendment to the constitution of the Midcontinent Petroleum Corporation will be submitted to stockholders on June 4 to permit employes to purchase direct from the treasury stock not exceeding 150,000 shares. In the present plan for participation of employes in the ownership of stock, trustees purchase the stock in the open market and resell it to workers.

Quits Standard After 25 Years.

Peter Prunty, assistant general manager of the Standard Oil Company of New York, and for more than twenty-five years connected with it, has resigned to accept a similar position with the Warner-Quinlan Company, it was announced yesterday.

LOSS RATIO CUT TO 45% BY RISK UNDERWRITERS

300 Connecticut Licensed Fire and Marine Companies Report Best Figures Since 1900.

The loss ratio of 300 fire and marine insurance companies reporting to Connecticut reached a low point of 44.99 per cent in 1929, according to Howard P. Dunham, Insurance Commissioner of Connecticut, who said it probably was the smallest loss ratio ever shown by such companies in the present century.

The decline partly offsets the loss these companies sustained as a result of the shrinkage in value of securities held for investment in 1929. Mr. Dunham said that in 1928 there were 280 companies reporting, while in 1929 there were 300.

The aggregate underwriting gain in surplus in 1929 among the 300 companies was $87,244,952 in fire and marine companies, while in the 280 companies in 1928 it was $78,344,171. Investment profits, however, shrunk from $167,804,401 to $41,658,384.

Connecticut stock fire insurance companies showed an underwriting profit of $10,749,059 in 1929, against $8,810,746 in 1928. Their loss ratio was 45.28 per cent in 1929, against 47.97 per cent in 1928.

The 300 companies reported total gains in surplus of $93,464,748, compared with $187,872,935 by 280 companies in 1928. Dividends declared amounted to $122,985,652, contrasted with $110,474,565. The net amount of insurance at risk in the fire and marine companies was $224,867,036,319 on Dec. 31, 1929.

GETS GALENA OIL STOCK.

American Republics Corporation In Trade With Rockefeller Foundation.

The American Republics Corporation has acquired from the Rockefeller Foundation and other interests their holdings in the Galena Oil Corporation in exchange for shares in the Interstate Natural Gas Company, in which American Republics has had a minority interest.

The directors of American Republics have extended to all stockholders of Galena Oil the privilege of exchanging their holdings for shares in Interstate Natural Gas on the same terms as were accepted by the Rockefeller Foundation, subject to acceptance by June 25. The exchange will be on the basis of one share of Interstate for four shares of Galena Oil.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Columbian Carbon Company have substantial interests in Interstate Natural Gas, which owns large natural gas rights in the Monroe field of Northern Louisiana. The Rockefeller Foundation at the end of 1928 reported holdings of 4,193 preferred and 20,000 common shares of the Galena-Signal Oil Company, which has since changed its name to Galena Oil Corporation.

BANK CLEARINGS OFF 17% FROM YEAR AGO

ONLY LOUISVILLE GAINS

Some Cities Record Heavy Losses, While Others Show Totals Just Slightly Lower.

Bank clearings this week are again considerably reduced, compared with the amounts in the corresponding time in the two preceding years. The total of $10,136,700,000 for the leading cities in the United States shows a decline of 17 per cent from that of a year ago. New York City's clearings of $6,832,000,000 are 19.2 per cent lower while the $3,304,700,000 total in the principal centres outside of New York is 12.1 per cent below last year's.

Losses appear at all cities except Louisville and continue quite large at several leading centres in the West and South, as well as on the Pacific Coast.

Clearings for this week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co. and average daily bank clearings for the year to date, with comparable figures from last year, follow.

UNEVEN PACE NOTED IN GENERAL TRADE

RETAIL BUSINESS SLOWER

Encouraging Signs Seen in an Improved Undercurrent, Despite Unsettled Prices.

Reviews of general trade report conditions during the past week to have been highly uneven and without a decisive trend. Wholesale and jobbing trade was maintained at the previous week's modest volume, but there was a slight slowing up in retail buying, chiefly in the rural districts, where frequent rains or active Spring planting were outstanding features. There was also a further slight easing off in industrial operations.

Bradstreet's weekly summary says in part:

"The addition of a number of chain-store organizations to the group whose sales were reported last week, bringing the number tabulated up to fifty-eight, has the effect of diminishing somewhat the percentages of gain in April and four months' sales over the like periods a year ago. Sales in April of the fifty-eight chains, including the leading mail-order houses, totaled $355,208,439, as against $325,339,077 in the corresponding month of 1929, an increase of 9.2 per cent.

"Much of this gain was, of course, due to the late date of Easter this year, and a better measure of Easter trade may be obtained by adding the March sales to those for April, which gives a total of $663,580,185, there being fifty chains included in the March compilation.

"Compared with March and April of last year, when the identical organizations reported aggregate sales of $639,751,625, there was an increase of 3.7 per cent, the gain of 9.2 per cent in April having more than offset the loss of 1.9 per cent in March."

Prices Continue Unsteady.

The R. G. Dun & Co. weekly review says in part:

"With the month of May more than half over, the course of business remains highly uneven. Gains and recessions in activity are interspersed in more than usual measure, the fall of commodity prices has not been definitely arrested, adjustments in production continue and there are also evidences of the operation of other forces which are natural to a period of economic change.

"The present experience has demonstrated anew the importance of the time element in a process of commercial transition, and there is a more general recognition now of the fact that a rapid recovery was scarcely to be expected following a severe and far-reaching setback. Disappointment over the results in various quarters this Spring is tempered by the knowledge that the marked tension caused by last Autumn's speculative collapse has been relieved and that the movement toward rehabilitation is under way."

Undercurrent of Betterment.

"After an era of great expansion, with maximum records attained in many fields of enterprise, the subsequent reversal was the more pronounced, and it would not be logical to anticipate a quick rebound from widespread unsettlement. Allowance for those points is essential in appraising the existing situation, with its irregularities and sharply contrasting tendencies, and the absence of a broad advance. Specific developments from week to week are rather unimpressive, with a few exceptions, and it is beneath the surface conditions that the chief foundation for encouragement rests.

"Certain of the statistical barometers, while outwardly continuing to make adverse exhibits, are beginning to reflect more plainly the undercurrent of moderate betterment. It is of less significance that losses persist in comparison with the totals for a year ago than that the margin of decrease is contracting in some instances, indicating a turn in the right direction."

CLEARED OF CHECK CHARGE

Toumanianz, Oil Man, Freed Here in Forth Worth (Texas) Case.

Irwin Toumanianz, 48 years old, a representative in this country of the Czarist Government before the World War, who lives at 130 Riverside Drive, was discharged by Magistrate Flood in the Tombs Court yesterday as a fugitive from Fort Worth, Texas. The court held that there was no evidence presented to sustain the charge at the time that Toumanianz had cashed a worthless check for $1,400 at a hotel there.

Toumanianz, who was reported to have made and lost several fortunes in oil developments in this and other countries denied the check charge.

C. d'Arcy of St. Louis, vice president, succeeding H. K. McCann of New York and Henry T. Ewald of Detroit, who were elected to serve for three years as members-at-large on the executive board.

E. Dewitt Hall of the McCann Company of New York was re-elected treasurer and H. B. Humphrey of Boston secretary for two-year terms.

Other members at large on the executive board are James M. Young and M. L. Wilson of New York, whose terms expire next year, and F. H. Walsh of New York and E. D. Mason, whose terms expire in 1932.

John Benson of New York, whose four-year term as president has three years to run, presided at the meeting for trade discussions this morning, at which addresses were delivered by H. M. Byllenbeck of Richardson, Alley and Richards, F. G. Hubbard, Harrison Atwood and L. S. Kelly of the H. K. McCann Company, E. R. Gardner and F. R. Gamble. NEW BANK GROUP PLANNED.

Negotiations Started to Link Forty Western Pennsylvania Institutions.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 16.—The combination of forty banks in Western Pennsylvania with an institution in Pittsburgh into a corporation controlling deposits of more than $300,000,000, with resources of nearly $400,000,000, has been proposed to heads of institutions in this territory. The company would be called the Western Pennsylvania Bancorporation.

The identity of the individual bank and the personnel and management would remajn unchanged, and stock control in the new corporation would be vested in the affiliated institutions.

Neither of the two large banking groups in Pittsburgh is connected with the proposal, and it is believed that neither has been approached in conjunction with its consummation.

The proposition to the banks has been made by Pomeroy & Salmon of New York City, and the bankers in connection with the underwriting are understood to be August Belmont & Co. of New York.

GAS-PIPE ORDERS PLACED.

Southern Natural Gas Corporation Awards Two Contracts.

The Southern Natural Gas Corporation has placed orders for pipe involving about $2,375,000 with the National Tube Company and $1,000,000 with the A. O. Smith Corporation, J. H. White, president, announced yesterday. Added to pipe already bought by Southern Natural Gas, the natural gas extensions of the company have cost $11,750,000, while a total expenditure of $15,000,000 is involved in the plans for this Summer.

Dispatches from Pittsburgh announced yesterday that orders had been placed with the National Tube Company for about 450 miles of 24-inch pipe to be used in the Cities Service and Insull line from Texas to Chicago. This quantity will cover about one-half of the distance to be served. It was reported that the remainder of the order would go to the Smith Corporation.

ASK MORE UTILITY HEARINGS

Trade Commissioners Want Further Bond and Share Testimony.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Federal Trade Commission reported to the Senate today that further hearings concerning affairs of the Electric Bond and Share Company would be necessary if the commission was successful in its suit against that company, now pending in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York, in which it is seeking to compel officials to answer certain questions and produce certain documents. The case in court awaits the taking of testimony by a master.

In the meantime, the commission reported, it would proceed about May 27 with examination of the North American Company, another holding company.

UNITED ADDS TO STOCK IN CONSOLIDATED GAS

Recent Acquisition of 100,000 More Shares Reported—Has 1.55% of Total Votes.

An additional 100,000 shares of stock in the Consolidated Gas Company of New York has been acquired by the United Corporation, it was learned yesterday. Some of the shares, it is believed in utility circles, were acquired in the stock market during the recent utility reaction, which carried Consolidated Gas from 133 on April 30 to a low point of 117¼ on May 5. The stock closed at 130 yesterday.

The purchase of the Consolidated Gas shares gives the United Corporation holdings of about 210,000 shares at the present time. This is equivalent to 1.55 per cent of the total votes, as each of the 11,456,981 common and 2,087,756 preferred shares has one vote.

The United Corporation now has an application pending to list 1,430,000 additional shares on the New York Stock Exchange, these shares to be issued in exchange for a like number of shares of the United Gas Improvement Company under the recent offer. It is expected that the listing application, when approved by the governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange, will show these changes.

Common shares of Columbia Gas and Electric closed at 86⅛ yesterday, up ⅞ point, while United common closed at 46⅝, down 1⅛, and preference at 50⅝, down ⅛. This gives an exchange value equivalent to 86 13-16 for Columbia shares under United's offer for 25 per cent of the outstanding common capital.

Gross revenue from operations was $12,054,159 for the quarter and $45,356,889 for the twelve months, while gross revenue and other income totaled $12,938,561 and $48,328,520, respectively. Net earnings after expenses were $7,412,130 and $25,855,679 for the respective periods. Total surplus on March 31 was $14,058,539, against $13,338,450 on Dec. 31, 1929, and an initial paid-in surplus of $12,360,000. The statement was the first for twelve months since the company was organized as a subsidiary of the International Paper and Power Company.

Archibald R. Graustein, president, said the improvement in earnings in the March quarter, while partly seasonal, was due principally to increased contract deliveries by subsidiaries of the Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation, Ltd., and to normal growth of the New England Power Association. "The improvement would have been even more substantial," he said, "had not the earnings of the Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation, Ltd., been adversely affected by unusually low water on the Gatineau River. Additional protection against recurrence of such conditions is afforded by the new Cabonga reservoir. With the Mercier reservoir, this provides storage capacity for enough water to operate the Gatineau River hydro-electric plants eight hours every working day if no rain fell for an entire year."

Hackensack Water.

Net profit of $236,961 is reported by the Hackensack Water Company for the March quarter, equal after preferred and regular participating preferred provisions to 70 cents a share on 95,125 shares of 7 per cent participating preferred and 205,000 shares of common stock. This compares with $113,474, or 22 cents a share, on 205,000 shares of common stock in the same quarter last year, after only regular preferred dividend requirements. Gross earnings were $886,853, against $726,139, and net earnings $370,983, contrasted with $233,213.

Ohio Water Service.

Gross revenues of $643,322 are reported for the year ended March 31 by the Ohio Water Service Company, against $589,770 the year before. Net earnings after expenses and general taxes were $388,818, compared with $357,773.

Internationals Weaker on the English Exchange—Credit Conditions Still Easy.

FRENCH STOCKS DECLINE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—Further headway was made by British Government securities on the Stock Exchange today, with some advances in quotations. The stock market generally was quiet, however. The war loan rose to £102 and the conversion 3½s to £78 3-16.

Owing to the easier tendency in Wall Street yesterday all the internationals moved adversely, with International Nickel at $33¾. Hydroelectric $46⅛ and Brazilian Traction $50⅛. Columbia Graphophone was steady at £5¾. His Master's Voice Gramophone unchanged at £5⅛, while Vocalion rose to 10s 6d.

Spot rubber declined to 6 15-16d a pound and shares eased. The oils came in for renewed support. The increase of the Burmah dividend to 30 per cent came as a pleasant surprise. Burmah rose to £4⅝. Anglo-Persian to £4½, Canadian Eagle to 12s 7½d, Royal Dutch to £33½ and Shell Transport to £4 25-32. Rhodesians showed continued activity, N'Changa rose to £4 3-16 and Bwana M'Kubwa to 18s 6d. Metals declined further. Credit conditions were very easy in Lombard Street. Old renewals were 1¾ to 2 per cent and fresh advances down to 1½. Bill rates also were easy, despite the further large gold withdrawal for France today. Sterling on New York improved to $4.85 31-32 to $4.86 1-32.

Trading Quiet in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 16.—After yesterday's move toward recovery the Bourse today lost its animation, and there was very little trading during the session. Most of the stocks were affected and prices fell off slightly. Toward the close there was some improvement because of late orders on account of the week-end holiday, there being no longer any sessions on Saturdays.

Contrary to the general tendency, rentes were firm, some categories showing gains. They closed as follows: The 3 per cents, 88.25; 1918 4s, 100.10; 1920 amortizable 5s, 133.15; 1928 5s, 101.07; 1920 6s, 104.65; 1927 amortizable 6s, 104.50.

Prices Improve in Berlin.

BERLIN, May 16.—The tendency on today's Boerse was toward firmness, and trading was somewhat brisker. Declaration of a 7½ per cent dividend by Rheinstahl, against 6 per cent last year stimulated Dyes Trust and several other issues connected with it. Electricals were much sought and well improved. Mannesmann, Heyden Chemical, Julius Berger of the building group and Schultheiss of the beer and spirit group also were harder, but Ostwerke was three points weaker. Toward the close trading slackened and highest quotations of the day could not be maintained.

San Francisco Plans to Sell $5,768,000 of 4½% Bonds

The city of San Francisco plans to market a new issue of $5,768,000 4½ per cent bonds about July 15, according to private advices received here yesterday. The issue will comprise $4,000,000 war memorial bonds, due 1932 to 1951, and $1,768,000 hospital bonds, due 1934 to 1953.

The city may sell later in the year an additional issue of $1,700,000 hospital, $1,440,000 boulevard and $500,000 sewer bonds, and possibly a part of the authorized $6,000,000 Hetch Hetchy water bonds.

The last financing by the city was on March 31, when $3,306,000 4½s were awarded, and prior to that $41,000,000 4½s in connection with the purchase of the Spring Valley Water Company.

BOND TRADING DULL, WITH PRICES EASIER

SOME MOVIE ISSUES GO UP

Turnover Is Large in Belgian 7s, Which End Lower as Result of Redemption Call.

Trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday was dull and narrow. Despite the ease in money and the outlook for continued low rates, prices were slightly lower on both domestic and foreign issues. Convertibles shared in the general trend, American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s providing an example. Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s also were a fraction lower.

Shubert Theatre 6s led in weakness, but General Theatre Equipment convertible 6s of 1940 and those of 1944 closed fractionally firmer. Warner Pictures convertible 6s also ended better. Missouri Pacific convertible 5½s were weak.

Trading in Belgian 7s at 55 was unusually heavy, closing fractionally lower, following the notice that they would be called for redemption. Japanese 5½s of 1965, when issued, ended a little lower, but at a premium over the offering price.

Other active issues were American Telephone and Telegraph 5s of 1965, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific adjustment 5s and Philadelphia & Reading convertible 6s. The last named was strong at the close.

CASH BASIS BY 1935 PLANNED BY CHICAGO

LEGISLATIVE BILL PENDING

Purpose Is to Make Unnecessary Further Warrant Notes for the City and Schools.

The City of Chicago plans to be on a cash basis by 1935, municipal bond dealers here reported yesterday. They had received a summary of the proposed legislation to be acted on at the special session of the Illlinois Legislature which has just opened. The plans call for a special tax to be levied by the city and by the Board of Education, the money thus collected to be set aside in a special fund so that at the end of five years the city and the schools will have sufficient cash without resorting to the further issuance of warrants.

1. It is proposed to validate all outstanding warrants so that no question can be raised as to their legality.

2. A total of 100 per cent of the taxes collected shall be pledged for the payment of the present outstanding warrants. The present law states that warrant notes cannot be issued in excess of 75 per cent of the amount of taxes levied. Thus under the proposed legislation no taxes collected can be used for other purposes so long as any warrants are outstanding.

3. A deficiency of about $2,000,000 was carried over from 1927 and a deficiency of about $5,000,000 is anticipated for 1928. This 1928 deficiency was caused largely by the fact that Chicago had to pay out more interest on the 1928 warrants than had been anticipated, as these warrants were outstanding a year longer than had been expected. It is proposed to authorize the city to issue one to three-year general obligation bonds to cover this deficiency, since the 1927 and 1928 tax bills have already been sent out.

4. It is proposed to increase the tax rate for the 1929 levy to an amount that will be sufficient to take care of the city's obligations incurred for that year so that there will be no deficiency.

5. It is proposed that a special tax be levied by the city and by the Board of Education and the moneys so collected be set aside in a special fund so that at the end of five years the city and the schools will not be compelled to borrow to finance themselves through the issuance of additional warrant notes.

FINAL PLEA BY N. Y. STEAM.

Hearings before Milo R. Maltbie, chairman of the Public Service Commission, on the application of the New York Steam Corporation to issue 112,000 additional shares of common stock at $50 a share were ended, tentatively, yesterday after cross-examination of the commission's engineering and accounting experts and the submission by the company of exhibits of capitalizable assets intended to show a justifiable basis for the plan. The hearings will be reopened on May 25 if the company requests it.

The commission's witnesses, Daniel J. Fleming, accountant, and Randolph H. Nexsen, engineer, had estimated at $5,947,983 the company's increase in fixed capital and work in progress not covered by authorization of the commission. Charles E. Kelly, the company's witness, set capitalizable assets at $8,332,506, based on net expenditures according to the company's books, and $7,653,281 after accounting for the commissions' adjustments.

Jacob H. Goetz, of counsel for the company, said the company was willing to make adjustments of $212,953 from the estimated additional capitalization assets of $8,332,506. To issue the additional stock, he said, the company would have to show assets of $5,600,000, the amount it hopes to raise.

BOND TOTAL LOWER FOR MUNICIPALITIES

$15,346,207 Loans Scheduled for Award Next Week, Against $69,744,040 This Week.

$30,000,000 FOR ONTARIO

Domestic municipal financing will show a sharp decline next week, when issues aggregating only $15,346,207 will be up for award. In addition, however, the Province of Ontario will market another issue of $30,000,000 4½ per cent bonds, due serially from one to forty years. This week the total of new municipal financing reached $69,744,040. The weekly average for the year to date stands at $32,001,621.

Although next week's financing will run very light, a number of important issues have been scheduled for sale later in the month and early in June, chief of which are $18,000,000 State of Arkansas highway bonds on June 18, $6,889,000 city of Camden (N. J.) improvement bonds on June 11 and $5,000,000 State of Mississippi notes on May 30.

In commenting on the heavier financing to be done in the next few weeks, municipal dealers said yesterday that it was much better policy for communities to make known their intentions well ahead of time. In this way any sudden marking up of prices in anticipation of a short supply of bonds is forestalled and the borrowing communities themselves get a better idea of the prices they are likely to receive for the new issues.

$50,000,000 Offerings in Week.

The actual offerings of new municipal issues to investors this week was in excess of $50,000,000, one of the heaviest weekly totals for the year to date. Most of the new issues were well received. The offering of $20,350,000 city of Detroit 4¼s and 4½s was the largest. One block of 4½s, due in 1960, was offered by the bankers at a price to yield 4.35 per cent, but later in the week other dealers marked up the same bonds to yield only 4.30 per cent.

Only a few changes were made in municipal bond prices this week. The present supply of bonds is still considerably under normal for this season of the year, and the bringing out of old blocks of bonds from investment accounts is not as active as a few weeks ago. Inter-dealer trading is also less active, because of the smaller amount of bonds available.

The city of Chicago is understood to be contemplating the sale of an issue of $19,420,000 4 per cent bonds, due from 1932 to 1950, chiefly for street widening purposes, early in June, but as yet the date for the sale of the issue and the exact amount to be offered has not been settled.

LOAN OF $18,000,000 SOUGHT BY ARKANSAS

State Will Open Bids June 18 on an Issue of Highway Bonds Due 1935 to 1964.

THIRD CALL FOR TENDERS

The State of Arkansas will be in the market on June 18 with an issue of $18,000,000 highway bonds, due from 1935 to 1964. This is the third time this year that the State has called for tenders on this issue. It was originally planned to open bids on Jan. 11, but owing to unsettled market conditions existing at that time the sale was put over until Feb. 12. With the maximum interest rate on the issue 5 per cent, bankers were unable to pay the stipulated price of par and no bids were received.

Subsequently, however, the State sold on March 7 an issue of $9,000,000 nine-month highway notes, dated March 7 and due Dec. 7, 1930, to a syndicate comprising Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation and R. W. Pressprich & Co. The price paid was 100.05 for the issue as 4½s. The only other bid received was that of 100.02 for 4½s by a group headed by Lehman Brothers and the Chase Securities Corporation.

It is evident that the State wishes to take advantage of the relatively high level of municipal bond prices at present to market its issue instead of waiting until just before maturity of the note issue on Dec. 7. It is understood that at least two syndicates will compete for the new issue, one headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, the Chatham Phenix Corporation and the Equitable Corporation of New York, the other by Lehman Brothers and the Chase Securities Corporation.

Odd blocks of Arkansas highway 4½s now offered in the open market are quoted on a 4.50 per cent basis and other 5s of the State on a 4.60 per cent basis. The interest rate on the new issue is to be named by the bidders as 4¼, 4½, 4¾ or 5 per cent.

This is the first time the city has been in the market since Feb. 11, 1929, when an issue of $2,754,000 4½s were awarded in three blocks at prices ranging from a 4.41 to a 4.43 per cent basis. The city reports an assessed valuation of $117,218,314 and net debt, including this issue of $8,721,725.

The assessed valuation of the State for 1929 is reported as $774,877,211 and the total bonded debt, as of May 1, 1930, as $24,688,750. Under the terms of sale at least par must be paid for the issue.

$191,485,000 BONDS MARKETED IN WEEK

FOREIGN FINANCING LEADS

This week's volume of new bond issues was one of the largest for the year to date, aggregating $191,485,000. This figure has been exceeded only twice thus far this year, by the total of $293,398,000 for the week ended on Jan. 17 and by $192,530,000 for the week ended on April 11. Last week's total was $132,816,000 and a year ago the figure was $78,988,000.

For the first time in several weeks foreign financing led all other groups. New foreign issues aggregated $72,729,000, of which $50,000,000 was accounted for by the issue of Japanese Government 5½s, due in 1965, offered in conjunction with a similar issue of £12,500,000 in the London market to refund an issue of 4s due on Jan. 1, 1931. Issues by the cities of Toronto and Quebec and an Argentine provincial issue completed the total of foreign financing.

New municipal financing this week was the heaviest since mid-January, with the three largest issues $20,350,000 City of Detroit (Mich.) 4¼s and 4½s; $9,050,000 Allegheny County (Pa.) 4¼s and $5,451,000 City of Pittsburgh 4¼s. A total of nineteen individual municipal issues were marketed this week.

The week's public utility financing consisted of two issues, namely $20,000,000 New England Gas and Electric Association 5s and $15,000,000 National Power and Light Company 5s due in one hundred years. The continuous record of weekly offerings of railroad bonds since early in January remained unbroken this week with the marketing of an issue of Great Northern Railway Company general mortgage 4½s by J. P. Morgan & Co., and associates.

	This week.	Last week.
Foreign	$72,729,000	$17,581,000
State and municipal	51,006,000	32,755,000
Public utility	35,000,000	34,200,000
Railroad	20,000,000	31,980,000
Industrial	12,750,000	16,300,000
Total	$191,485,000	$132,816,000

Bankers reported good response to the new offerings and in a few instances the bonds were reported sold and the syndicate books closed the same day offering was made. Although trading in bonds on the Stock Exchange this week has been comparatively light, prices have held steady to firm, as there is less evidence of a glut of new issues than was the case a few weeks ago.

A table of bonds offered this week, compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, appears on this page.

FREIGHT DOWN IN MARCH.

Net Ton Miles for Class 1 Roads Off 12.2 Per Cent From Year Ago.

Freight in the first three months of this year totaled 106,364,580,000 net ton miles, a reduction of 9.5 per cent from the same period in 1929 and of 4.6 per cent from the same period in 1928.

March traffic decreased 13 per cent in the East, 10.9 per cent in the South and 11.7 per cent in the West. Traffic in the first quarter decreased 9 per cent in the East, 9.5 per cent in the South and 10.3 per cent in the West.

Outlay for First Quarter Exceeded Estimate Made to Hoover.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—American railroads in the first three months of the year did better than meet the pledge they made to President Hoover last December to go ahead with greater improvement programs than in 1929, the Spring session of the Association of Railway Executives was told today.

The spending was greater by $96,000,000 than in the corresponding quarter of 1929, and almost as much above the first quarter of 1928.

Atlanta Reserve Bank Head Points to Rise in Manufacturing in the South.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 16.—The closing session of the annual meeting of the Tennessee Bankers Association today was featured by the addresses of Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank of New York, and Eugene R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. The two addresses took the form of a friendly impromptu debate, as Mr. Black disagreed in some respects with the remarks of Dr. Anderson.

Mr. Black pointed out the changed conditions in the South that had resulted in 62 per cent of the cotton goods being manufactured in the Southern States.

"One-tenth of all the manufactured goods of the nation are made in the South," he said. "Business in America today is recuperating and the time has come when there should not be so much credit stringency."

Dr. Anderson said agriculture must take a leaf from the experience of industry and commerce in the matter of financing technique if it was to realize the importance of liquid investment. He asserted that the farmer in prosperous times invested in the things which he knew best, land and mortgages on land, which often lay the foundation of a speculative boom in farm lands.

"A period of prosperity involves a greater danger of overexpansion and overcapitalization in agriculture than in most other lines of production," Dr. Anderson continued. "Twenty-five-cent sugar was financially disastrous to Cuba. The high prices of grain and live stock through 1915 to 1919 left our farmers in a most vulnerable position. Obviously if they had used the profits of these years to pay off debts and pile up liquid reserves in the form of marketable investments they would be better off today than they were in 1913. A great many businesses did precisely that thing.

"The farmer has often been the victim of enthusiastic salesmen of speculative stocks, and the banking fraternity should be alert to guard him against this in the future. Short-term Liberty bonds and local school district warrants in well-managed districts are excellent investments. Both are acceptable as collateral at the country bank in time of financial pressure, since both are very acceptable as collateral when the country banker wishes to borrow from his city correspondent. Local mortgages, however good, do not meet the requirement of liquidity, and while excellent as a source of income for retired farmers do not constitute a suitable emergency reserve for the active farmer."

J. P. Hoskins, president of the First National Bank of Chattanooga, received the gold pin and gavel as the new president of the association. He succeeded C. W. Bailey of Clarksville and himself was succeeded as chairman of the executive council by A. C. Burchett, cashier of the Bank of Commerce and Trust Company of Memphis. Mr. Burchett will be moved up to the presidency next year.

WHEAT QUOTATIONS HIGHEST OF MONTH

OATS ALSO CLOSE HIGHER

Covering by Shorts and Forecasts of Frost Give Corn a Lift—Rye Up on Light Trading.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Wheat prices were on the upgrade today from the start, and while profit taking and selling against offers caused a recession from the top, the finish was at net gains of 2⅛ to 2¼ cents, with prices the best since April 29. Winnipeg was up 1¾ cents, Liverpool ⅝ to 1⅛d. and Buenos Aires ¼ to ⅜ cent for the day.

The foreign situation is attracting considerable attention. Russian reports suggested that the so-called "plan" would not be realized, one cable indicating about 50 per cent of the acreage only so far had been seeded, and even the official returns were rather pessimistic. Should Russia be eliminated as a prospective exporter, the bears would lose a strong influence, as the Southern hemisphere will probably not be able to put afloat any great amount of grain in the last half of this year, while the small supplies on ocean passage and the rapidly decreasing stocks abroad indicate that Europe would take North American wheats on a large scale.

More than 1,000,000 bushels were bought in all positions today, including the pool sales, and in the last two days about 3,000,000 bushels have been sold, largely Manitobas, but including some hard Winters and durums. A liberal reduction is expected in American and Canadian stocks in the next few weeks, and the Grain Stabilization Corporation is understood to be loading out 400,000 bushels from Lake ports for shipment to the East. Part of the grain represents deliveries on May contracts in another market.

Crop reports were spotted, but attracted little attention. Returns from Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas to Nat C. Murray showed only a few points in which the crop was not holding its own or improving.

Primary receipts were 412,000 bushels, a week ago 366,000 and a year ago 678,000. Shipments were 1,225,000 bushels, a week ago 774,000 and a year ago 1,266,000.

Local shorts in corn were on the run and lifted prices 2 to 2⅛ cents over yesterday's finish in covering their lines. An active cash demand, with shipping sales of 225,000 bushels, combined with a forecast for frost tonight in parts of Iowa and Missouri as well as in the Dakotas and Minnesota, had some effect, as did the strength in wheat. Selling against offers and profit-taking checked the bulge, with the finish at net gains of 1⅝ to 2¼ cents. Buenos Aires finished ⅞ to 1⅞ cents lower.

Primary receipts of corn were 353,000 bushels, a week ago 425,000 and a year ago 253,000. Shipments were 639,000 bushels, a week ago 633,000 and a year ago 733,000.

Oats were strong with other grains and as a result of buying of May by cash interests. The close was ⅝ to 1 cent higher. Commission houses were on both sides of the deferred futures. Rye gained 1¾ to 2 cents, with trade light.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

GRAIN COOPERATIVE DEAL.

Farmers National Corporation Buys Hall-Baker Company.

CHICAGO, May 16 (AP).—The Farmers National Grain Corporation announced tonight the purchase of the Hall-Baker Grain Company of Kansas City, Mo., which has branches at Wichita, Kan., and Enid, Okla. The price was not announced but it was believed to approximate $3,000,000.

The deal includes leases of elevator space for almost 6,000,000 bushels in the Kansas City Terminal, involving the Kansas-Missouri Elevator Company, owned by the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and the Murray Elevator, owned by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

The Grain Corporation takes over all the capital stock of the Hall-Baker Company. This company, handling between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 bushels annually, is the largest exporter of grain through Gulf ports and the largest merchandiser of milling wheat in the United States, officials of the Grain Corporation said. The country's annual wheat crop is approximately 800,000,000 bushels.

WATCHES STOCK INQUIRY.

Assistant Attorney General Watson Washburn, in charge of the State Bureau of Securities, resumed yesterday his investigation of the activities of the Universal Oil and Gas Company of Oklahoma City. Five witnesses appeared at the bureau and were questioned by Deputy Attorney General Abraham N. Davis.

Roy S. Lewis, United States Attorney of the western district of Oklahoma, called on Mr. Washburn yesterday and told him he desired to obtain the results of the investigation. Mr. Lewis explained that nine officers of the company are under investigation in Oklahoma.

As a result of an investigation three months ago, Mr. Davis obtained a temporary injunction restraining Hazel Christmas, doing business as the Securserve, Inc., from the sale of Universal memberships. An appeal by the brokerage agency is pending.

COTTON FORCED UP BY TOO MUCH RAIN

NEW CROP GOES ABOVE 15C

Certificated Stock for May Delivery Points to 500,000 Bales—Spinners Still Lag.

Heavy rains over a large area of the western cotton belt, which had complained of too much moisture, caused active buying of new crop deliveries yesterday on the Cotton Exchange. Prices advanced $1 a bale or more and narrowed the July-October spread to around 100 points. Closing quotations were 15 to 23 points higher on the day.

In addition to unneeded rains, predictions of unsettled weather throughout the greater part of the cotton belt last night reduced selling pressure, particularly in distant positions, and, after a higher opening, prices strengthened as the day advanced. While further moisture was beneficial in the Atlantic States, private reports of many lowlands being flooded in the West stimulated demand. With the Farm Board controlling a large percentage of deliverable cotton, adverse crop news left a limited supply of contracts in the market, and the next crop rose above 15 cents, reaching its highest toward the close.

Certificated stock increased to 483,000 bales, with 500,000 bales the probable total for deliveries on the May position. Trading in May will cease at noon on the 23d.

Weekend figures showed spinners' takings 62,000 behind those in the week a year ago, making the season's total more than 1,600,000 behind that at the corresponding date last year.

WEEK'S WOOL MARKET MOVED UNCERTAINLY

BOSTON, May 16 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow: "With the strong opening of the London colonial wool auctions and firmer prices in Australia, the domestic wool trade is inclined to view the future with more optimism, especially in view of the action of the American Woolen Company in advancing prices on certain important numbers.

"Prices in the local market, however, have shown little change for the week. Efforts to advance prices have met with the stiffest resistance from manufacturers generally, some of whom are considering the advisability of closing their plants for the time being. On the other hand, efforts of mills to buy wools for less money have failed. Altogether, the domestic situation is still considerably mixed, with the tariff deadlock adding another feature of uncertainty.

"Prices have been somewhat irregular, being higher in certain localities and lower in others. Dealers have secured, it is estimated, close to 50,000,000 pounds, while the cooperatives claim 70,000,000. The Ohio cooperative finally has decided to withdraw from the National Wool Marketing Corporation. It handled about 4,000,000 pounds last year."

LIVERPOOL'S COTTON WEEK.

British Stocks Smaller, Imports Also Reduced.

LIVERPOOL, May 16 (AP).—Weekly cotton statistics are as follows: British stocks, 906,000 bales, against 910,000 a week ago, 920,000 two weeks ago, 925,000 three weeks ago and 1,059,000 a year ago; of which American 398,000 bales, against 412,000 a week ago, 422,000 two weeks ago, 420,000 three weeks ago and 698,000 a year ago.

Imports, all kinds, 48,000 bales, against 51,000 the week before; of which American 9,000, against 18,000. Forwarded to spinners 49,000, against 58,000 bales the week before, of which American 23,000, against 27,000. Exports 3,000 bales, against 4,000, of which American 1,000, against 1,000. Sales 15,000 bales, against 22,000, of which American 7,000, against 12,000.

COTTON MILLS CURTAILED.

BOSTON, May 16 (AP).—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in the monthly bulletin today reports that New England mills have gone much further in curtailment than those in other sections of the country.

The bulletin said they have not operated even the full time shift of fifty-five hours a week, and night work has been practically unheard of for some years. Other sections have adopted the fifty-five hour day week and fifty-hour night week.

"In the first quarter of 1930, the average spindle in place ran 73.2 hours less than the legal limit in the New England States," the report says, "in addition to the fact that more than 3,000,000 spindles had been scrapped since 1922. The curtailment during the first quarter of 1930 amounted to 33.1 per cent when based on spindles in place and 9.1 per cent when based on active spindles.

"During the past year the New England mills operated at only 81.8 per cent of capacity based on a forty-eight-hour week. During the same period mills in the South operated 32 per cent overtime."

CONSTRUCTION OF THE SACANDAGA RESERVOIR BONDS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the State Comptroller, No. 75 State Street, Albany, N. Y., until 1 p. m. Daylight Saving Time, Tuesday, June 3rd, 1930, for all or any part of $2,790,000.00 Hudson River Regulating District Bonds for the Construction of the Sacandaga Reservoir. The bonds are dated July 1, 1925, bear interest payable semi-annually on January 1st and July 1st, and are coupon bonds with privilege of registration as to principal. The bonds and the interest thereon will be payable in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness at the New York State National Bank in the City of Albany, New York, or will be paid at the Guaranty Trust Company, New York City.

These bonds are issued by the Board of Hudson River Regulating District pursuant to the provisions of the Conservation Law of the State of New York, for the construction of the Sacandaga Reservoir in the Counties of Saratoga, Fulton and Hamilton and mature serially ninety $1,000 bonds on July 1st in each of the years 1935 to 1965 inclusive. These bonds are the balance of the total authorized issue of $9,000,000.00. These bonds are a charge upon and shall be payable, principal and interest, from the bond fund of the Hudson River Regulating District, and payment thereof is secured by an assessment levied against the public corporations and parcels of real estate benefited by this improvement, such assessment being payable in 40 annual installments, of which installments five have been paid. EXCESS OF EXPORTS $26,000,000 IN APRIL

Compares With $14,598,000 in 1929—$334,000,000 Total Smallest in Five Years.

COTTON SEEN AS A FACTOR

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP).—Commodity exports of the United States for April amounted to $334,000,000, compared with imports of $308,000,000, leaving a favorable balance of trade for this country of $26,000,000, compared with the favorable balance of $14,598,000 for the same month last year.

Exports in April a year ago amounted to $425,264,000 while imports totaled $410,666,000.

The shrinkage in the country's export trade recorded in April brought the total value of foreign shipments of American goods to the lowest point recorded in any month of the last five years. The imports in April were also less in value than those of any month in five years, except in the past February.

On the other hand April gold imports amounted to $65,539,000 with exports of only $107,000. The import total was largest in any one month in the last three years. Silver exports in April were $4,657,000 and imports were $3,469,000, while in April a year ago silver exports were $5,752,000 and imports $3,957,000.

One of the causes considered by government trade observers to be contributing markedly to the current recession in American exports is the cotton situation. Normally it bulks heavily in shipments at this season but it is not moving in the ordinary quantity. The result has been sharply to curtail the total value attached to it in American trade.

April foreign trade in merchandise for a period of years compares as follows, + indicating excess of exports, — indicating excess of imports:

Urges Cotton for Home Decoration.

Methods of increasing the use of cotton for all kinds of interior decoration were discussed yesterday by Mrs. Katrine Hooper, for the benefit of interior decorators and other guests of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., at a luncheon in the Hotel Savoy-Plaza. Mrs. Hooper returned recently from Europe, where she inspected much of the new work being done by leaders in the decorative fabrics. Mrs. Hooper expressed the belief that there is an opportunity to develop much greater use of cotton for decorative purposes by carefully co-ordinated efforts of all who are interested in that market.

Clipper Ship Wins Australia-England Race; Beats 5 Other Windjammers in 110-Day Trip

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FALMOUTH, England, May 16.—The great ocean race for the last of the windjammers from Australia to England was won by the clipper ship Herzogin Cecilie in 110 days. The magnificent four-master sailed into Falmouth Bay today with all her canvas set, recapturing something of the "glorious days of sail" as she was taken to anchorage off the sea front.

It was a triumph for youth. Her captain, S. Erickson, only 26 years old, is the youngest skipper in the fleet. He and his crew naturally are elated at having again won the race.

Six four-masters participated, the others being the Melbourne, the Pommern, the Beatrice, the Lawhill and the Archibald Russell, all laden with wheat cargoes. Except the Beatrice, which is Swedish, all are Finnish-owned.

The Herzogin Cecilie, which is twenty-eight years old, won for the last three years, the previous times being 106, 96 and 88 days. This year's starting point was Wallaroo, two days' sailing from Port Pierre, the port they left from last year.

Captain Erickson, who was mate last year, said the wind was very light during the voyage, but that great excitement prevailed aboard, every member of the crew entering into the spirit of the race and keeping every inch of canvas set. Although the southeast and northeast trade winds were very poor, the ship rounded Cape Horn after 31 days of sailing.

SHARP LIMITS ASKED ON PARKING GARAGES

Walker, at Hearing, Indicates He Favors Pleas to Confine Them to Mid-Town Area.

PARK AV. AND BRONX ASK BAN

Fear Expressed That Plan for Auto Hotels Would Give Appeal Board Too Much Power.

Strong opposition to the promiscuous planting in the city of so-called "parking garages," or automobile hotels, voiced yesterday before the Board of Estimate, led Mayor Walker to intimate that the erection of such buildings, if permitted, should be limited to districts where they appear to be imperative, such as the midtown shopping and theatrical sections.

Under the proposed modification of the zoning ordinances, such buildings are defined as structures designed to accommodate temporarily 500 or more automobiles and in which mechanical repair work is not permitted. The section of the measure which would reduce from 80 to 50 the percentage of property owners in a district whose consent would be essential was vigorously opposed by Henry H. Klein, an attorney.

He argued that the worst feature of the project was that it would greatly increase the power of the Board of Standards and Appeals, which already is the subject of judicial investigation. He said, however, that he found no objection to the erection of such structures if restricted to the theatrical and retail districts of midtown Manhattan.

Fears that, should the parking garages prove unprofitable, they might be transformed into factories, thus injuring residential and shopping districts, were expressed by Leo J. McDermott, speaking for the Citizens Union.

Joseph Reihilf, counsel to the Park Avenue Association, protested the inclusion of that section in the hotel garage district, but the Mayor retorted that the Park Avenue section needed more garages, so that the ban against street parking might be enforced. Representatives of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce objected to the building of such structures in that borough.

Among the proponents of the measure were Edward M. Bassett, zoning expert, and representatives of the Fifth Avenue Association and of the Automobile Merchants Association. The hearing will be resumed next Friday.

At the request of Richard C. Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Correction, and on the Mayor's motion, the Board of Estimate voted $74,000 for emergency alterations in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, to make the building more nearly fireproof.

In a list of twenty applications for retirement under the terms of the City Employes Retirement system, which came before the board yesterday, was that of Joseph Johnson, Manhattan Commissioner of Public Works, who leaves the city's service after many years to take a post in the Fox Film Corporation. Both Mayor Walker and Aldermanic President McKee extolled Mr. Johnson's long and efficient work for the city.

WESTERN ROADS CUT TIME.

Two Hours Lopped Off Run From Chicago to Los Angeles.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—The speed war among the Western railroads flared up again today. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe announced that beginning June 1 its crack extra fare train will make the run to Los Angeles in a flat fifty-six hours, compared with the present time of fifty-eight hours.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy announced that its crack train will make the westward run to Denver in twenty-five hours and the eastward journey in twenty-four hours and forty-five minutes, beginning June 8, cutting thirty minutes from last Summer's schedule.

The Chicago & Northwestern next Sunday will begin operating its fast train between Chicago and Minneapolis on an eleven-and-one-half-hour schedule, a reduction of one hour and thirty-five minutes.

ENDS COURT FIGHT ON CUT-RATE TAXIS

Woman Who Brought Suit to Bar Licensing of Them by Whalen Withdraws It.

ONLY FOUR ASKED PERMITS

Two Companies Deny Statement of Union That Drivers' Strike Has Tied Up Their Service.

The taxpayer's suit brought several weeks ago by Mrs. Agnes G. Morton of Queens to enjoin Police Commissioner Whalen from issuing licenses for cut-rate taxicabs, was withdrawn yesterday from the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. In permitting its withdrawal "without prejudice" Justice Mitchell May was moved by the allegation of J. K. Javits, counsel for Mrs. Morton, that only four operators had sought cut-rate licenses depsite the earlier assertion of an independent operators' group that hundreds would be sought. Mr. Javitz also declared that the suit should be withdrawn because Mayor Walker's special commission is handling the taxicab situation speedily and efficiently.

The withdrawal of the Morton suit was viewed yesterday as an indication that the leading cab manufacturers and taxicab fleet operators were satisfied that there was no reason to fear any endorsement of cut rates by Mayor Walker's commission.

Mayor Walker said he would attend one of the commission's meetings next week.

Conflicting statements were made yesterday concerning the strike of drivers employed by the Black Beauty Cab Corporation in Brooklyn and the Motor Cab Transportation System in Manhattan.

From the Hackmen's Protective Union came the statement that a walkout of drivers from the 204th Street and 138th Street garages of the Motor Cab Transportation System in the Bronx had swelled the ranks of the strikers to 4,000, and tied up all of the company's eight garages. A statement issued from the Brooklyn office of the Black Beauty Cab Corporation declared that the strike was over and that normal operation would be under way by Monday.

FINANCE CONCERN HEAD SENTENCED TO 6 YEARS

W. T. Reed of Atlantic City Pleads Guilty to Misuse of Funds —Loss Put at $110,000.

Special to The New York Times.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., May 16.—Walter T. Reed, 57 years old, head of the Guarantee Realty Finance Company of Atlantic City, was sentenced today to six years in prison by Judge Smathers in Special Sessions Court here after he waived trial by jury and pleaded guilty to twelve allegations of unlawful conversion of money.

Although Judge Smathers sentenced Reed to one year on each of the charges, the jurist ruled that six of the years should be served concurrently. Reed, at one time a leading Atlantic City business man, pleaded for clemency through his attorney, Allen B. Endicott.

Joseph Salus, who shared offices with Reed at 16 South Tennessee Avenue, was called upon by Assistant Prosecutor Mallin to testify. Salus characterized the defendant as a "Jekyl and Hyde, who," he said, "was the worst criminal in Atlantic City." Salus fixed the total amount of money involved at $110,000, although Endicott held it was $50,000. Salus said he had only lost $4,000 but that one sister had lost $33,000 and another sister had lost $7,000 through Reed's manipulations.

LEON S. PELZ TESTIFIES.

Referee Hears Ex-Officer on Affairs of Consolidated Factors Corp.

Leon S. Pelz, former secretary-treasurer of the Consolidated Factors Corporation, 200 Madison Avenue, who lives at 21 West Eighty-sixth Street, testified yesterday at the fourth of a series of hearings conducted before Referee Robert P. Stephenson, 32 Broadway, as to the affairs of the corporation.

Mr. Pelz was questioned by Joseph Dannenberg, counsel to the stockholders' committee, and told of the business relations of the firm with Oscar Greenstein, former president, with the Madison Distribution Company, the Blondiel Distributing Company, and other concerns.

Examination centred about the method of bookkeeping, the practice concerning entries and the examination by accountants of the books of the corporation in relation to certain goods, which, Mr. Pelz said, had later been undelivered. Inquiry was made into the organization of Lincoln, Potter & Co. and the ownership of its stock, and focused principally on an item of $85,000 carried on the books, for which entry, it was said, goods were never delivered, and therefore no receipt existed.

Edwin D. Blumenthal and Irving L. Ernst represent Pelz and Greenstein. Murray Aldrich & Webb are acting for the Guaranty Trust Company. The next hearing has been set for next Monday.

ASKS AID TO PREVENT LONG ISLAND FIRES

FOR BIGGER CONTROL AREA

Wants More Lookout Towers, Additional Trucks, Extra Employes and Local Cooperation.

Nine recommendations designed to aid in preventing and combating forest fires on Long Island are contained in a report made public yesterday by a commission appointed by Acting Governor Herbert H. Lehman to study conditions there. The commission held that the use of airplanes for fire-fighting is impracticable in that region.

The recommendations were:

"Conservation Commissioner to enlarge the present Suffolk County fire district to take in the town of Oyster Bay in Nassau County.

"Six additional fire towers to be constructed, making a total of nine towers in the fire district, three of the additional towers to be manned by employes of the Conservation Department and three, located in State parks, to be manned by employes of the Long Island State Park Commission.

"A fire truck and crew of two men to be provided in connection with each tower.

"Assistant to district forest ranger to be appointed for a period of four months each year at a salary of $125 a month.

"Patrol forces of the Department of Public Works and under the town superintendents of highways to be equipped with Smith Indian fire knapsacks by the Conservation Department and foremen of patrol gangs to be made fire wardens.

"Rates of Pay—Legislation to be prepared revising rates of pay to conform to prevailing rates in this section. District forest rangers to receive at least $3,000.

"Roadside Clearing—Counties and towns in fire districts to be requested to cut back and remove all brush within right of way limits of roads.

"Publicity—Newspaper articles to be prepared and sent to the newspapers for publication at frequent intervals in dangerous periods. Short addresses to be given over the radio. Signs to be posted in fire areas.

"Water Supply—The water supply system to be extended in State parks and fire hydrants installed along boundaries."

The committee was composed of Robert Moses, president of the Long Island Park Commission, chairman; Richard W. Hawkins, chairman of the Suffolk County Board of Supervisors; Benjamin W. Downing, supervisor of the town of Oyster Bay; William G. Howard, superintendent of Lands and Forests; J. J. Darcy, district engineer of the State Department of Public Works, and A. E. Howland, chief engineer of the Long Island State Park Commission.

APRIL COPPER OUTPUT UNDER MARCH FIGURE

Total, Though, Is Above That of February—Foreign Orders Are Heavy Again.

The world's output of copper in April amounted to 143,798 short tons, compared with 148,005 in March and 139,629 in February, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. For the first four months of 1930 production was 585,763 tons, a monthly average of 146,441, compared with a monthly average of 178,034 for the full year of 1929.

The daily rate of output was 4,793 tons in April, 4,774 in March, 4,987 in February and 6,561 in April, 1929. The estimates are based on reports covering 98 per cent of the output, so that only about 2 per cent of the total is estimated.

The following table gives the output in short tons for three months:

	Feb.	Mar.	Apr.
United States	74,094	78,514	76,777
Mexico	4,657	4,876	4,430
Canada	6,750	8,390	7,580
Chile and Peru	21,120	21,367	21,037
Japan	6,362	6,662	7,624
Australia	1,546	1,796	650
*Europe	12,200	13,100	12,300
Africa	‡10,300	‡10,300	‡10,400
†Elsewhere	2,600	3,000	3,000

Foreign sales of copper amounted to 11,750,000 pounds yesterday, compared with 12,000,000 on Thursday. Domestic sales were rather quiet. The recent buying spurt was reported as having taken all near-by deliveries of independent producers off the market. The price of copper remained unchanged at 13 cents for domestic delivery and 13.30 cents for European delivery.

PORTO RICO CROP IS RECORD

SAN JUAN, P. R., May 16 (AP).—A Department of Agriculture estimate issued by Commissioner Carlos E. Chardon says Porto Rico's sugar crop, now being harvested, will reach 836,890 tons.

Not only is this the largest crop ever produced here, but it exceeds by almost 100,000 tons the crop estimate made last December at the opening of the season. It is more than 250,000 tons above the last harvest. Heavy yields of cane as well as high sucrose content are the chief factors in the large increase.

Figures compiled by Felix Hilera, secretary of the Sugar Producers' Association, show that about 500,000 tons of sugar had been made by May 1. Because of the large crop, many of the centrals will continue grinding through June and some will continue well into July.

Vocal Cords Filmed in Action; Movies to Show Singing Ability

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 16 (AP).—Motion pictures of the vocal cords in action, completed here today by the Eastman Kodak Company, with the aid of a diagnostic instrument perfected by Dr. G. Oscar Russell of Ohio State University, gave promise of revolutionizing voice culture.

Taken with the aid of electricity and prismatic mirrors confined within a "fonofaryngoskop," the pictures will locate voice troubles and permit voice culturists to distinguish immediately the possibilities of a would-be singer.

This was the announcement of Dr. Russell, a throat specialist, who originated the "fonofaryngoskop" and spent more than two years bringing it to its present development.

With the aid of a mirror attached to the handle of the instrument, the subject may witness the operation of his own vocal chords at the same time they are being viewed by the instructor.

10,000 PUPILS MARK JEWISH ARBOR DAY

REIT DENOUNCES REDS

Magistrate Urges Youths to Think of Their Duty to God, to Their Country and to Others.

More than 10,000 Jewish boys and girls assembled in Lewisohn Stadium, 138th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, yesterday afternoon in celebration of Lag B'Omer, the Jewish Arbor Day, which commemorates the deliverance of the Jewish people from Roman bondage.

Magistrate Hyman J. Reit, president of the New York branch of the United Synagogue of America, under whose auspices the celebration was held, made the opening address, in which he urged youth to seriously consider their duties to Church and State. He recited the four cardinal features of the Boy Scout oath and asserted that the first duty of young people should be to God, the second to their country, the third to others and the fourth to themselves.

"Today we see and hear on every hand stories of Red uprisings, propaganda and activities—an insidious foe which is striking at the very root of our national life," Magistrate Reit said. "In such times it is inspiring and encouraging to see such a splendid gathering of boys and girls, young men and women, who have allied themselves on the side of patriotism; more, it is reassuring, and we face the future confident that should the occasion arise when it will be necessary to quench the fires of anarchy, rebellion and unjustfied dissatisfaction, these young men and women will be prepared to come to the defense of our beloved country and save it from false prophets, from hands which seek to besmirch and despoil it."

Other features of the program were speeches by Rabbi Israel Goldfarb of Congregation Baith Israel Anshei Emes, Brooklyn, and "Uncle Bob" Sherwood, the oldest living Barnum clown. Bands from the New York Hebrew Orphan Asylum and The City College R. O. T. C. were present, and singing by the assemblage was led by A. W. Binder, choirmaster of the Free Synagogue.

Pupils of several Manhattann public schools presented a series of Jewish national dances and Boy Scout troops gave exhibitions in archery, signaling, fire-lighting, first aid and gymnastics.

Among those occupying places on the rostrum were:

ALFRED E. CORNFELD, Deputy Scout Commissioner of the Manhattan Council.
Rabbi SAMUEL M. COHEN, Executive Director of the United Synagogue of America.

RABBIS URGED TO AID ALLIED JEWISH DRIVE

Hailing the Allied Jewish Campaign as an augury of "the new unity of American Israel," the heads of four leading rabbinical organizations issued a joint statement yesterday calling upon their colleagues to participate actively here and throughout the country in the effort to raise $6,000,000 to meet the 1930 budgets of the Joint Distribution Committee and of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

The call is signed by the Rev. Dr. Louis Finkelstein, president of the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary; the Rev. Dr. Leo Jung, president of the Rabbinical Council of the Union of Orthodox Congregations; the Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris, president of the Association of Reform Rabbis of New York and vicinity, and the Rev. Dr. Elias L. Solomon, president of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers.

The campaign, according to the statement, "represents the effort of American Jewry to meet its obligation toward the most pressing needs of our brethren in the Old World," shows a "strong tendency" on the part of American Israel to ignore differences of opinion for the common good and "is no doubt the most important task confronting American Jewry at the present time."

The executive committee of the American Jewish Committee, which in 1914 initiated a series of American drives to aid Jews abroad, made public yesterday a resolution it had adopted endorsing the campaign. Dr. Cyrus Adler is president of the American Jewish Committee and Horace Stern of Philadelphia, is chairman of the executive committee.

Retail Trade Less Active.

Reports on retail turnover for the week indicate that some of the stimulation occasioned by hot weather last week was absent during the current one. This was noted as particularly the case in men's clothing, furnishings and headgear, the sales of which dropped off quite sharply since Monday. Women's and children's apparel, however, were reported as still quite active in consumer buying. Some concern was expressed yesterday over the effects of weather vagaries during the period directly ahead, as adverse weather at this time would prove a serious setback to retail promotions under way.

To Direct Bloomingdale Publicity.

About June 1 John B. Knox, advertising director of Lord & Taylor, will become affiliated with Bloomingdale Brothers as director of publicity, it was announced yesterday by Michael Schaap, president and general manager of the latter store. Mr. Knox was with Lord & Taylor for more than five years, having started in the advertising office and later becoming employment manager and subsequently advertising director. No announcement of a successor to Mr. Knox was made yesterday.

Cloak Groups Ask Sponged Basis.

A resolution asking the member mills of the Wool Institute to deliver women's wear fabrics on a sponged and shrunk basis will be prepared next week, it was announced yesterday following a luncheon meeting of representatives of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association and the Wool Institute at the Hotel Vanderbilt. The resolution will be presented to the trade practice committee of the institute, whose findings will then be submitted to individual woolen and worsted manufacturers for consideration. I. Grossman presided at yesterday's conference.

Knox Names Millinery Buyer.

Developing the policy of adding experts to its staff of executives, the Knox Hat Company yesterday announced the appointment of Kathryn Delany, well known in the millinery trade here and abroad, as buyer and sales manager of the millinery departments in all of the Knox retail stores. For fourteen years Miss Delany bought the imports for the French shop and the regular millinery department of Franklin Simon & Co., and more recently was buyer for Stewart's. Miss Delany's new affiliation is effective at once.

Order Electrical Goods for June.

Retailers seeking merchandise for June requirements brought a substantial volume of business to selling agents for manufacturers of electrical household appliances in the local market this week. The majority of stores had delayed their normal purchases because of uncertainty over business prospects, it was pointed out, and their activity in the market this week is taken as an evidence of returning confidence. Department stores furnished most of the business placed. They called mainly for coffee urns, toasters and similar articles suitable for wedding gifts.

Fur Sales Reach $2,600,000.

The week's sales at the Spring fur auction of the New York Auction Company, Inc., reached a total of $2,600,000, according to figures issued yesterday. Of the total, 55 per cent represented goods which actually changed hands. Wolf skins offered yesterday brought a high of $28.50, the Canadian, Northwestern and Western sections registering price advances of 10 per cent. Other sections declined 10 per cent. Wolverine advanced 10 per cent, with a top of $16.50, opossum was unchanged at $1.80, and monkey and krimmer each declined 10 per cent. Krimmer brought a high of $8 and monkey $1.20. The auction coneinues Monday.

Plate Glass Call Improves.

The demand for plate glass was in better volume during the week, due principally to increased activity on the part of the jobbing trade, The American Glass Review will say today. A gradual improvement on the part of automobile and other principal consuming industries was in evidence. Following the furniture shows this month both the number and size of orders from the mirror manufacturers are expected to show a substantial increase. Conditions in the window glass industry held practically without change during the week, the demand being very quiet.

Bathing Suit Reorders Continue.

The current bathing suit season will run well ahead of last year both in the volume of business done and profits, according to selling agents in the local market. Helped by favorable weather early in May, the selling offices have had a steady reorder business which gives every indication of carrying well into June. The early Fall business on knit goods increased during the present week and brought a good demand for women's ribbed sweater coats. Color preferences so far have been for black, navy, buff and taupe.

Anthracite Trade Becomes Dull.

With the coal-burning season at an end, the anthracite trade has fallen into a period of dullness, Saward's Journal will say today. The public is displaying little interest in purchasing coal requirements for the coming Winter and retail dealers are restricting their purchases. The producing interests were unable to maintain the rate of operations that prevailed during the closing days of last month and a slowing down in mining operations took place this week and last throughout the anthracite region. The bituminous market is also quiet, although its present rate of activity is regarded as normal for this time of year.

Gray Goods More Active.

Trading in the gray goods market here yesterday was a shade more active than has been the case recently. Inquiry on fine yarn goods was better. In printcloths, sales were made in greater volume and fair sized lots of 38½-inch 60-48s changed hands at 5 cents. A steady call was also experienced for 38½-inch 64-60s at the prevailing price of 6 cents. Orders for 39-inch 68-72s were limited and filled at 6½ and 7 cents, depending upon the quantity ordered.

Disapprove Saturday Closing.

The governors of the National Raw Silk Exchange disapproved yesterday a petition from members of the Exchange asking that trading be suspended on Saturdays during June, July and August. A vote on the question of closing on May 31, the Saturday following Memorial Day, will be taken on May 23.

CHEMICAL DEMAND OFF.

Heavy Products Less Active in April —Price Tone Easy.

Demands for heavy chemicals in the past month were disappointing, as they did not hold up to the accelerated demand evident in March, but greater interest was evident in stock supplies, and the number of small-lot orders received for immediate shipment was regarded as an indication that consumers were not carrying large reserve stocks, according to the monthly review of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. Discussing the situation in the chemical market, the magazine says:

"Competitive selling is still prominent in the market, with producers eager to reduce holdings and with supplies apparently in excess of current needs. Sales of such important chemicals as caustic soda, soda ash, chlorine and ammonia have been made below prevailing quotations and a buyers' market is in prospect for some time to come. Lower production costs have warranted downward revisions in the metal salts, and conditions surrounding metals are not encouraging for any immediate recovery in values.

"The price tone was easy during the month. Sales of basic chemicals, including alkalis, went through below the openly quoted figures. Lower schedules were operative for alcohol, white lead, formaldehyde and turpentine and the weighted number showed these influences. Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering's weighted index number for May settled at 96.54, as against 97.36 last month and 100.31 in May, 1929."

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

Yesterday marked the third consecutive day of improvement in prices in the New York sugar market. Approximately 50,000 tons of raw sugar were sold at advancing prices and general increases were shown throughout the list in the futures market. The most notable sale of the day was that of 23,000 tons of Cuban raw sugar at 1.40 cents a pound f. o. b. Cuba. Freight rates from Cuba amount to .12 cent a pound, so that this price is equivalent to better than 1½ cents a pound. Philippine raw also figured in the sales to the extent of 15,000 tons at prices ranging from 1⅞ to 1⅔ a pound. The first cargo of Porto Rican sugar to be sold in more than a month also changed hands at the equivalent of 1⅔ a pound. Operators were the chief figures in practically all of the transactions and the strength in the raw market undoubtedly reflected the advances in the futures market.

The range of prices in the futures market was:

Receipts, 13,268 packages. Very satisfactory trading developed Thursday and a much better feeling was in evidence Friday morning, prices being fully supported on top grades and tending slightly higher on cheaper qualities. Sentiment here was considerably affected by the reduction in retail prices on the part of the larger chain store organizations to 39c for tubs and rolls and 41c for print and further confidence was lent the position by advices in Chicago spot and future prices. The official Mercantile Exchange quotation for creamery extras was 34½c; settling price June fresh extras 35½c.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

MUCH MORTGAGE MONEY

Placing of Loans Indicates an Upward Trend—Four Leasehold Deals Are Listed.

Real estate trading in Manhattan yesterday was not marked by any outstanding transaction. Some sales of business properties in the downtown area were announced, with only a few housing deals in scattered sections being reported.

Arrangements for financing of properties indicate that available mortgage money is on the upward trend, and loans announced by two mortgage companies reached a combined total of more than $10,000,000.

The six-story building at 110-116 Beekman Street, between Pearl and Water Streets, was bought by the F. & D. Realty Company through William H. Whiting & Co. The property has a frontage of 66 feet on Beekman Street and is 25 feet in depth. It was owned and occupied for many years by H. R. Lathrop & Co., importers.

Bank Sells Bowery Building.

The Bank of New York and Trust Company, as trustee, sold the three-story building at 134 Bowery, 24 by 105 feet, to Michael Ginsburg, manufacturer of billiard tables, who has occupied the property as tenant for more than thirty years. William Cruikshank's Sons were the brokers.

A six-story apartment house at 318 East Eleventh Street, on a lot 25 by 94 feet, between Second and First Avenues, was sold by Minnie Goldberg to a buyer for alteration and improvement. The Houghton Company acted as broker.

In the Yorkville section, Frank Schwartz sold for Harry Hurowitz, operator, the four-story tenement house at 346 East Seventy-eighth Street, between First and Second Avenues.

The triangular plot fronting on Tenth Avenue, Sherman Avenue and Isham Street was sold by the Kerby Realty Company through Sigmund Orbach, broker, to a builder for improvement with a two-story garage and gasoline station.

Louis F. Sommer resold for the Samirev Holding Corporation to Rose Coldstein the triple flat at 2,506 Amsterdam Avenue on a lot 25 by 100 feet.

Leases Uptown and Downtown.

The four-story building at 60 and 62 Harrison Street, about seventy-five feet east of West Street, was leased by Our Trustees, Inc., Berton L. The building at 416 East 102d Street was leased by Gustave H. Schroeder to Harlem Market Restaurant from Feb. 5 last to Oct. 31, 1934, the rent being $2,750 annually.

The Herkind Realty Corporation has sold its lease of 141-143 West Tenth Street to 141 West Tenth Street, Inc.

The five-story apartment house with stores at the northwest corner of Arden Street and Nagle Avenue, on a plot 50 by 129 feet, was leased by the Ulrika Realty Corporation, Maximus A. Lesser, president, to Leo Finkelstein for five years from the first of this month, the yearly rental to be $12,780. This lease is subordinate to mortgages aggregating $100,000.

The Sequoia Realty Company is the buyer of the land at the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, which was reported Thursday to have been resold by the Schulte Realty Company through H. Equitable Joins Metropolitan In Miller's Low Rental Project

Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, announced yesterday that he had written to Borough President Julius Miller endorsing the latter's plan to provide modern housing in Manhattan at an average rental of $21 monthly a room and that the Equitable would make long-term construction loans on the type of building proposed by the cooperating construction interests.

Mr. Miller's recent announcement said that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company would help the program by offering building and permanent loans for ten to twenty years at 5½ per cent for the first ten years and 5 per cent thereafter.

Mr. Parkinson pointed out that last year his company made construction loans totaling $2,111,825 on comparatively low rental houses in this city. While the rentals in these apartments exceeded slightly Mr. Miller's $21 average, the Equitable feels that houses renting on the lower basis can be constructed economically.

DENTISTS OPPOSE CHANGE IN STATUS

State Society Condemns Merger of Dentistry in General Medical Field.

ELECT DR. ALFRED WALKER

New President Characterizes Move to Require an M. D. Degree as "Utopian."

At the recommendation of its new president, the Dental Society of the State of New York closed yesterday its annual convention at the Commodore by adopting a resolution condemning any move to submerge dentistry in the general practice of medicine. Dr. Alfred Walker, who introduced the resolution shortly before he was installed as the new president of the society, also disapproved the suggestion that a dentist be required to have an M. D. degree.

While expressing the conviction that close cooperation between dentistry and medicine was essential and desirable, the dental society declared that "the most effectual development of oral health service will be insured by continuance of dentistry as a separate profession."

The resolution favoring the maintenance of dentistry as a separate profession was adopted without a dissenting vote. It stated also that "the society records its unabated desire and intention to promote personal and professional accord, cooperation and mutual helpfulness between dentists and the practitioners of medicine and all other kinds of health service."

Dr. Walker, speaking of the suggestion of an M. D. degree for dentists, said the idea at the present time was "utopian." If such a requirement were now adopted, he declared, there would be few dentists left in this country. Dentists with an M. D. degree would naturally tend to practice medicine instead of dentistry, he asserted.

"The time may come when all dentists will have an M. D. degree," he added. "But the economic conditions are not favorable for such a step at the present time. The attempt to impose such a requirement now is an attempt to progress by revolutionary methods instead of evolutionary."

The past president's emblem was presented to the retiring president, Dr. William C. Fisher. Other officers installed were:

Dr. FRED B. HOWE of Ithaca, as vice president.
Dr. A. P. BURKHART of Auburn, secretary.
Dr. GEORGE H. BUTLER of Skaneateles, treasurer.

Because of the growth of the society within recent years, particularly its expansion of public health work, it was decided to employ a full-time executive secretary.

SUES OVER FOREIGN BIRTH.

Woman Alleges Ship Line Prevented Child Being Born an American.

Trial of a $100,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Winifred Steele against the Cunard Steamship Company for excluding her from one of its ships after booking her passage began yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Mullan. Mrs. Steele, who lives at 27 East Sixty-second Street and is the wife of Captain Edward E. Steele, a British subject and officer of a trust company, asserted that she bought passage on the Ausonia for Sept. 17, 1927, from Cherbourg, after the company had knowledge that she was an expectant mother.

Mrs. Steele alleged that she was ordered off the Ausonia at the insistance of the ship's surgeon, which so affected here that the birth of her child was delayed and it was born a month later in London. She said her object in sailing on the Ausonia was to have her child born in America, so that it would not be involved in future immigration regulations. The steamship company asserts that Mrs. Steele consented to leave the boat and that under the British law applying to Cunard ships she had no legal claim for damages. The trial will continue on Monday.

Mrs. Steele formerly was the wife of Edwin C. Wilson, in the Diplomatic Service in Paris, and married Captain Steele on Oct. 14, 1926.

On charges of fraud, G. Duncan Bruce and his wife, Mrs. Alice K. Bruce of 1,189 Post Road, Scarsdale, were restrained yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Gavegan from disposing of any of their real or personal property pending a hearing in a suit by Benjamin I. Batsch of Toledo, as administrator of the estate of Mrs. Clara R. Starr, to recover $68,600 under an agreement by Bruce to pay this sum to the Starr estate. An application to continue the injunction pending the trial will be heard Monday.

An affidavit by Mr. Batsch said that Rowland Starr died in Florida in August, 1924. Mrs. Starr then became entitled to several hundred thousand dollars from his estate. Because the Bruces had been intimate friends of the Starrs, she permitted Mr. Bruce to have full charge of her property and investments until she died on July 14, 1926.

Mr. Batsch alleges that during the five years Mr. Bruce had charge of Mrs. Starr's funds he lent $114,514 to corporations and individuals on notes. The suit is based on the sum still due on the notes.

NEW HAMBURG LINER NEARING PACIFIC COAST

The Tacoma Speeding to Reach City for Which She Was Named For Reception June 2.

The new Hamburg-American turbine liner Tacoma is scheduled to reach the Pacific Coast from Germany on her maiden trip next week, the New York offices of the line announced yesterday. She will dock first at Los Angeles and at San Francisco, Portland and Seattle on her way to the port for which she was named. She is scheduled to reach Tacoma June 2, and to proceed to Vancouver, B. C., before returning to Europe via the Pacific ports.

The Tacoma was launched in Hamburg Feb. 8, and named by Mrs. John C. Kehl, wife of the Consul General of the United States at Hamburg. The Tacoma's sister ship, the Vancouver, will start her maiden voyage from Hamburg late in May. Upon the completion of that ship the line will maintain a fortnightly service between the North Pacific Coast and Europe.

The Tacoma and the Vancouver are sisters of the motorships San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and Oakland, which are now in the service. The new ships, however, are driven by steam turbines instead of Diesel engines. They have more space devoted to refrigeration and cargo than the older ships and are designed to accommodate first and third class passengers.

Captain Wilhelm Walthar is in command of the Tacoma. On the arrival of the ship at the port of Tacoma he will present an oil painting of the ship to the Mayor of the city, as a gift of Dr. Wilhelm Cuno, chairman of the board, and Marius Boeger, a member of the managing board of the line.

TO OPEN PACIFIC MAIL BIDS.

Postoffice Department Plans a New Portland-Manila Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Bids for ocean mail service on the proposed route from Portland, Ore., via Yokohama, Kobe and Shanghai, to Manila will be opened in the office of Assistant Postmaster General Glover at noon on June 26.

The contractor will be required to operate new combination passenger and cargo vessels of Class 4, capable of a speed of sixteen knots and of not less than 10,000 gross tons. Three of such new vessels must be built and put in operation within twenty-five months from the date of the award, while two additional must be in operation within thirty-one months.

The contractor and the Postmaster General may agree on the operation of additional vessels of Class 4 or other classes.

No Plea to I. C. C. by Colonial Line.

In an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Thursday reporting a meeting of the Shippers' Conference of Greater New York reference was made to an application said to have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Colonial Steamship Line to have the New Haven Railroad abandon operation of its Sound steamers. Robert W. Woolley, counsel for the Colonial Navigation Company, writes THE TIMES that the commission has nothing before it from the Colonial Navigation Company which has never raised this issue. The case in which this issue figures, he writes, is an old case recently reopened by the commission on its own motion.

Starts Hudson Service Today.

The steamer Mandalay will inaugurate her week-end service today between New York and Atlantic Highlands, N. J., leaving the Battery in the afternoon and evening and adding a third morning trip tomorrow. A daily service will be started about June 1 and will continue throughout the Summer.

AID TO AGRICULTURE URGED BY LEHMAN

He Would Improve Secondary Highways to Facilitate Farm Marketing.

LAUDS STATE ATTRACTIONS

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, May 16.—Building of secondary highways, reforestation and advertising the State's attractions for tourists were urged tonight by Lieut. Gov. Lehman, who was principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Bond Club of Syracuse. He said that while the government should interfere as little as possible with the conduct of private business it must accept the responsibility of helping agriculture.

The dinner was attended by 400 bankers and securities men, who came from various parts of the State and Pennsylvania. Claude H. Talley, president of the club, was toastmaster.

Declaring that government must accept the responsibility of helping and stimulating private business and enterprise as much as possible, the Acting Governor said, in part:

"The wealth and prosperity of any large community obviously comes through the conservation and intelligent development and use of its natural resources, through the products of its farms, the products of its factories and shops, with the collateral agencies required in their proper and adequate conduct. The economic structure cannot be complete, nor can the community secure a full measure of prosperity, unless all the sources of production and wealth simultaneously attain at least a reasonable degree of prosperity. Production of raw materials, agriculture, manufacturing, commerce and banking are so closely interrelated that if any one of these major activities greatly lags behind the other the effect will be felt throughout the entire structure.

Says Agriculture Has Lagged.

"Agriculture has lagged in this State and nation during the past decade, and unquestionably the effect of this handicap has retarded the general economic development. It is obviously as much to the interest of industry and commerce as to the farmer himself to see that everything possible is done to bring agriculture on a level with the other factors, and it is the duty of the government to concern itself in bringing about improvement in conditions wherever possible and practicable."

Dealing with the cost of distribution, Mr. Lehman said that the good roads of the State aided the transportation of farm products to market and thus reduced this cost.

"We have in this State about 80,000 miles of roads, State, county and town, of which only about 11,000 are included in the so-called State highway system, built or in contemplation," he continued. "Of the remaining 69,000 miles a very considerable part is of such a character as to make them difficult, if not impracticable, to use for transportation purposes during a good part of the year.

"These roads should be improved by the State as promptly as means will permit. I am not prepared at this time to endorse any specific method of building or financing the secondary road system, but I am convinced that, so far as the resources and other needs of the State permit, a solution of this problem should receive the attention and sympathy of the people as aggressively as possible."

"I have used that term advisedly. It is really the people and all the people who are concerned in this problem, not just the farmer. A prosperous farmer means a buyer of your goods in your stores and from your factories, an employer of additional labor, a good risk for the bank; he will come to your movie theatre and to your lectures, to your restaurant and to your hotels. In other words he becomes a definite economic factor in the prosperity of the entire community.

"It is because of this that I have always maintained that there is no such thing as a separate farm problem. It is the problem of every worker, of every business man and every professional man in the country."

Urges Reforestation for Profit.

On the subject of reforestation the Acting Governor declared:

"Forests are not just means for recreation. They are real, permanent, sound, stabilized investments, and economic assets to any community that properly tends them.

"I cannot picture a civilization without lumber. But certainly if consumption proceeds at its present devastating rate, without adequate replacement, there will come a time when the cost of lumber will be almost prohibitive. To offset this and to gain a substantial and lasting and safe return for governmental use, reforestation should be carried on without let or hindrance as fast as means permit. The cost is only a temporary expense; earnings and capital increment are certain and will result in large income to the community."

"There is one other thing I have in mind on which the State and all the communities of the State can cooperate more energetically than they have in the past," Mr. Lehman continued. "I think we have done little to advertise our resources, our scenic beauties and the industrial and residential advantages that are so obvious to us who live within its boundaries.

"European nations and the Western domains of our own country each year derive a very large revenue from their tourist trade. They do this because they advertise the things they have to show people; they broadcast them to the four corners of the earth.

"I am convinced that we have as much to be proud of and to show people right here in this State as there is in any part of this country or any other land."

In conclusion the Acting Governor urged State and city cooperation to stimulate tourist travel to the State from other parts of the country.

MARINE FLIER SETS RECORD

Makes Washington-Managua Round Trip in Six Days and 23 Minutes.

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP).—Completing a 4,682-mile round trip flight from Washington to Managua, Nicaragua, in 23 minutes more than six days, Captain Arthur H. Page of the Marine Corps today established a new army-navy record for the trip.

Captain Page, with four companions, left Washington last Saturday afternoon, reaching Managua on Monday, after stopping at Spartanburg, N. C., Miami, Havana and Tela, Honduras.

The next day Captain Page started back with another tri-motored plane, which is to be overhauled. He and his crew made stops at Guatemala City; Minatitlan, Mexico; Brownsville, Texas; a forced landing at Waco, Texas, because of fog, and stops at Tallulah, Louisiana and Atlanta.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 16.—The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks declared in a resolution at the closing session of its convention here today that its member banks have an ownership of $1,600,000,000 in the $25,000,000,000 invested in all the railroads of the United States.

About 200 bankers from seventeen States resolved without a dissenting vote, as representatives of the interest of their 12,000,000 savings depositors for whom these railroad securities are owned, to support the railroad consolidation plan published by the Interstate Commerce Commission in December, 1929, as "a constructive effort to bring about a limited number of strong, well balanced systems equally satisfactory to the public, shippers, employes and investors."

Earlier in the day a committee considering the problems of small mutual savings banks (with assets less than $5,000,000) reported that "the college teacher, at one time considered one of the most poorly paid professions, would appear to be receiving a larger share of the property of the country than the treasurer of the small bank whose duty it is to guard the surplus of his country's wealth."

A recommendation that bank treasurers should receive salaries of at least $5,000 was made by Harry P. Gifford, chairman of the policies and responsibilities committee and president of the Salem (Mass.) Five-Cent Savings Bank.

The investment policy accepted by the convention represented the judgment of E. P. Roberts, J. W. Brand, W. R. Evans, S. H. Beach, W. G. Wing, W. A. Danforth, J. G. Nagle and J. D. Garrett under the chairmanship of Joseph H. Soliday, president of the Franklin Savings Bank of Boston. It follows in part:

"The committee suggests the following legal restrictions for savings bank investments in national bank and trust companies stocks: namely, not more than 15 per cent of deposits to be invested in such stocks; not more than 2 per cent in any one stock; no savings bank to hold more than 25 per cent of the capital stock of any national bank or trust company; investment permitted in the stock of any national bank or trust company in the State, but in other States, investment only in institutions located in cities of not less than 100,000 population, with a capital of not less than $1,000,000."

JOHN W. SANDSTEDT, executive secretary.
